Gov't Inquiry Tackles BCR

VANCOUVER — (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett today announced the appointment of a wide-ranging, three-man royal commission to inquire into "all aspects of the management and development of the B.C. railway."

The premier told a news conference that recent construction problems and labor disputes on the BCR have led to a serious morale problem among the staff.

He said the Social Credit government is determined to free the Crown-owned railway from political controversy and allow it to play a full role in provincial development.

Bennett said an order-in-council dated Monday named Mr. Justice Lloyd George McKenzie of the B.C. Supreme Court, David Hilton Chapman, regional director of the federal Anti-Inflation Board, and Sydney Wallis Welsh, president of Premier Cablevision, as commissioners in the inquiry.

The premier said the commission's mandate included:

—The relationship of the railway to the economic and social well-being of the province;

—The foreseeable financial requirements of the railway for all purposes;

—The railway's over-all operation and accounting procedures;

—The procedures utilized by the railway for the planning and construction of any part of its undertaking.

Bennett rejected the suggestion that the appointment of the commission is a political move designed to cover recent controversy over cost over-runs on the railway's northern extensions.

He said the commission is "a broadening opportunity for informed debate."

The premier said commission evidence could lead to possible criminal charges if

SEAGRAM'S ACCORD

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —A tentative settlement has been reached in the two-year labor dispute at the Seagram's distillery here, it was announced Monday.

Union spokesman Al Peterson said union members would meet to vote on the new contract as soon as possible.

Seagram products have not been on liquor store shelves in British Columbia since shortly after the distillery was closed in late February, 1975.

889,000 LOOKING FOR WORK

Canada's Unemployed Highest on Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Actual unemployment in January across Canada was 889,000, the highest recorded since monthly labor force statistics began to be collected in 1953, Statistics Canada reported today.

The federal agency said the jobless rate last month, adjusted for seasonal variations, stood at 7.5 per cent. That rate was the same as December, but the highest for a January since 1961.

The actual unemployment seasonally-adjusted rate, howrate was 8.8 per cent. The seasonally-adjusted rate, however, is usually used by economists to predict trends.

British Columbia's unemployment rate remained steady at 8.8 per cent but its actual jobless total rose by 20,000 to 112,000.

Unemployment rates declined last month from December in four provinces and were higher in five.

In January, 1976, the national unemployment rate was 6.6 per cent and there were 800,000 persons without work. In December, there were 754,000 persons unemployed.

The high seasonally-adjusted rate for January reflects a worsening unemployment trend. For the last five months, the jobless rate has been worse than in the same months a year earlier.

The January figures are also a reversal of form from the U.S., where in the early part of the month unemployment showed a dramatic decline to 7.3 per cent from 7.8 per cent. Since then, however, the U.S. has been hit by severe winter weather and fuel shortages which have forced layoffs.

A private U.S. research firm says, however, that unemployment actually rose one per cent from December.

The government did not account for those who lost jobs due to the severe cold weather because it used data taken before the harsh weather began, Sindlinger and Co. said in a newsletter Monday.

Sindlinger also faulted the government's practice of not counting unemployed persons not actively seeking work. It said the limited spending ability of an unemployed person not seeking work affects the economy as much as the limited spending of his or her work-seeking counterpart.

The Statistics Canada figures also come as New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent has been challenging the data collected by the Canadian government agency, saying the agency drastically underestimates true unemployment.

Among Broadbent's charges was that Statistics Canada fails to take into account workers who have given up looking for work because of job shortages.

The total labor force in January was 10,144,000 compared with 10,230,000 in December. Some of that decline would be due to persons working temporarily during the Christmas season.

One bright spot in the figures showed that for the first time in three months the unemployment rate for persons aged 15 to 24 dropped to 13.3 per cent from 13.7 per cent in December.

FIGHTING FOR LIVELIHOOD, employees of Oakland Industries Ltd. staged peaceful but persistent demonstration at legislature Monday. Gathering of about 150 people, including fishermen affected by impending shutdown of fish processing operation, resulted in strategy meeting today by government, bank and company officials to try and find way to keep firm operating. TIRE CUTUP 'NEAR RIOT'

A Saanich man is to appear in court today on a mischief charge after a tire slashing incident early today which Esquimalt police said triggered a "near riot."

An Esquimalt police spokesman said reinforcements had to be called in from Victoria after a group of youths caught a man slashing tires on vehicles parked in the 800-block Esquimalt and the 600-block Head.

A total of 10 officers were involved before the melee was broken up and the 21-year-old man taken into custody.

Police said he faces a mischief charge.

BOY ARRESTED

Robberies and attempted robberies continue to plague Greater Victoria police with two incidents overnight bringing the total so far this year to 16.

In one case, a 15-year-old Victoria boy was arrested.

Victoria police said the boy has been charged in connection with a holdup at Burchell's Confectionery, 1137 Esquimalt Road, Monday night.

Police said a youth entered the store at about 7:30 p.m., pointed a rifle at the clerk and escaped with $45.

A witness saw the boy get on a bus and about half an hour later police boarded the bus east of the Johnson Street bridge and took the suspect into custody.

Victoria police Insp. Angus Stewart said officers discovered a loaded .22 calibre rifle in a burlap sack the boy was carrying.

Meanwhile, Colwood RCMP are treating an incident early today at the Gulf Self Serve station at Colwood Corners as an attempted robbery.

A police spokesman said the attendant was taking a bundle of money to a safe in the station when she looked up and saw a man wearing a ski mask and holding a piece of paper in his hand approach the pay window.

She darted into a back room and hid. A few minutes later, when she poked her head out the door, the man had disappeared.

Man Struck By Levesque Known Faker

MONTREAL (CP) — The director of a street mission who knew Edgar Trottier, the victim of an accident involving Premier Rene Levesque, says Trottier frequently used to lie on the road to get drivers to stop and give him a handout.

The 62-year-old man was struck early Sunday morning by a car driven by Levesque and dragged 140 feet.

"It's a well-known fact that he used to lie on Craig Street in front of the tavern," Rev. Bill McCarthy, executive director of the Old Brewery Mission, said today.

"He used to yell 'My leg, my leg,' and then hit the driver for a few bucks."

McCarthy said Trottier was an alcoholic and medical records at the mission showed he also suffered from epilepsy.

George Wilson, a witness, has been quoted as telling police Trottier was waving an arm and a leg in the air and appeared to be trying to get up just before the car driven by Levesque hit him.

Lieut. Larry Levis of the Montreal police said at least one other person witnessed the accident, a taxi driver.

The Star says the taxi driver, Sylvio Gauthier, told police the premier's car was travelling between 40 and 50 miles per hour when it made impact with the body.

The decision on whether to hold a public inquest into the accident is up to coroner Maurice Laniel, who said Monday he has not come to a decision.

Port Angeles Oil Port Best for B.C.—Studies

Two confidential provincial government studies have concluded that British Columbia should push for the development of a major oil tanker port at Port Angeles, Wash., rather than at Kitimat.

The reports, prepared by the environment and land use secretariat, said a preliminary analysis "would appear to indicate that Port Angeles is a preferable alternative to Kitimat from B.C.'s point of view."

The environmental risks of the Kitimat project "do not appear to outweigh other benefits," says one report, and the Port Angeles proposal, "apart from initial high cost, appears to be the best proposal for B.C. and Washington state."

Both ports have been proposed as the West Coast terminal of new pipeline projects to carry Alaskan and Middle East oil to U.S. midwestern markets.

Detailed environmental information on the Kitimat area is almost non-existent, said one reort, and no final decision should be made until the federal government makes a complete analysis of "energy, economic and environmental implications of the project."

The reports compare the two sites on the basis of the risk of an oil spill, difficulties in controling a spill, environmental risks and economic costs and benefits.

The factor most favoring Kitimat is the $500-million to

SURREY SHOOTS DOWN PLANNED RACE TRACK

SURREY (CP)—Surrey council voted Monday to reject a proposal for a quarter-horse racetrack in the municipality's Hazelmere Valley.

The vote was a tie, which automatically defeated the proposal.

The British Columbia Land Commission last week approved an application by Captain Harry Terry, president of Meadow Creek Farms, to operate the track.

Local residents have opposed the development as an unnecessary encroachment on agricultural land.

Alderman Gary Watkins said Surrey taxpayers would have to pay out $500,000 in road improvements if the track is approved.

Mayor Ed McKitka said he was disappointed by the vote. He said the track would be a good, clean recreational development which would employ many people and provide tax revenue.

Aid for Developers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Legislation is planned to remove some of the roadblocks which B.C. developers face, Hugh Curtis, minister of housing and of municipal affairs, said Monday.

Speaking at the opening session of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada convention, Curtis promised the legislation within "a couple of weeks."

Curtis said the legislation would mean builders will not have to wait between six and 18 months for approval from municipal and provincial governments.

"We don't like it either, and we're going to put an end to it very, very quickly," he said.

Curtis received lengthy applause from the audience when he said his government would work with the private sector and not alone in the field of housing.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the provincial government has allocated $58 million for hospital development in the Capital district over the next five years.

He said this is relatively more than other regional districts will get because the government apreciates the need "to catch up."

Under traditional government financing of such capital projects, the province contributes 60 per cent and regional ratepayers finance borrowing to cover the remaining 40 per cent.

Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, asked if he thought this would be enough said: "It will have to be."

The hospital district can certainly use more in its plans for construction, renovation and expansion of hospitals, he said.

"But if we're getting our share or more, that's all we can ask for."

A 300-bed hospital will cost an estimated $30 million to $35 million, he said. The 75-bed addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital will take about $5 and a 150-bed addition to Glengarry Hospital about $2 million.

Besides these, a substantial amount will be needed to undertake the major renovations needed at Royal Jubilee Hospital and some money will have to go to keep Victoria General Hospital going for the next 10 years or so, he said.

The board of Jubilee last week expressed fear over too much of available funds being siphoned off by a single project, the new hospital on Helmcken.

Pensioners Get Trip After All

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A group of 52 Victoria senior citizens stranded by a bankrupt tour company will go to Hawaii after all, thanks to the generosity of another firm.

Peter Lowe, of Traveleyden Tours Ltd. of Victoria, said his company will pick up the $19,000 tab so that the group gets full value for their money which is already spent.

The Victorians are among about 700 people who lost their trip when H. B. Haina and Associates Ltd., of Honolulu, announced it was going out of business.

The local group booked with Haina through Traveleyden.

"We are just heartsick about this development," Lowe said today.

"These people have been saving all their lives for a trip like this. They gave us the $19,000 and we turned it over to Haina in good faith. Now we are told there will be no trip because Haina is going out of business."

Traveleyden has no connection with the Haina company. Local travel firms act as agents for a number of Hawaii companies.

Lowe said his company will try to get full value for the Victorians by reserving space on Northwest Airlines and locating similar hotel space in Honolulu as was originally planned.

The original schedule was to go by bus to Seattle Feb. 28 and fly to Hawaii the following day.

"We will follow that schedule if we can but we are still working on the arrangements," Lowe said.

"We may have to leave a day earlier or later, depending upon what we can do. What we are saying is that these people will get their trip or if that is not possible, they will get their money back in full."

Either way, Traveleyden would be out $19,000.

However, there is hope the cash can be recovered, William Tindall of the Greater Victoria Better Business

CALIF. FARMERS FACE WATER SLASH

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The U.S. government is slashing water allocation to farmers in one of the country's biggest food producing areas by 75 per cent because of the California drought.

The drastic action: ordered Monday bythe U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, will affect the fertile San Joaquin Valley, which supplies vegetables, fruit and cotton. Higher consumer food prices are considered likely as a result of expected effect on production.

Bureau officials said the water reduction would apply to farmers served by the giant federal Central Valleys Project. They said the only hope for modification of the cutback would be if northern California unexpectedly received average rain between now and summer.

"We've never had anything like this before," said David Schuster, chief of water operations. "We're talking about cutting back California agriculture in the region we seve by three quarters. And agriculture is an $8 billion-plus a year business in California.

Schuster said project officials began telling farmers last year to prepare for a 25 per cent reduction in water from 1975. "Then last month, we said it might be 50 per cent. Now we're talking about 75 per cent."

Delivery By Pony Express

WINNIPEG (CP) — Shades of Wells Fargo.

The Manitoba Community Newspapers Association is betting that papers can be delivered faster by pony express than by the Canada Post Office.

To prove it, the group of weekly newspaper publishers will stage a challenge race July 19 and 20 by sending riders along a 200-mile route between Melita and Morris in southern Manitoba.

President Ian MacKenzie of Portage la Prairie said some members complained their papers mailed at various locations in rural Manitoba have taken up to eight or nine days to reach Winnipeg.

GM Soars to a Record $2.9 Billion Profits

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., in a dramatic slump, turned in its best financial performance in history last year with net profits of $2.9 billion on sales of $47.2 billion.

Earnings reported Monday by the world's largest automaker exceeded by $700 million the firm's combined profits for 1974-75, when the car industry was mired in a severe recession. Sales topped the old record of $35.8 billion set in 1973 by 32 per cent.

GM's 1976 profits, equal to $10.08 a share, were more than double the $1.25 billion, or $4.32 a share, earned in 1975, and surpassed by a wide mark the previous earnings record of $2.4 billion set in 1973.

Dollar sales in 1975 were $35.7 billion.

GM also posted record fourth-quarter profits of $797 million, or $2.77 a share, up 29 per cent from $618 million, or $2.14 a share, in 1975. The old quarterly record of $667 million was set in 1972.

Sales in the final quarter were $13.1 billion, a record for any quarter and up from $10.5 billion in the same 1975 period.

Following a banner year for the industry in 1973, sales and profits plummeted in 1974 because of the energy crisis and remained apemic in 1975 due to the economic recession. GM profits in 1974 fell to $950 million, its poorest showing for a non-strike year since 1961.

Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. also are expected to post record profits when they release their year-end results later this month.

Financial analysts predict Ford will hit the $1-billion mark—three times its 1975 profits—for the first time in its history, despite a four-week strike by the United Auto Workers last fall.

Chrysler, which lost a record $260 million in 1975, is expected to report profits of about $400 million for 1976.

Small-car specialist American Motors Corp. is the only U.S. maker still in a slump. AMC reported last month a $1.2-million profit for the final three months of 1976. But the firm has said it does not expect to do better than break even for all of 1977.

JAIL GASSING PROBE ASKED

OTTAWA (CP) — Stuart Legatt (NDP — New Westminster) called today for an investigation into an allegation that two prisoners were gassed and one beaten at Millhaven Penitentiary, Millhaven, Ont., the day after a special Commons subcommittee into prison violence visited the maximum security institution last Wednesday.

The subcommittee was hearing former penitentiaries commissioner Allan J. MacLeod when Leggatt interrupted to raise the allegation.

Conservative John Reynolds (Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) and Liberal Ken Robinson (Toronto Lakeshore) quickly agreed with Legatt's suggestion. Simma Holt (L — Vancouver-Kingsway) said that Millhaven Director John Dowsett had either been lying or frightened of guards when he told MPs a week ago tear gas had been used only twice during his tenure at Millhaven. Mrs. Holt said it had been used often.

Reynolds suggested that a member of each party in the subcommittee visit Millhaven Wednesday morning, taking along an Ontario Provincial Police officer as an investigator.

"Bruises can be covered up," he said. The prisoners should be seen at once.

"I agree," Robinson said.

The subcommittee has been told that a small group of guards at Millhaven have terrorized other staff members to maintain an "overtime racket." Evidence last week indicated that Millhaven prisoners have been "hog-tied" with handcuffs, beaten, or set upon in their cells by guard dogs.

Port Angeles Urged As Oil Port

$600-million cost of building a pipeline to the site, the studies said. A pipeline to Port Angeles would cost about $1 billion.

One study said Kitimat, on the other hand, presents "maximum approach problems" with more than 1,000 miles of the province's coastline exposed to possible spills. Fewer than 50 miles of provincial coast would be directly vulnerable to a spill in the approaches to Port Angeles.

One of the main problems, said the study, is the approaches to the Kitimat site, which narrow to one mile and include at least eight shoals.

At Port Angeles, the narrowest point on the approach is 10 miles wide and only one reef threatens tankers.

The sponsors of the Kitimat project hope to win National Energy Board approval for their proposal by the end of 1977, but the studies said not enough research could be done this year to allow an informed decision.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie promised Monday in Ottawa that a study of the dangers to tanker traffic along the coast will be completed before the cabinet makes a decision on the Kitimat oil pipeline.

Second Mission Raid By Black Guerrillas

SALISBURY (AP)— Security forces hunted through the rain-soaked bush for black guerrillas who killed seven white missionaries on Sunday. The government announced today that guerrillas attacked a second mission, burning and looting offices.

A communique said there were no casualties reported in the raid on Nyashanu mission 125 miles southeast of Salisbury near the Mozambique border. About $5,400 was taken and a mission workshop and office were burned.

The government did not identify the denomination of the mission or indicate when the attack occurred.

Black guerrillas, apparently a different group, killed three Jesuits and four Dominican nuns in a Sunday night raid at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Mission, 26 miles northeast of the capital and about 150 miles from Nyashanu.

Today's communique said 10 guerrillas have been killed by government forces in the last two days and that eight African civilians were killed by guerrillas. Two blacks died after being caught in a cross-fire and another died when his car hit a mine, it said.

Supt. John Potter said the 12 gunmen who invaded St. Paul's, in the Musami tribal area, were armed with Soviet weapons and were members of the outlawed Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU) "under the alleged control of Robert Mugabe."

"They seem to do their own thing," Potter said. "If they want to burn down villages, that is what they do."

Mugabe's ZANU guerrillas operate from bases in Mozambique, on Rhodesia's northeast and east. Another guerrilla army fighting to end white rule in Rhodesia operates out of Zambia, Rhodesia's neighbor on the northwest, and it is reported to answer to Joshua Nkomo, the head of the Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU).

The Patriotic Front, the political alliance of Nkomo and Mugabe, claimed the guerrillas were government agents in disguise. There was no official response, but it was believed the government hoped to capture the band alive to refute the claim.

Black nationalists made the same claim after a lone gunman ambushed four white Catholic missionaries Dec. 5 in western Rhodesia and killed three of them. The government later produced a black man who said at an arraignment that he was a guerrilla from Zambia and did the killings for money, but he escaped before he was tried.

CRACKDOWN ORDERED BY UIC

The Unemployment Insurance Commission is cracking down on people who take holidays or go back to school while continuing to collect benefits, program control regional supervisor Ernie Pescod said Monday.

He said 32 prosecutions are under way and more can be expected when investigations are completed.

Pescod said a North Vancouver student has been sentenced to one year in jail and fined $2,500 for illegally collecting $2,016 in benefits while attending school. He also had to repay the $2,016.

Longest jail sentence in recent months locally was a 12 month term for collecting UIC payments under three names. There were 56 prosecutions on Vancouver Island during 1976, 33 in Greater Victoria.

Pensioners Get to Hawaii

Bureau said today. He has contacted the BBB in Hawaii and Haina has made a verbal commitment to refund the money, Tindall said.

"If this verbal commitment is fulfilled, it would resolve the immediate problem," Tindall said.

He said Haina had been operating for 15 years and had a good reputation until its recent losses.

In Vancouver, a spokesman for Eaton's travel agency, said he understands Haina went broke because he was unable to become bonded as required by new Hawaiian legislation.

Haina reported a financial loss for 1976 and was not eligible for bonding.

Eaton's handled the booking for a number of people on the Lower Mainland and has announced it will guarantee the bookings it made.

Haina's B.C. salesmen also were caught in the company's collapse. Jon Varga of Vancouver said he and 12 others hired by Haina on Jan. 7 on a commission basis are without work. Some of the salesmen are owed between $1,200 and $1,500 in commissions, he said.

The provincial government plans to introduce legislation to requireall tourist agencies operating in British Columbia to contribute to a trust fund to protect travellers.

the weather

Pacific weather disturbances continue to move across British Columbia. Most of their energy is spent however, by the the time they reach the coast. Precipitation from the systems have been confined mainly to the areas of the north coast and west coast of Vancouver Island. One disturbance laying along the coast this morning producing rain along the northern coast and snow over the northwestern interior. It was moving across B.C. today with little or no precipitation other than over the northern areas. Another is expected early Wednesday with similar results. Temperatures throughout the province will remain on the mild side.

Dentist Must Pay $54,600

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court justice ruled Monday that a Vancouver dentist must pay damages totalling $54,600 for negligence in performing crown and bridge work on three patients.

Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins ruled that Dr. Michael Pottinger must pay Ruth Fluevog $28,000 in general damages, Mrs. Thorberg Riley, $22,00 and her husband, Wilbert Verner Riley, $4,600.

Dr. Pottinger ceased practice in the field of prosthodontistry in 1974.

The plaintiffs claimed that dental work was ill-fitting and said they eventually sought the aid of other dentists.

Mr. Justice Aikins said "Mrs. Fluevog ended up the long course of her attendance on Dr. Pottinger with her mouth in a very deplorable condition."

"That her mouth was in this condition in the spring of 1974 was, in my view, due to the negligence of the defendant."

Mr. Justice Aikins, in assessing damages, said Dr. Pottinger's patients now will require costly restorative dental work as a result of the dentist's negligence.

LeBlanc Rebuffs Seal 'Blackmail'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will not give in to "international blackmail" in the form of sensational publicity campaigns to end the seal hunt, Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Monday.

"We can't accept blackmail on us for reasons which are not based on fact," LeBlanc told reporters after meeting with Swiss millionaire Franz Weber who has offered to buy the lives of 170,000 harp seals.

Weber told LeBlanc that his foundation will raise the $2.5 million that federal officials say the hunt is worth. He also offered to create a synthetic fur industry in Newfoundland as alternative employment for the hunters.

Weber said he represented the "intense revulsion of world opinion" over the annual March hunt. The 1977 hunt limit has been set at 170,000 harp seals.

He rejected the blackmail charge and said that the "seals belong to the wole world, not Canada." He promised to take his offer of a synthetic fur industry to Newfoundland.

LeBlanc said the Weber foundation can start the industry if it wants to. The federal role was to conserve the seals and issue permits to hunt.

"If Mr. Weber wants to buy the fishermen's efforts, he'll have to take it up with them."

Weber said he has never witnessed a hunt but has seen television films and read magazine articles about it. "It is a slaughter of wildlife babies."

Proceeds from the sale of the dolls would go towards a fund to help establish the synthetic industry in Newfoundland.

Originally, Weber said his foundation would pay the Canadian government $400,000 to end the hunt. But it will raise the $2.5 million if it can be convinced that is the return from the hunt for Newfoundland and the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Weber said he has appealed to and hopes to meet King Olav of Norway to get the Norwegian government to stop Norwegian hunters coming to Labrador.

The Canadian government estimates that each seal hunter earns about $2,200 from the hunt and in Newfoundland, where jobs are scarce, that money forms an important part of the hunter's annual income.

Weber said he plans to bring 500 journalists from around the world to Newfoundland next month to witness the hunt.

LeBlanc said he has no objection as long as the journalists do not interfere with the hunters. He offered to give them a briefing by government officials to explain the hunt.

He was concerned that photographers might take only sensational pictures of the hunt and perpetuate distortions about it that other photographers had created.

Asked by reporters whether he was hinting at any possible limitations on photographers, LeBlanc said no.

COFFEE BOYCOTT TRIED BY A&W

CALGARY (CP) — A and W will use its 11 Calgary drive-in restaurants this month to test a boycott of coffee, a company official said today.

Company officials in Vancouver decided to use the Calgary outlets as test for the boycott, inspired by rapidly rising coffee prices, John Fisher, a local A and W spokesman, said in an interview.

"They just felt it's time we made a stand because of the high price we have to pay for coffee now," Fisher said.

"We've kept our coffee at 25 cents a cup and we don't want to raise it."

The Calgary outlets will not sell coffee during February, and tea, which normally costs a quarter, will be sold for five cents while the boycott lasts.

Fisher said public reaction has not been too critical but "we're not selling as many tea as we did coffee."

He said A and W would not lose money if the coffee price remained at 25 cents, but "it's a question of whether we would be making a fair profit."

Whale Suicide Mystery Probed

MAYPORT, Fla. (AP) — Autopsies are under way to try to determine why 200 pilot whales threw themselves onto a beach, after a frenzied two-day effort to save them ended with half of them dead or dying.

As the life-saving effort ended at sunset Monday, nearly 80 whales lay on the sand around Fort George Inlet at the mouth of the St. Johns River. Twelve others were near death, breathing laboriously in small pools of water near the beach.

"We managed to keep most of them off the beaches Sunday when it started," said Florida Marine Patrolman Ed Thomas. "Only nine died that day. But in the night and on Monday they came back again and again, swimming for the beach."

For two days, marine officers and volunteers, sometimes as many as 100, braved chilly waters to try to coax, push or bully the whales back into deep water.

Thomas estimated that half the whales were herded out to sea. But he feared they will try to beach themselves in another spot along the coast.

Marine scientists moved in to take some of the dead mammals' brains and other vital organs for study. They will test the theory that parasites infesting the inner ears of whales or porpoises damage their sensitive sonar and thus their equilibrium.

EPA Orders Assembly-Line Halt at Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency today ordered Ford Motor Co. to halt production of some 1977 Fored Granadas and Mercury Monarchs after tests of production-line vehicles showed they emitted up to eight times the legal amount of carbon monoxide.

It was the first time the EPA has taken action against an automobile company based on failure of air pollution tests made as cars come off the assembly line.

Acting EPA Chief John Quarles said Ford planned to make about 145,000 such vehicles aid already has produced 54,000, which now must be recalled.

The EPA order revoked Ford's production certificate for those models effective Friday, meaning after that date the cars may not be shipped to dealers without re-certification.

NAIROBI (Reuter) — Kenya has imposed health restrictions at its northern border where smallpox, brought by a visitor from Somalia, infected a woman and two children near the town of Mandera, the health ministry announced Monday.

INJURED REFUSE BLOOD

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — An official at Royal Columbian Hospital said Monday the hospital may have to go to court to get permission to give a blood transfussion to a 15-year-old boy injured in a plane crash Sunday.

Two members of the Keefer Family, Patricia, 36, and her son Jeff, 15, are in serious condition in Royal Columbian as a result of the crash at Boston Bar.

A hospital spokesman said there is nothing the hospital can do to force the mother to accept a transfusion if her condition should deteriorate. However there is provision in the law allowing the hospital to have the courts order a transfusion if it becomes necessary for a minor.

Mother and son are both listed in serious but stable condition. They both received multiple injuries resulting in considerable loss of blood.

Dr. Ladislav Antonik, hospital medical director, said that lack of blood transfusions made Mrs. Keefer's condition more difficult, but she is receiving "all other available treatment." The doctor said blood transfusions are not yet necessary for the youth but a court order might be needed if his condition deteriorates.

The other members of the family, Craig, 42, and his children, Brian, 10, and Michelle, 7 all are listed in good condition.

Trapped Tourists Airlifted

NAIROBI (AP) — About 170 European tourists were airlifted to Kenya on Monday after being trapped for four days in neighboring Tanzania by the abrupt closing of the border between the two countries.

The tourists arrived at the Indian Ocean seaport of Mombasa, 300 miles south of here, after a 45-minute flight from Kilimangaro airport in northern Tanzania aboard a chartered Swiss jet.

Most of the tourists were Swiss, but they included West Germans, Italians, French and Britons.

They were among 750 to 1,000 tourists caught in Tanzania after the government closed its border with Kenya on Friday. Many Kenyan tour drivers, hundreds of their vehicles and several Kenyan-registered planes are also being held in the country.

Relations between the two countries have deteriorated rapidly during the last two weeks, with each blaming the other for the financial collapse of East African Airways, which they owned jointly with Uganda.

A party of 159 tourists, nearly all from the U.S., flew to Kenya on Sunday in a jet chartered by the U.S. state department.

Another group of 50 tourists in a convoy of eight buses made it to the Kenyan side of the border Sunday after crashing through a barrier on the Tanzanian side.

Seat Belts

The twisted idea that passing a law requiring drivers and automobile passengers to wear seat belts somehow violates our fundamental freedoms has become entrenched in the minds of some British Columbians. Not wearing seat belts is equated with freedom of speech and religion. Therefore, forcing the use of seat belts under pain of a fine becomes Stalinist repression.

It appears to be current thinking at the highest levels of the provincial government. After last year promising that mandatory seat belt legislation would be introduced, Transport Minister Jack Davis now is waffling on the question. Pressure from the more unreconstructed conservatives on the Socred backbench seems to be the reason.

It is a poor piece of ground upon which these so-called freedom-lovers choose to make a stand. It is ironic that the blacklisting of civil servants, the decree banning a civil servant from freelance cartooning — these encroachments upon personal freedom elicited not even a grunt of protest. But the issue of seat belts prompts concerned and grave comments that personal freedoms are being violated. What loony logic!

Upon the issues that really matter, not a squeak of protest issues forth, but on a minor reform like mandatory seat belt use the legions of "freedom-fighters" prepare to fight. If the people in the fore of the battle against such a law all along were fighting for, say, the Doukhobors' rights to educate their children themselves, for Vietnam war protestors' freedom of speech, for other defenceless and downtrodden groups, their credentials as civil libertarians would be beyond question. But when the Social Credit party's tradition of the defence of "freedom" begins and ends on the question of seat belts, questions must be asked.

Doesn't Social Credit realize that here is an area where it can save money (its sole motivating force in government, it seems) and do good at the same time? The proof is irrefutable — seat belts save lives. The crown-owned Insurance Corporation of Brititsh Columbia knows that — it urges motorists to "belt up and live." The medical profession knows it — from gruesome personal experience at patching up the victims of automobile accidents.

Dr. William Jory, president of the B.C. Medical Association, said last week: "The argument of violation of freedom is totally spurious and, measured against the cost in human life, is terribly cruel . . . these people should see the carnage of a hospital emergency room. We could show them what happens to a child who goes through a glass window and is torn to pieces."

But the argument that should appeal best to the pecuniary motives of this government was made by H. B. Earle, chairman of the B.C. Road Safety Co-ordinating Council. That is the immense saving in cold cash to be realized by a seat belt law.

He pointed out that "there are enough auto accident victims in B.C. each year to keep one 400-bed hospital permanently full, at taxpayers' expense." It's been proven — by experience in Ontario and Australia, where it is against the law to drive or ride in a motor vehicle without fastening the seat belts — that wearing belts can reduce this by 25 per cent or more.

At $135 a day for an acute care hospital bed, patching up and caring for the victims of automobile accidents — many of whom exercised the "personal freedom" not to fasten their seat belts — is a very costly business. It is a freedom with an unaffordable price tag.

The Premier Plans Ahead

Premier Bennett's announcement that his administration plans to establish a heritage fund similar to the fund of the same name which operates in Alberta is a good idea. And the premier is right when he says it is not fair to future generations of British Columbians to take the full value of nonrenewable resources to pay for benefits today. But given the prices at which this administration sells our nonrenewable resources Bennett's fund may have a hollow rattle of a few pennies in a large void.

Still, the idea is worthwhile, and the premier deserves full marks for thinking ahead, a notable fault in the last two administrations of this province. Such a reserve carefully managed far away from the budget juggling so popular in B.C. could provide seed money for a vast number of community projects. It might also foster secondary industry in a province that rarely sees beyond its insular chopping or digging. Of course the start of this trust fund is predicated on a budgetary surplus. As the premier noted, that will be difficult unless there is relative labor peace in B.C. this year, a fond hope given the Anti-Inflation Board's uncertain tenure.

If the premier was short on details, so is the future of the province's economy. We can only hope that this administration will kindle this spark of imagination into some long term economic planning that will ensure the B.C. heritage fund will rival that of Alberta's $1 billion-plus fund in a decade.

HAROLD GREER

Short-circuiting Levesque

TORONTO — The reorganization of political forces in the wake of the Parti Quebecois' November victory in Quebec is now well underway in this country, although it is still too early to see where it will lead. Everyone is still groping but at least the groping is positive and some tentative forms are being tested.

This in itself is no mean achievement. The devastating impact of the PQ's victory was not, of course, that Quebec voters had elected a party and a premier dedicated to Quebec independence. That could be explained away — and was — by the nature of the campaign and the mandate the PQ was given. The devastating impact was that the essential politics of Canada had suddenly become no longer viable. How, after all, does one discuss Confederation with government whose goal and commitment is to get out of it?

For Rene Levesque to do so in anything except a secessionist context would be to admit that he wasn't totally serious about independence, that he regarded it only as a bargaining option in order to get a better deal within Confederation for Quebec. For non-separatists to do so would be to accept, however tacitly, the validity of the secessionist idea and thereby assist Levesque along the road to his goal.

Still Groping

There are still some — Premier William Davis of Ontario is a notable example, although Prime Minister Trudeau has also had his troubles with it — who have failed to grasp the full import of this dilemma and continue to talk about negotiating Confederation with Premier Rene Levesque. Significantly, this holding on to the old politics is most pronounced among the politicians in power — that is, among the would-be negotiators.

Outside of this charmed circle, however, there is an increasing realization, think, that the old politics is not longer viable and, more important, that this is not the great imponderable it once seemed. The answer lies in ignoring Levesque and appealing to the Quebec people.

Former Ontario Premier John Robarts put it as succintly as may be when he told a Toronto audience: "My concern with Mr. Levesque is that I detect I'm dealing with a man who doesn't want to make a deal. You must put your faith in the fact that on this issue he doesn't represent the people of Quebec. It will therefore be necessary to go around, or over or under Mr. Levesque to reach the people of Quebec."

This is not meant to be rude but merely expresses the logic of the situation, that so long as Levesque and the PQ do not have a clear mandate for independence, it is legitimate, indeed necessary, for non-separatists in the rest of the country to appeal to Quebecois to stay in Confederation.

Naturally, the appeal must take on form and definition and here everyone is still groping. Robarts himself, for example, has gone no further than to urge a "national debate" on the value of Confederation which would demonstrate to Quebecers that the rest of the country is indeed non-separatist and wants Quebec to stay (a necessary counter to the bigoted minority), and that there is "no end" to the changes that can be made in a constitutional way to accommodate Quebecers' aspirations within Confederation.

RODRIGUE BIRON

Something more definite than this is emerging, however, in the missionary work of Rodrigue Biron, leader of the Union Nationale. Biron has been telling Ontario audiences that a "united front" of non-separatists (he says "all Canadians") from each province, together with representatives of the federal government, must be formed as soon as possible to rewrite the constitution — or, as he sometimes expresses it, "to replace the status in federal-provincial relations by a new set of rules based upon a decentralized form of federalism, respectful of the French fact in Canada and capable of responding to the needs of the country as whole as well as to the needs and aspirations of our different regions."

This is not far from what J. V. Clyne, the British Columbia superindustrialist, has recently proposed, or from what some press columnists have suggested in recent months.

Immodesty compels me to say I thought of it years ago, on coming to the conclusion that we would never, never get meaningful constitional change as long as the governments of the day did the negotiating, and that the desperate need for change just might be better met by some kind of constitutional convention which would at least come up with "a new set of rules" (to use Biron's phrase) to show the country.

Involve Everyone

Having said that, however, one must question whether Rodrigue Biron is the best missionary for the message. While his political progress since becoming the unknown leader of the Union Nationale a year ago is impressive, he is too obviously the white hope of conservative opinion outside Quebec, the man whom the conservative business community is looking over as the rallying point for the non-separatist vote in the next Quebec general election, given the post-Bourassa shambles which the Quebec Liberal party finds itself in.

While I have observed only two of his Ontario appearances, both times before every conservative, business-type audiences, the impression that he is being used cannot be avoided. He receives polite applause at best and his political message seems to fall on deaf ears. To judge from the questions asked afterwards, they seem more determined to see him as the man who will convince Quebecers that if they will only look at the economic balance sheet, they will never opt for independence.

Biron knows this is all wrong and he is at pains to reply Quebec will be won on emotional rather than economic arguments. But so far the message isn't getting through and all that Biron is getting for his pains is the kiss of death.

Hospital Fragments

Hospital building and renovation in Victoria has been marginal during the last 20 years, but, at long last, it would appear that some new construction may be completed in a few years' time. Belated congratulations would be pertinent were it not that the planning of the new construction is illogical, committee-conceived, and politically-directed with scant thought to escalating costs and little consideration for the needs of the majority of the people.

We now have a situation where Victoria General Hospital is being reduced to 168 beds and 300 beds are proposed for the Helmcken site. Both units are functionally far too small for effective administration as it is well known that 600 to 800 beds is the minimal size for a modern hospital.

Furthermore, splitting the hospital in this manner will duplicate the necessary services such as operating rooms, emergency departments, laboratories, x-rays, and all the other services and plants which are required in a hospital. This duplication would not occur if the St. Ann's Academy site were to be used. The use of this land, which is adjacent to the present Victoria General Hospital, would facilitate the phasing in of the new hospital and the phasing out of the old with no duplication of services. To those who object to using this land from a structural point of view, I would point out that studies made by Thompson, Berwick and Pratt, the Vancouver engineering architects, showed that a hospital can be built there with ease. Furthermore, the Empress Hotel, which is built on similar land, is certainly standing the test of time.

The splitting of the Victoria General Hospital is not the only tragedy, unfortunately. This travesty of planning is compounded by the construction of a 75-bed hospital — an even more useless functional unit than the others — at Keating Cross Road. The construction of this hospital is a political decision, which has no place in efficient over-all planning. In other words, instead of building a good, practical general hospital, we are to have our services fragmented into three inadequate units, two of these in the country, and an emasculated Victoria General Hospital remaining to serve the downtown area. To make matters worse, Resthaven Hospital at Sidney, is to be closed and there are no plans to proceed with the necessary enlargement of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, which would certainly be required if Victoria General Hospital is reduced to cottage hospital proportions.

To the people of Victoria I would say, yell from the rooftops, and write or phone the minister of health. To the minister I would say, please show some judgment and ignore the advice of the politically-motivated and those ignorant of hospital matters. There is still time for you to emerge as a first rate minister of health. — Alastair Baird, M.B., F.R.C.S.(C), Past President, Victoria Medical Society.

Pensions

In recent months there has been a concerted attack on Canadian government civil servant pensions by a group whose leaders are insurance and actuarial executives. The attack includes various articles and full page ads. An editorial from the Toronto Star was reproduced in a recent issue of the Victoria Times. The editorial had obviously been influenced by the attack and it included the comment that private industry couldn't match government retirement benefits because it "doesn't have access to the bottomless well of tax revenue."

Fact: Not true. The government pension fund is fully self supporting.

Allegation: You, the taxpayer, pay for your own pension.

Fact: Not true. Some 40 per cent of pension funds are paid for solely by the employer, in most others the employer contributes at least half.

Allegation: A 65-year-old civil servant retiring on a $6600 per year pension will exhaust his $28,500 contribution in five years. Even without indexing, he and his survivor wife will run the fund down by $223,000 in pension benefits over a combined 24 years.

Fact: Viciously misleading. No employee retires on a fund to which he alone has contributed. The normal employer contribution is usually 20 to 30 per cent greater than that of the employee. With the employer contribution in the calculations, the fund will end up with a surplus of some $40,000 in the same period!

Allegation: Civil servants get a better pension plan than most.

Fact: True. But they do not indicate why this is so. The fact is that for some 55 years civil servants have been paying into the fund a higher proportion of their income than any other employee group.

Allegation: The pension fund comprises only bookkeeping entries, it's a "fiction."

Fact: The fund is not there in piles of $1,000 bills, nor in gold bricks, but it is an obligation of the Canadian government just the same as Canada Savings Bonds. How the government manages that or any other money is the responsibility of those elected by all Canadians.

Allegation: The fund is in deficit and will therefore be an intolerable burden on all taxpayers, if not now, very soon!

Fact: The fund now stands at $7.2 billion. It pays out $200 million per year to pensioners. Civil servants presently pay in $200 million per year and their employer, the Canadian government, matches this with at least $200 million per year. And the fund earns interest at seven per cent — $500 million per year. With a net growth of over $700 million per year after a pay-out of $200 million per year, the fund isn't likely to be a burden on anyone!

I'm surprised that these distortions and dishonest presentations are being put forward by such a supposedly upright and honourable goup. — R. D. Barer, P. Eng., 2123 Sandowne Road.

Taxes

The time for filing income tax returns is drawing near, and after reading pleas for the reduction of the sales tax I began to think of the benefits my family has enjoyed. Living in B.C., our lifestyle includes not just the goods and services bought by the sweat of my husband's brow, but benefits provided by the combined taxes and premiums paid by all the citizens of Canada.

I know this happy state of affairs does not exist in all countries for as a child I lived in an underdeveloped country that had great wealth, little of which filtered down to the lowest economic level. Upon questioning my father about the freedom of the native children who did not have to attend school, wear confining clothes on hot days, or even have to wash each day, I received my first lesson on the harsh economic facts of life. Their families were so poor that an education was an impossible dream, being illiterate condemned them to menial jobs paying a pittance, which provided the humblest of homes, meagre food and clothing. So it had been for centuries. So it would be until the rich helped the poor.

In Canada a portion of our wealth is shared, and in B.C. we receive extra benefits because we pay extra taxes and premiums and so enjoy:

Three stable levels of government, federal, provincial and municipal, with armed forces, policemen and firemen ensuring us a safe, orderly community in which to live.

A free education for all, job success depending on individual effort not parental status.

Tax exemptions for places of worship. Libraries, museums, art galleries, symphonies and the performing arts subsidised for our intellectual enjoyment.

Sales of land, houses and cars recorded, firms offering shares for sale investigated, safeguarding our financial investments.

We blame our inflation on the nations who have sharply increased the price of the commodities they have to sell, e.g. oil and coffee. Perhaps the emerging nations are very apt pupils, emulating the coercive practices of our highly structured society and who can blame them for putting the screws on us for higher prices in their struggle to join the elitist nations? They know we are utterly dependent on oil and electricity, the two "slaves" that have provided us with our life of affluence, an affluence that has reached an absurd level when one-family homes are built with four or five bathrooms. They must think we are a constipated lot!

If all underdeveloped nations start charging higher prices for the raw materials and manufactured goods we need, then a more frugal lifestyle is staring us in the face, because the vicious circle of higher wages to meet higher prices can go on for ever, resulting in higher taxation for those in dire need. We had better be prepared to pay more for the goods and services necessary for a reasonable standard of living, and be prepared to share the wealth nationally and globally. — Ruby Pearson, 2085 Avondale Road.

Unemployed Union

Mr. Bennett, why can't there be formation of a union for the unemployed where the scale pay could be lower, but higher than welfare? Such a union could be used to build bridges to join the numerous islands to Vancouver Island which in turn could be formed to the mainland. This would eliminate costly ferries, improve transportation time and lower costs of goods. This would also create a tourist attraction bringing aditional dollars which in turn would eventually pay the cost of such an operation. I can think of many such operations such as this whereby B.C. could lower its unemployment, give people dignity of work and in the long run make B.C. richer economically and its people even more proud of their province. — Robert Northey, Cobble Hill.

Only Canadians

It was recently reported in the press that the prime minister had stated that "it is not by chance that there is a French governor-general, a French prime minister and a French commissioner of the RCMP. If this is what he really said he can be charged with blatant racism calculated to foment racial prejudice.

The governor-general and the prime minister are not French. What they are is Canadians of French ancestry. There is no such person as a French-Canadian or a German-Canadian or an Italian-Canadian, but only Canadians of French, German or Italian ancestry.

If the prime minister has been correctly reported there should be a public outcry in protest at his display of racism, a protest which will no doubt be expressed at the next general election. — H. S. Thuillier, 2424 Beach Drive.

CARE Was There

One year ago on Feb. 4 a disastrous earthquake in Guatemala killed 22,000 people and left over a million homeless. With your assistance I would like to express on behalf of CARE Canada our deep and sincere gratitude to all those generous Canadians whose contributions to CARE for the victims of the earthquake totalled over $400,000.

Immediately following the quake, CARE Canada's advisory board allocated $100,000 which enabled the CARE Guatemala staff to provide instant aid and begin emergency food distribution to 300,000 people each day. With the addition of CARE experts from nearby countries, water systems were quickly repaired to prevent a possible epidemic and temporary shelters, blankets and medical supplies were distributed.

As the funds came in from concerned Canadians, CARE Guatemala was able to address itself to the longer-term restoration of more permanent facilities. Priority was given to the construction of inexpensive quake-resistant houses to be built by the survivors themselves. CARE's model was a simple structure with a lightweight zinc roof. The agency also provided tools, support poles, bracing and rafter rods as well as training the people how to build their homes. To date over 12,000 of CARE's projected 21,000 houses have been completed, 10 million pounds of food distributed to more than 450,000 people and 150 water systems restored in one of the hardest hit areas of Guatemala. — Thomas Kines, National Director, CARE, Ottawa.

Restraint?

Three years retroactive pay to a select group of already handsomely-paid public employees would appear to be overly generous. The more so, following on the heels of the so-called budget of restraint.

The extent of the increase would also tend to make the Anti-Inflation Board appear quite a sham.

In a year which was referred to in the speech from the throne as being a very critical one with regard to upcoming contract negotiations with organized labor, this is difficult to understand. It is now to be expected that labor will politely tell the provincial government that, when it practises what it preaches, a willing ear will listen. And rightly so.

I am sure that the labor bosses will not be as stupid as our provincial government appears to be.

If the managers of our provincial affairs have so much money to throw around, why not a reduction in the provincial income tax, which would benefit most of our citizens?—Non-Union Observer.

Great Men

It was with an intense feeling of gratification that I read in the Feb. 2 issue of the Times two letters to the editor.

One was written by a lad of 16 years Robert White, and the other by a gentleman of four score years and plus, A Sad Pioneer.

To me, both are great men, because they represent those who have the ability to exclude narrow parochial pettiness when giving consideration to this great land of ours. It is reassuring to know that there are English-speaking Canadians who hold such feeling, and are doing what they can for Canada — as exemplified by such men. Surely none of us are so naive as to suggest that they do not have their counterparts among French-speaking Canadians.

I hope it is not indicative of our sometimes questionable priorities, that one of these gentlemen is too young, and the other past the age of being caught in the swirling vortex of trying to "make it." No there are a great many who are thinking as clearly.

I believe the news media are the most potent force in Canada today. And if their ranks are permeated with enough employees who have sufficient courage, and have as intense a love of our country as have the authors of the two letters referred to, they will surely begin to make a much greater effort to portray events and issues in a manner that will encourage all of us to work towards an even greater Canada. — A. E. Rogerson, Victoria.

Seat Belt Law

It is unfortunate that we have a provincial government that is too gutless to govern. We were promised mandatory seat belt legislation but the government is now backing off because of vocal "free enterprisers" in its party. These people, who object to the legislation because it allegedly infringes on personal liberties, clearly do not have any brains to worry about them being spattered all over their windshields.

As a specialist who has seen countless young lives ended or needlessly ruined in car and motorcycle accidents because of irrecoverable brain or spinal cord damage, I know that any measure to end this tragic waste of human potential is essential. I also know that in countries and provinces where mandatory seat belt legislation has been enacted, there has been a dramatic reduction in death and serious disability. Our government knows this too and their inaction is all the more surprising for a dollar oriented government. These patients often need weeks of intensive care at $200 a day, followed by months of acute and rehabilitation care at $100 a day, and even then the person may be so damaged that they may not be able to play a useful part in society and represent a handicapped pension for life.

With one stroke of the legislative pen, the government could dramatically reduce this human tragedy, substantially reduce the costs of medical care and also other long term costs like welfare and handicapped allowances, and in addition ease the pressure on our overcrowded hospitals. Come on Mr. Bennett, show some leadership and govern and stop kowtowing to the brainless utterances of a few noisy Socreds. — Charles A. Simpson, M.B., 1900 Richmond Road.

Nielsen's Delusion

We were pleased to read your Feb. 2 story Bierman Gets Carte Blanche. Bierman claimed the government was trying to shut him up and Environment Minister Jim Nielsen admitted at one point that he considered it questionable that an employee of the government receive money for lampooning that government."

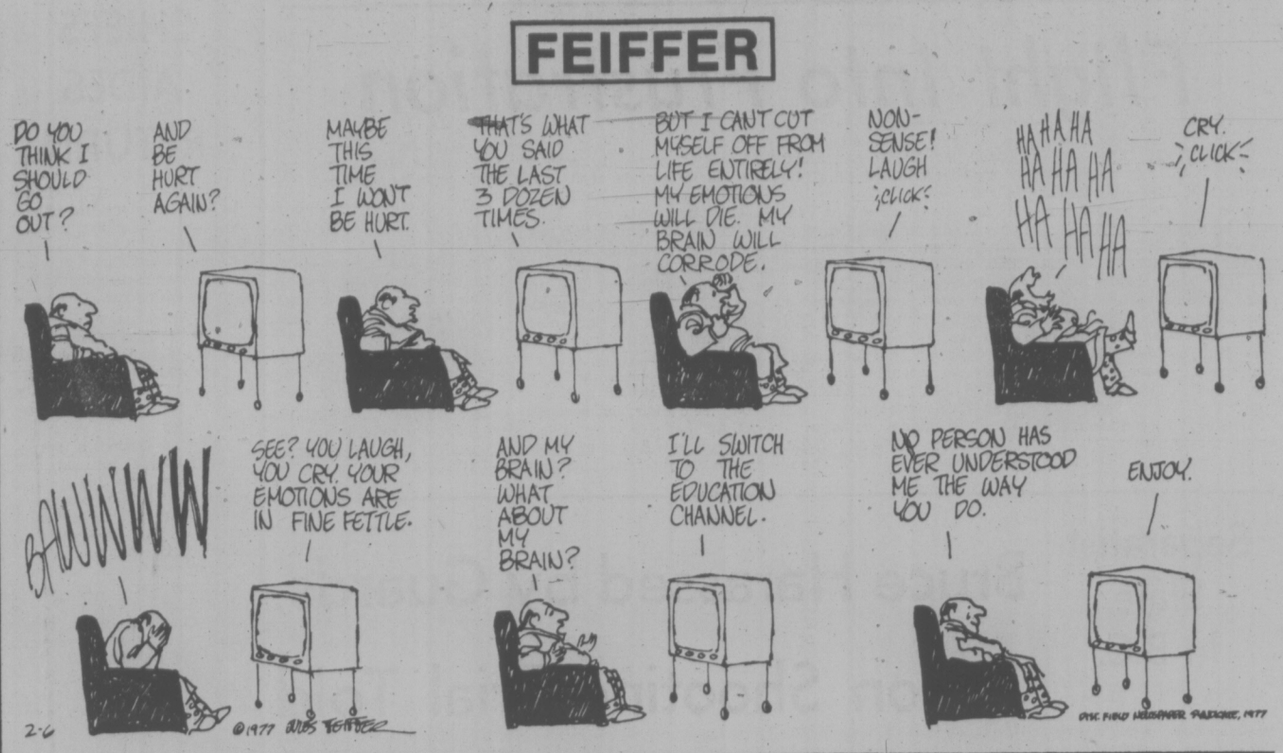
Nielsen, as a good Socred, is under the delusion that his government pays the salaries of civil servants. Mr. Nielsen's government is the servant of us taxpayers, who pay all the salaries, including the questionable expense of his own.—K. Harbin, Victoria.

Shabby Treatment

I would like to comment on the shabby treatment afforded Terri Durshell by Victoria city hall. She took the only dignified way out after being more or less publicly humiliated, she told them to "stick it."

What's more newsworthy, though, is the media's downplaying of a blatant case of sex discrimination, and city council's reluctance to discuss it.

Don't worry Terri, a lot of people will remember, come ballot box time, that the only qualifications you lacked were male genitals. — P. Draper, Sidney.



The Plight of Quebec's Anglophones

By DOMINIQUE CLIFT
Montreal Star

A letter to the editor, which appeared last week under the signature of I. Kessler, makes some extremely interesting points about the plight of the English-speaking community in Montreal following the election of the Parti Quebecois.

One aspect of the problem is that the attitudes of the new government — which are basically inimical to the interests of the English-speaking community — are often presented in the press from the nationalist Quebecois point of view without effective rebuttal and without any adequate expression of the English-speaking points of view. According to Mr. Kessler, this tends to have a demoralizing effect and it results in what he calls a "Kafkaesque situation."

"There is a wrenching conflict between reality and statement involved here that the Anglophone cannot resolve on an individual basis. He is told that the PQ is honest, sincere, and has integrity, qualities which he associates with admirable deeds, yet he knows that the PQ government threatens his job and his self-respect.

"He was brought up on the ideals of freedom and personal worth and he is now being made to believe that it is natural for him to give up his rights for the benefit of a collectivity to which he cannot belong. The Anglophone will be able to come to grips with this conflict only through the actions of his own collectivity and this is where the English language press must play an important role," writes Mr. Kessler.

"These are times of momentous historic events. French Quebec has already jubilantly separated itself mentally into a distinct nation and this has automatically created a Quebec Anglophone nation of over a million people. For the English language press to fail to understand these developments and take part in them, would be to miss perhaps the most important events in our history," the writer adds.

The problem is to find a way of resisting the unjust pressures bearing on the English-speaking community exerted by a government which in other respects and for the time being appears to be progressive and enlightened.

But even if this were done, there is no certainty that it would alter the nature of the problem to any great extent. The pressures which now bear on the English-speaking community in Quebec do not proceed solely from unjust legislation such as Bill 22. There are social and economic forces at work which contribute in bringing about momentous changes. In a broad historical context, Bill 22 plus whatever discriminatory legislation the Parti Quebecois may cause to be enacted would play a somewhat marginal role in the gradual transformation of Quebec.

The beleaguered situation of the English-speaking community stems largely from the growing social and economic power of French institutions in Quebec and from the migration of industrial power towards southern Ontario. Bill 22 and sporadic nationalist agitation are merely irritants and provocations which at most serve only to accelerate long term trends.

The larger question of Quebec's political indpendence — which would seriously undercut the basis for the English-speaking community's present status — is another source of insecurity. Whether it is attained or not, the widespread support which the idea receives in the province exemplifies the French-speaking community's desire to exert a determining influence in shaping Quebec society in the future.

The defence of the English-speaking community's interests is therefore much more than a simple matter of legalistic and political argumentation. While it must certainly be concerned with individual laws and individual government decisions, this defence must take into account the type of interrelationships which should exist between the two main language communities.

Unfortunately there is little unanimity on this. Some people, relying on the fact that English is the prevailing language of business, feel that no adjustment at all is necessary and that the status quo should be maintained. Others, less closely identified with institutional structures and with corporate power, are moving towards personal integration into a predominantly French society.

But whatever personal attitudes and decisions exist, there seems to be as yet little organized community response to the threat of French nationalism beyond anxiety and suspicion. This may be at the source of the "Kafkaesque situation" noted by Mr. Kessler. Individuals find little community guidance in the personal moves they are called upon to make.

A complicating factor is that the two main language communities in the province live and work in almost complete isolation from each other. It is relatively easy to perceive how this can work to the economic disadvantage of French-speaking people. Anglophones are not as perceptive when it comes to the effects of isolation on their own interests and mobility.

Because of their lack of contacts and their ignorance of French society, most English-speaking people do not perceive the nature of the nationalist pressures bearing on them except in highly negative and stereotyped terms. Accordingly, they can not imagine what adjustments could be made at the personal and community levels that could prove realistic and effective. What we have is a generalized inability to cope.

A very serious handicap is that the social and economic leaders of the English-speaking community have a pronounced tendency to isolate themselves on the basis of wealth and of culture, something which their French-speaking counterparts are less prone to do. This only serves to accentuate the feelings of powerlessness of people in the middle occupational and income ranges.

A Gentleman's Gentleman

russell baker

I am planning to change butlers, but do not know how to break the news to Hudson. Last year he started to become insufferable. I put it down to advancing age. With those Sunday night pieties at the servants' table downstairs and his high-handed Presbyterian harshness toward the footman, he was turning into a common scold. The sour effect on the servants was plain in the decline in Mrs. Bridges' cooking.

That was bad enough, heaven knows, but when Hudson began injecting himself into upstairs life, it was quite intolerable. Lingering around the drawing room to eavesdrop on the family, ostentatiously scowling when I chose to see callers from the striving classes — well, it was often a struggle to hold one's temper in check.

As for his behavior on the occasion of poor Hazel's timely death, the less said the better. Suffice it to say that timely though Hazel's decease may have been to the rest of the family, Hudson's ill-disguised relief at her passing was scarcely what one expects of his butler on such occasions.

I was tempted to speak about it, but hesitated, thinking it might lower me in his esteem if I were to insist on a proper show of grief for a girl who, though married into the family had, after all, come of middle-class origin. I would have put it down to the crotchets of age and let it pass if, shortly afterward, I had not seen Bunter.

I had been aware of Bunter, of course, for the previous year or two. He was serving Lord Peter Wimsey, that idle, silly ass who amuses himself by playing detective between extended bouts of leisure. What first struck me about Bunter was his obvious superiority to Wimsey. I like a gentleman's gentleman who is more of a gentleman that his gentleman, and this is precisely what I was beginning to miss in Hudson.

It was obvious, for example, that Wimsey's brother, the Duke of Denver, deserved to be hanged, if not for murder, then for degrading the peerage with that unspeakable relationship with a woman of the agricultural classes. Wimsey's meddling prevented it, but I could not help admiring Bunter's display of pleasure in the Duke's rescue.

Nor could I help but reflect that Hudson, in the same situation, would have sulked about the house for days to show his displeasure in this patent miscarriage of justice. Bunter had the brand of loyalty a gentleman requires of his butler. None of that moralistic sincerity which was eroding Hudson's butling had infected Bunter.

As Hudson became increasingly self-important, I watched Bunter's service to Wimsey for the shallow fop he was, and still is. Imagine it. A man of the aristocracy, with limitless funds to advance himself in politics, philanthropy or horsemanship, yet content to scour the police blotter for felonies which give him a chance to prove he is smarter than the constabulary. There is Wimsey for you. A man whose sole ambition is to show off for policemen.

A less butler than Bunter — and I am afraid I am thinking here of poor old Hudson — would find it impossible to contain his contempt for serving such a ninny. Yet Bunter, except for a slight upward curl of amusement to his lips, never once revealed that he regarded Wimsey as anything less than a fullwit. It was doubtful that a butler of this superiority could be enticed to more civilized service.

This winter, however, I have become encouraged. Wimsey went vacationing in Scotland, where, with his usual instinct for the police blotter, he found a violent death which had occurred under circumstances vulnerable to amateur meddling. In the process, his indifference to Bunter became infuriating to me, and I suspect, to Bunter.

Bunter was compelled by Wimsey's lack of foresight to prepare meals in an open yard. When Bunter revealed a talent for watercolors, Wimsey's forced smile of faint praise made it plain that he, Wimsey, thought he could easily, if he were so disposed, top Bunter's watercolors as easily as he topped the police.

For the ultimate indignity, Wimsey insisted that Bunter impersonate a corpse and, in this role, tossed Bunter into a rumble seat, threw a bicycle on him and came within a foot of tossing him from a cliff.

Bunter never once protested, but there was a new grimness in the set of his jaw and something in his eyes that suggested his loyalty had buckled. I am toying with the idea of sending Hudson to Wimsey when Bunter runs to me for cover. I rather fancy seeing Hudson in a rumble seat under a bicycle, and if Wimsey throws him in front of a train I know that Bunter will be able to gauge my grief precisely and, with impeccable taste, display neither more nor less.

That's the only way you'll be able to determine how much you'll get out of it. Some financial institutions may offer a higher interest rate, but they may also ask for annual administration fees or initiation fees and your money may be locked in. When you buy a Registered Retirement Savings Plan in the Permanent's Guaranteed Fund, there won't be any annual administration fee or initiation fee.

As far as your money's concerned, we're very flexible. That's why, combined with interest compounded monthly and a low close-out fee, our RRSP nets out a lot better than most.

And remember, our Guaranteed Fund has out-performed those of most major companies over the last few years.

We also offer a choice of an Equity Fund or a Fixed Income Fund. You can even open a RRSP in your husband or wife's name. It's something you may like to consider.

If you're planning to open a RRSP this year or considering a transfer, come in and see us at the Permanent branch nearest you.

Flight Into Frustration

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air flight 401 had no trouble getting off the ground, but staying off the ground was another matter.

The Boeing 747 jet left Vancouver International Airport at 7:20 p.m. Monday in a third attempt to fly passengers to the Orient. Twice before, more than 200 passengers had boarded CP Air's Empress of Japan and twice they had ended up back where they had started.

The story of the fickle flight began Sunday when 220 passengers and 17 crew members bound for Tokyo and Hong Kong boarded flight 401 at the airport here.

Just two hours out of Vancouver, the jet was forced to return when it was discovered that one of its four engines was using too much oil.

The same passenger and a different crew took off at 6:30 a.m. Monday but before they could get into their first cup of coffee, a warning light indicated that the jet's landing gear had not retracted and the plane again came home.

Monday's aborted flight landed afely at 8:07 a.m. after first jettisoning most of its 125,000 pounds of fuel at 10,000 feet over the Pacific.

CP Air spokesman Reid Moir explained that "at this height, the fuel evaporates before it can hit the water."

Because flight 401 was an originating flight, passengers were, for the most part, able to return to their homes Sunday.

Monday's problem was "only a minor electrical malfunction," said Moir, but because CP Air hangers were filled, arrangements had to be made to use an Air Canada hangar so that the plane's undercarriage could be examined.

"The problem has been mainly one of inconvenience," said Moir.

He said CP Air agents in Hong Kong and Japan had advised hotels and other interested parties that the flight was delayed.

Not all the passengers chose to wait for flight 401 to stay off the ground, however.

By Monday night, the number of passengers had dropped to 203 from the original 220, Moir said.

CHIEFS' AIDES RETURN

BURNABY (CP)—Three Burnaby assistant fire chiefs, dismissed two weeks ago for their refusal to sign a pledge of support for Chief Thomas Nairn, were scheduled to return to work today.

The 200-member Burnaby local of the International Firefighter's Association voted 105 to 39 Monday to accept an agreement with Burnaby council revoking the dismissals.

The vote ended a seven-month dispute between city council and the union that began with the appointment of Nairn, former Yukon fire marshal, over the applications of four department officers.

Burnaby council endorsed the agreement minutes after the union vote.

Bill Copeland, union president, said the agreement allows the assistant chiefs "to go back to work with their pride and dignity intact and at the same time serves to ensure the efficiency of the department."

Assistant chiefs Basil Pontifex, Harry Anderson and Bud Morrison have been reinstated without loss of pay. The agreement calls on the union and the three men to "recognize Thomas Nairn as head of the fire department."

The union also "agrees to do everything within its power to assure" that a new administrative structure for the department works effectively.

The new structure includes a policy-making board of administration comprising the chief, deputy chief and the four assistant chiefs.

The agreement makes no mention of the pledges the assistant chiefs were asked to sign or a petition circulated in October questioning Chief Nairm's qualifications for his job.

Ottawa Plans 78% Boost In Home Repair Funding

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government will increase budgeting for residential rehabilitation programs by 78 per cent this year, Andre Ouellet, minister of state for urban affairs, said Monday.

The budget will increase to $107 million from $60 million, the federal minister told the annual convention fo the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada.

Ouellet said the popularity of the government's residential rehabilitation assistance program (RRAP) went "far beyond our expectations" in 1976.

The government had budgeted $60 million for it last year but had run out of money by September.

"For this year, a total of $107 million is available for RRAP, which should be enough, we hope, to handle all requirements," Ouellet said.

RRAP provides financial help for repairing and restoring homes in designated areas of urban centres.

"Although we tend to emphasize the need for new housing, which is obviously our first consideration, we cannot overlook the continuing importance of conserving present stock."

Ouellet also called for wider home warranty programs to include rented housing, co-operatives and condominiums, as well as separate dwellings.

The minister said in his address that he will soon meet provincial officials to discuss a broader warranty program.

He said he is pleased new home warranty programs now are in effect in all provinces. The warranties cover failure to comply with provincial and federal building codes for one year. There is usually a five-year warranty against structural defects.

Ouellet said he wants home warranties to apply to all housing built with National Housing Act assistance.

Transit Talks Eyed

VANCOUVER (CP) Andre Ouellet, federal minister of state for urban affairs, said Monday that a tri-level federal-provincial-municipal conference might be held later this year to discuss the cost of rapid transit.

It is too early for Ottawa to make commitments, but "we at the federal level cannot avoid this great demand on the municipalities," Ouellet said, following a meeting with Vancouver Mayor Jack Volrich.

The minister said public transit costs are emerging as a tremendous problem in major cities across Canada, and added that Ottawa is sympathetic to municipal requests for funds.

Separatist Slate In B.C.

DELTA (AP) — There will be a full slate of separatist candidates in the next provincial election, according to the head of a group promoting an independent Western Canada.

Edward Fleming, president of the recently-formed Western Canada Party, as well as the leaders of other Western Canadian separatist organizations, say the goal is to carve out a nation composed of British Columbia, Alberta, the Yukon and perhaps other provinces.

Provincial elections in British Columbia and Alberta are expected to be held no later than 1979.

"If we win we'll go independent immediately," said Fleming.

In the next several years, Fleming believes the 110-year-old Canadian confederation will split into five independent nations.

Disintegration has begun and is not confined to Quebec, where the separatist parti Quebecois won an election victory in November, he said.

"We'll abolish goddamn Ottawa. Who needs it?"

He claims to have pledges of $1 million from business people, mainly in the Vancouver area.

Bruce Harassed by Guards, Prison Shooting Trial Told

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —A British Columbia Penitentiary prisoner told a B.C. Supreme Court trial Monday that guards at the institution hated and harassed Andrew Bruce.

Bruce, Dwight Lucas and Claire Wilson are charged with unlawful confinement and attempting to extort transportation in connection with a hostage-taking incident at the prison June 9, 1975.

During the incident, classification officer Mary Steinhauser was fatally shot when prison guards stormed the room where she and 14 other hostages were held.

Prisoner Jack McCann testified Monday that guards persecuted Bruce and told him he would be returned to the institution's solitary confinement unit a few days before the hostage-taking incident.

"One time he (Bruce) requested a transcript of some trial," said McCann. "The guards threw it away. He had very little chance to see his classification officer and sometimes went two or three days without toilet paper.

"The guards would also point their guns at him and play with the trigger."

Lawyers for the three accused have argued that fear of being returned to solitary confinement lead to the hostage-taking.

McCann said that in early June, guard Albert Hollinger told Bruce "he didn't care what his position was around the prison, he was going back up to the hole."

At the time, Bruce was secretary of the prisoners' community awareness group and active in the native group. McCann said Bruce was affable and easy-going before his time in solitary confinement.

"After being in solitary confinement, he was quiet, moody and wouldn't communicate with anyone," said McCann. "The guards were always around him."

McCann, who has escaped from prisons five times, said he fled from the B.C. Penitentiary on one occasion because he was told he would be sent to solitary confinement.

"I feared being returned to solitary confinement," said McCann. "I had a lot of bad experiences . . . there was mental and physical deterioration.

"Many times an inmate is placed in solitary confinement on the whim of an officer. Suspicion is reason enough for them putting you in solitary."

McCann said he has "never overcome" his experience in solitary. "I still fear that if I ever go back to solitary, I'll never come out alive."

Jobless Linked To College Cuts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial cutbacks of funding to community colleges is contributing to future unemployment and encouraging the importation of foreign workers, the president of the College Faculties Federation of British Columbia said Monday.

Mary Robinson said problems in the community college system "are based on the growing trend towards intervention by department of education officials in decisions regarding program development services to the college regions."

Government restraints have reduced enrolment, she said and are denying unemployed workers the chance to improve their skills and rejoin the work force.

The result, he said, is that Canada soon may face a shortage of skilled workers at a time when unemployment is rising.

Robinson made her remarks in a statement issued at the end of a week of meetings with provincial caucuses of all parties.

Bill Armstrong, chairman of the Universities council of British Columbia, said earlier that resource technology research in B.C. is threatened by a cutoff of federal grants and drying up provincial fund sources.

He disagreed with a statement by Education Minister Pat McGeer that the province cannot afford to set up a separate body to fund university research.

Armstrong said in an interview the education department has not given B.C.'s three universities — UVic, University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser — enough funds to even maintain current standards.

A WAGON BUILT TO CARRY CARGO MORE PRECIOUS THAN GROCERIES.

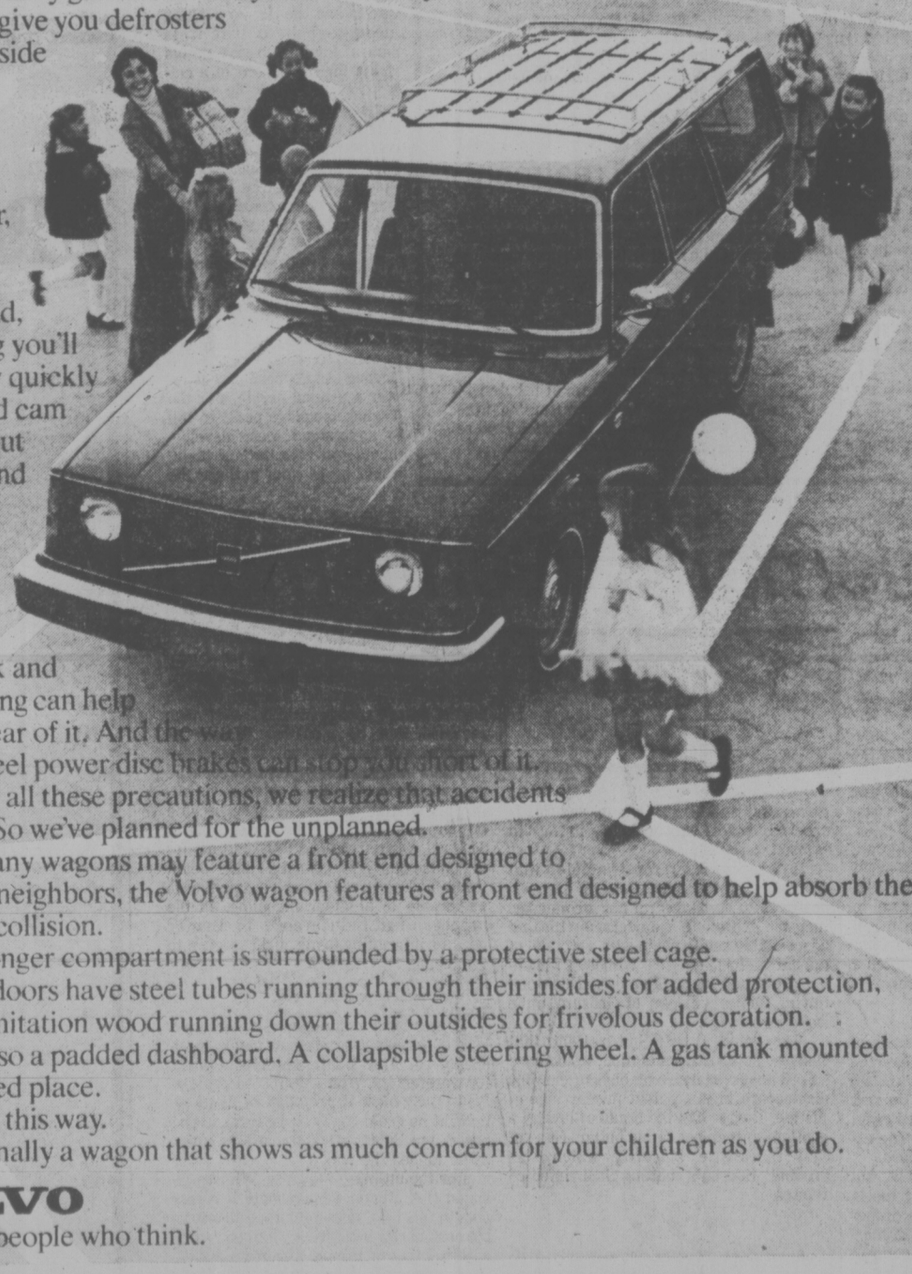
The Volvo wagon, on the other hand, was designed to take a load off your mind as a parent.

Volvo realizes, for example, that it's impossible to keep both eyes on the road if you have to keep one eye on the back seat.

So to keep the kids in place, we provide you with things like child-proof door locks on all the rear doors. Including the back one.

And to virtually guarantee that you can focus your attention on the road at all times, we give you defrosters for the front side windows, and the rear window comes with its own wiper, washer, and defroster.



On the road, the first thing you'll notice is how quickly our overhead cam engine can put trouble behind you. Should trouble appear ahead, you'll appreciate the way our rack and pinion steering can help you steer clear of it. And the way our four-wheel power disc brakes can stop you short of it.

In spite of all these precautions, we realize that accidents do happen. So we've planned for the unplanned.

Where many wagons may feature a front end designed to impress the neighbors, the Volvo wagon features a front end designed to help absorb the impact of a collision.

Our side doors have steel tubes running through their insides for added protection, instead of imitation wood running down their outsides for frivolous decoration.

Look at it this way.

There's finally a wagon that shows as much concern for your children as you do.

No Need To Resign —Iona

OTTAWA (CP)—Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo said Monday she has resolved enough of her differences with Transport Minister Otto Lang over West Coast ferry service and will not have to resign from cabinet.

She said in an interview that the government has agreed to a $10 rebate for residents making round trips to Prince Rupert, B.C., on third-level air carriers.

Also, the passenger ferry Malibu Princess will be withdrawn Feb. 28 from service between the Islands and the mainland, she said.

Third level air carriers are those that serve local areas as compared to the first-level national carriers and second-level provincial and inter-provincial carriers.

Mrs. Campagnolo threatened late last year to quit the cabinet if Lang did not improve service for residents of her Skeena riding. The threat came in the wake of protests by West Coast residents when the government withdrew a subsidy to Northland Navigation and replaced it with the Malibu Princess and barge freight service.

Another freight company will begin to offer scheduled service in competition with Rivtow Ltd. a company that is handling the freight service along the northern B.C. coast without a subsidy.

Lang to Yield On 'User-Pay'

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Atlantic provinces won concessions in transportation policies from the federal government Monday, following a day-long meeting with federal Transport Minister Otto Lang.

Lang announced he would amend a bill before Parliament to allow transportation to be considered as a tool for economic development, reducing the previous emphasis on the "user-pay" concept.

Under the concept, the user of any federally supported transportation service would have to bear the full cost of the service, a policy which drew bitter objections from the Atlantic provinces.

2½-Hour Anti-Tax Speech Taxes Gov't

The NDP for Nickel Belt drank five glasses of water during his marathon talk, which he threatened to keep rolling until Friday afternoon when he has an airplane to catch.

The subject was an income tax bill the NDP has opposed consistently since it was introduced. The only way the government can stop him talking is to impose a time limit on debate, a closure technique used rarely to end debate when the government is in a hurry to get a bill passed.

In the Rodriguez case, the government has no other choice, spokesmen for both the NDP and Liberals said.

Under parliamentary rules, the first opposition member to speak on third reading — final approval stage of a bill—has no time limits on this speech, unless the government establishes a time limit.

Although Progressive Conservatives usually are the first speakers, they would not put a first speaker up to debate the tax bill, said NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles, who engineered the filibuster behind the scenes.

At 4:25 p.m. Rodriguez rose to speak and Knowles advised him to keep going, that he had unlimited time to talk.

At 5 p.m., when debating time was finished until 8 p.m. Knowles explained to his younger colleague that unlimited time really meant just that.

"He came back to the office and all of us went to work for two hours over the dinner break," said Alan Pryde, one of the six NDP assistants who gathered as many arguments on paper as they could for Rodriguez's speech.

But Rodriguez, who turns 40 on Saturday, went without notes for most of his speech—loaded with insults, verbal barbs, quotes from the Bible and the words to "Hallelujah, I'm a bum," a Depression song.

"It's a record for recent times," said Knowles, obviously pleased with his scheme.

Textile Quota Attacks 'Lies'

OTTAWA (CP) — Clothing importers, retailers and consumers were accused of lying as the federal government's textile and clothing board opened public hearings here Monday.

The charge came from Irvine Wizmar, president of the Appeal Manufacturers Association of Ontario, who said reaction from spokesmen outside his industry to the government's latest import quotas has been hysterical and emotional.

In November the government reduced the amount of foreign-produced clothing allowed into the country after Canadian manufacturers said they needed a bigger bite of the domestic clothing market to prevent laying off workers and closing mills.

The Consumers Association of Canada (CAC), various importers and retailers organizations predicted the price of clothes would increase and that certain types of clothes — children's flannel pyjamas, for example — would not be available to Canadian suppliers as a result.

"The attitude of the consumer organization completely astounds us," Wizmar said in a brief to the board.

It appeared the CAC is "encouraging the low standard of living in the low-wage exporting countries in order that they may enjoy low-cost imported clothing and, at the same time, the high wages in Canada."

He labelled as false charges that some types of clothes will not be available on the Canadian market because of the new import restrictions.

When asked by board chairman G. L. Bennett whether he knew of any Canadian manufacturer willing to produce reasonably priced cotton t-shirts, Wizmar replied:

"I'd like to have the challenge but not at any price."

Bennett said a t-shirt supplier in Western Canada has unsuccessfully asked nine clothing manufacturers in Eastern Canada to make them. The board had concluded that the companies were either unwilling or did not have the capacity.

Provinces Owe $350M 'Overpayments'

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government intends to recover about $350 million from the provinces for "overpayments" for shared-cost programs of health and education, legislation introduced in the Commons Monday indicates.

The $350 million figure is included in background papers to a bill introduced by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald that provides for a five-year renewal of tax-sharing agreements between Ottawa and the provincial governments.

U.S. TOURISTS DOWN 6.8%

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of U.S. residents visiting Canada in 1976 dropped by 6.8 per cent from 1975 totals to 32.2 million, state preliminary estimates released Monday by Statistics Canada.

Canadian residents returning from the U.S., including Hawaii, increased by between eight and nine per cent to 35.9 million.

Canadian tourism industry spokesmen have said the decrease in U.S. visiotrs was at least in part due to decisions by Americans to stay at home during their Bicentennial celebrations.

Residents of overseas countries visiting Canada rose to 1.6 million, an increase of 18.8 per cent, largely due to the Montreal Olympic Games. Canadian residents returning from countries other than the U.S. also totalled 1.6 million, an increase of 11.4 per cent.

Grizzly Gas Promised To Alta.—Macdonald

When the Social Credit government announced the Grizzly Valley Pipeline proposal, much of the natural gas for the line was committed to an Alberta company, an NDP MLA said Monday.

Alex Macdonald said in question period in the legislature that Quasar Petroleum Ltd. has commitments to sell its gas to the Alberta company at the time the announcement was made Dec. 10.

The Vancouver East MLA said outside the legislature Quasar was to sell its gas to Alberta and Southern Gas, a subsidiary of Pacific Gas, of San Francisco.

Macdonald said the fact that the government went ahead with its announcement of the $100-million-pipeline even though it had no guarantee of supply is another indication of poor planning.

In the legislature, Premier Bill Bennett said when he made the pipeline announcement it was his belief that all gas in the valley, in the northeast part of B.C., was available for the pipeline.

Bennett, along with Energy Minister Jack Davis, took on notice questions from Macdonald about when the B.C. Petroleum Corp. sent a letter to Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. authorizing the line.

Macdonald told reporters as far as he knows, Quasar still has not been released from its agreement with Alberta and Southern.

He said this complication in the proposal means "the government certainly hasn't done its homework."

PHILLIPS
. . . estimates scored

Phillips First Under Fire

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips caught the first round of opposition flak as the legislature Monday entered its first day of debate on estimates.

Phillips, told the opposition his ability to run his department is impaired by the Grizzly Valley pipeline controversy, was the first minister to have his spending estimates open to opposition questioning.

Expenses estimated for Phillips' office for the next fiscal year are $141,324, up from $95,304 last year. The minister's office estimates cover only the salary of Phillips and the salary and expenses of his staff.

NDP economic development critic Gary Lauk (Vancouver Centre) questioned whether Phillips should step down until his image is "repaired or until there is a new minister to salvage the office."

Lauk charged that the information leaks from Phillips' office — "leaks from the bottom, leaks from the middle, leaks from the top" — made it difficult for private companies to deal with his ministry.

"Does he expect companies to fill out confidential forms when he (Phillips) hasn't the judgment to hire staff that know what confidential means?" Lauk asked.

Two of Phillips' personal aides resigned over possible conflicts of interests regarding the Grizzly Valley pipeline.

The ministry of economic development is the "nerve centre, the salesman" for the entire province, Lauk said, but the Social Credit government has done nothing to keep abreast of growing unemployment.

Phillips, in a short speech which opened debate on his estimates, said his ministry is forming a general development strategy designed to improve stability of employment, incomes and prices, and balanced regional development.

Lauk complimented Phillips' deputy minister Sandy Peel for writing the speech, and said it was the same one he (Lauk) had delivered two years ago when he was economic development minister.

Funeral For Eddie Wednesday

BURNABY (CP) — Funeral services will be held Wednesday for John McRae Eddie, a long-time CCF and NDP member of the British Columbia legislature and veteran leader of the New Westminster local of the International Workers of America.

He died Sunday at age 76.

Eddie represented the provincial riding of New Westminster for 17 years, starting in 1952 with his upset victory over then-premier Byron Johnson, who ran as a Liberal.

Born in Glencoe, Ont., he grew up in Saskatchewan and moved to British Columbia in 1922. He retired from politics and union work in 1969.

Road Bid Accepted

North American Road Limited of Edmonton has been awarded $3.4 million contract to construct seven miles of Highway 97 to a new bridge over the Kiskatinaw River, 24 miles south of Fort St. John in northwestern British Columbia.

North American Road submitted the lowest of five tenders for the job—just over $2.4 million—but the total cost will be $3,440,000 including materials and engineering supervision.

Trades Training Council Planned

The government will introduce legislation this session to create an occupational training council to establish vocational training priorities in B.C.

Education Minister Pat McGeer said it would implement most of the recommendations of the report of the commission on vocational, technical and trades training, tabled in the legislature Monday.

The commission, chaired by Dean H. Goard, said formation of the council, which would also allocate government funds for vocational and trades training, is its foremost recommendation.

McGeer said the recommendations of the report were anticipated by the government and funds for implementation have been set aside in the budget for fiscal year 1977-78.

He said his ministry will work in conjunction with the ministry of labor in presenting legislation to implement many of the report's suggestions.

The report "is something which will have a major impact in the future direction of education in this province," McGeer said.

He said the commission, appointed last July, did "just a superb job . . . a tremendous service for the people of British Columbia."

He said the proposed legislation would go hand-in-hand with proposed changes to vocational training in secondary schools.

"Education has failed to meet the demands," said the minister. "That's why we established the commission."

B.C. Farm Support to Stay

KELOWNA (CP) — The provincial farm income assurance program will not be abandoned by the British Columbia government after all, Charles Bernhardt of Summerland, president of the B.C. Fruit Growers Association, said Monday.

He said a firm commitment was made to the executive of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture at a meeting with Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt on Jan. 31.

"He gave them a clear statement that there would be a program," Bernhardt said. "It will be a different one there will be a different method for determining costs, but I feel quite confident that the program is reasonable and will be responsible to all."

"The program will have a different title but there will be a program. We're not worried about semantics," he said.

He said one reason the program had to be changed is because B.C. moved more quickly than other provinces into the farm price stabilization field and now was being penalized by the federal government for it.

The federal program for beef recently ruled that B.C. beef producers were only eligible for 50 per cent of the subsidy which other provinces get because B.C. has its own support program.

The provincial act needs to be re-written to take better advantage of federal programs.

Previous to the fruit growers convention in January, no assurances of any kind had been received by any of the different agricultural fields, Bernhardt said.

PROPERTY TAX BILL IN FORCE

Legislation to eliminate some inequalities in British Columbia's property taxation system was given Royal assent by Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen Monday.

The Assessment Amendment Act, which gives courts of revision authority to reduce 1977 property assessments, is the first piece of legislation to be passed during the current session which began Jan. 13.

The new law also allows assessors to enter on the assessment roll property which was inadvertently omitted in the preparation of the 1974 assement roll.

Property assessments throughout the province are currently fixed by law at amounts equivglent to those shown on the 1974 assessment roll.

Oyster River Marina Approved, Despite Report

NIELSEN
. . . objections noted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A long-suppressed government report advises against a marina project on Vancouver Island which was recently approved by Environment Minister Jim Nielsen, according to the Vancouver Sun.

The marina access channel, which has caused controversy since 1972, involves the plans of a developer for a large marina-resort complex at the mouth of the Oyster River between Courtenay and Campbell River.

The evening newspaper said when Nielsen last month approved the plans of the developer, Pacific Playgrounds Ltd., he did not mention or release a social impact report on the project which was commissioned by the provincial government.

The report's key recommendation states: "On balance, the Pacific Playground access channel-breakwater proposal is not socially desirable and the foreshore lease should not be granted."

The deep water channel and breakwater through the Oyster River delta is needed by the developer to provide 24-hour access from Georgia Strait to a marina accommodating up to 350 boats.

When Nielsen approved the project last month he said studies "have not revealed any substantive reason either environmentally or technically for denying the application."

But the minister made no mention of the "social impact assessment" carried out for the government in 1975 by Dr. Bentley Le Baron on leave from Brock University at St. Cathatines, Ont. He wrote his report after holding a series of public meetings in Courtenay, Oyster River and Campbell River.

Nielsen denied on Monday that the Le Baron report had been ignored.

"We didn't ignore it," Nielsen said. "We took that report's recommendations along with others and made our final decision to let the project go ahead."

Nielsen noted that while Le Baron had recommended against the project going ahead, he had also stated that if the lands department should permit it to proceed, certain requirements should be met.

"We met most of those requirements," Nielsen said. "A bridge across the new access, public access to the existing river banks and in general, I think, we accommodated what Le Baron recommended."

Nielsen tabled the Le Baron report shortly before the legislature adjourned Monday.

Le Baron states in his report that the foreshore which would be crossed by the channel-breakwater is "part of a provincial order-in-council recreation reserve dating from 1937."

The report states there is widespread appreciation of the recreation reserve as public domain and "strong feelings that it would be violated if it were crossed by a private lease and channel-breakwater."

The report goes on to say that "preservation of relatively undeveloped natural surroundings" are of value to many residents and visitors.

The original head of Pacific Playgrounds, George Ward, said in 1973 that he dreamed of creating "another Coney Island" on his property beside the river.

Ward is no longer with the Calgary-based company and has been replaced by P. A. R. Nissen.

Another company spokesman, Ross MacBeth, who works for Nanaimo Realty, said the original Ward plans are "fundamentally unchanged." He said the company now is proceeding with applications to the federal department of the environment. Once federal approval has been appointed, said MacBeth, construction of the development will start.

Ohlemann Apologizes To 'NDP' Colleagues

Environment ministry employee Klaus Ohlemann issued a public apology Monday to the co-workers he named as NDPers in a controversial letter sent to the premier's office in December, 1975.

Ohlemann, in a statement released through his lawyer, said his letter to Dan Campbell of the premier's office could not be characterized as a "blacklist."

The letter, released by the NDP last week, named eight of Ohlemann's co-workers in the lands management branch of the ministry of environment as NDPers.

The letter was forwarded by Campbell to Environment Minister Jim Nielsen. After the letter was made public by the opposition, several of those named demanded a public apology and retraction from Ohlemann.

"The letter was not, by any stretch of the imagination, a blacklist," Ohlemann says in the statement.

"It was not written at anyone's request and indeed, I received no response whatever to it."

Ohlemann says he wrote to Campbell to reflect his personal opinion that within the civil service there may have been some who might not "sympathize with the policies of the hten newly-elected provincial administration."

"I did not mean to suggest or imply that, whatever the privately-held political sympathies of any of these public servants, these sympathies would prevent them from serving the current administration with the sense of dedication and non-partisanship that is the tradition of the public service," he says.

Ohlemann apologizes in his statement for any embarrassment to the persons named and says that "such was not my intention."

Environment Minister Nielsen said he was prepared to accept Ohlemann's explanation of his letter, "but I don't know if the people named in the letter will accept it.'

He said he did not know anything about Ohlemann's job status and that anything to do with the job was up to the Public Service Commission.

Nielsen met Ohlemann late last week, but said at the time they did not discuss Ohlemann's job plans.

Ohlemann has been off work since last Friday but is expected to return today.

His lawyer indicated Ohlemann will not grant press interviews.

Broadcaster Settles Suit

VNCOUVER CP) — An out-of-court settlement of an undisclosed sum was announced today in alibel action against broadcaster Gary Bannerman and Radio N.W. Ltd., owner-operator of station CKNW.

Lawyer Allan McEachern, representing four former associates of Dunhill Development Corp. Ltd., told the B.C. Supreme Court that his client has accepted an apology and a suitable amount of damages.

McEachern said the action concerned an unfounded allegation, broadcast by Bannerman in February, 1974, that the four had engaged in improper inside trading in Dunhill shares prior to the company's purchase by the provincial government in January, 1974.

Whonnock

Expanding operations helped Whonnock Industries Ltd. record increased profits of $2.2 million or $1.20 a share last year, compaed with $1.5 million or 83 cents a share in 1975. Chester Johnson, company president, says in the shareholders report for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30 that sales last year reached a record $43.5 million, compared with $25.8 million for 1975. The company established a Washington State subsidiary — Garrett-Weldco Industries Ltd.—with the purchase of Garrett Enumclaw Co. in Enumclaw, Wash. Whonnock announced last September that it also purchased for $10 million the coastal operations of Triangle Pacific Ltd., now called the Pacific Pine division, which included a sawmill, planer mill and 45 acres of industrial land in New Westminster.

Pacific Northern

Pacific Northern Gas Ltd. reports that earnings for 1976 were $1,228,698 or 97 cents a share. This was up from $572,483 or 48 cents a share for 1975, the year the forest industry was hit by a 92-day strike. Pacific, an associate of Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd., supplies natural gas to the area between Prince George and Kitimat. Many of its major customers are pulp mills. Sales rose to $13,428,541 from $10,070,269. The company paid preference dividends of $337,000.

U.S. Importing Half Its Oil

WASHINGTON (WP) — The cold winter and the natural-gas shortage means that the United States is now importing half the oil it burns every day.

Figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute, a major industry organization, show that oil imports averaged more than 8.7 million barrels a day for the month of January, an increase of more than 30 per cent over January's imports a year ago and the highest monthly import average in the nation's history.

More than half the oil imported into the U.S. in January came from Middle East countries like Saudi Arabia, Iran and Kuwait.

Energy experts in the Carter administration said they believe the high level of oil imports will continue at least through the rest of the winter, partly because of the cold weather, partly because of the shortage of natural gas and partly because U.S. domestic-oil production continues to decline and cannot meet the rising demand.

The Carter administration now estimates that the oil-import bill for the U.S. this year will be $40 billion, which would be an increase of $6 billion over the $34 billion paid out in 1976. At the same time Federal Energy Administrator John F. O'Leary concedes there are so many uncertainties that the import bill could be higher than $40 billion.

"A lot depends on how many consumers in California and the Pacific Northwest have to switch to oil because of the drought and the shortage of water power," O'Leary said. "A lot also depends on when natural-gas users who have already made the switch to oil can move back to natural gas."

One reason for soaring oil imports is the bitter cold experienced in January by the eastern two-thirds of the nation, which sent demands rising for kerosene and home heating oil. The same cold weather resulted in skyrocketing demand for electricity, much of which was generated by oil-burning electric plants.

The natural-gas shortage stimulated oil and electricity demand, as factories using gas switched to oil, and as homeowners burning gas for heat turned down their thermostats and switched to electric heat.

FRISCO STAFF GUARDED

SAN FRANCISCO UPI) — Government officials are working under armed guard at San Francisco City Hall because of bombings and threats by the terrorist New World Liberation Front.

Extraordinary security measures went into effect Monday at the building on orders of Police Chief Charles Gain after a car belonging to District Attorney Joseph Freitas was blown up at his home.

Police funneled persons into city hall through only two doors. Officers using hand-held metal detectors checked visitors for weapons and searched some of those entering.

Each member of the board of supervisors travels with a personal bodyguard. Freitas and Mayor George Moscone also have bodyguards.

In addition, police have instituted round-the-clock stakeouts at the homes of these top city officials. Patrol cars also check the homes every hour.

"It's sad, but at least the employees will know they've got some security," said Moscone of the police effort, reportedly costing the city an extra $5,000 a day.

"It's better than being blown up," said Margaret Maguire, assistant clerk of the city board of superviors.

Carter Mutes The Trumpets

WASHINGTON Reuter) — President Carter said Monday there will be less pomp and ceremony when foreign dignitaries visit Washington. "There will not be the same number of people greeting or the same number of trumpets sounding as there has been in the past," he told a cabinet meeting at the White House.

GUNMAN FREES WIFE

LOWELL, Fla. AP) — Carrying two guns and a roll of $100 bills, convicted murderer Richard Lee Williams broke into Florida's prison for women to free his wife, who was serving a life term for murder.

"It's the first time anybody's broken into one of our major institutions — and broken out again," said Herbert Kelley, regional prison system director.

Police, on a statewide alert, and bloodhounds could find no trace of the fleeing couple.

The escape occurred Sunday when Williams, who broke out of another prison in northern Florida last month, cut through the chain link fences to get his wife, Ondine, 32, out of jail.

Carter Raises Aid to Israel

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Carter administration has decided to increase U.S. aid to Israel by $285 million, but has rejected that country's request to be allowed to sell advanced fighter-bombers to Ecuador.

The decisions, which were made known Monday, are the first tangible signs of the new administration's policies toward military support of the Jewish state. President Carter, during his campaign, criticized the Ford administration for failing to give enough aid to Israel and promised to supply assistance "in the full amount necessary," At the same time, Carter was highly critical of increased sale of sophisticated arms.

Meanwhile, reliable sources said here U.S. state department officials will try to reverse Carter's decision to sell high-power concussion bombs to Israel.

A briefing paper being prepared for Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance urges a ban on selling the bombs, called CBU-72s, to any country. It recommends that, because the sale was authorized by a president, it be reversed at the same level.

Russian Threat Downplayed

WASHINGTON (WP) — The threat of Warsaw Pact forces launching a sudden attack across the NATO front has been "overstated" and could lead to a dangerous over-reaction in the West, Rep. Les Aspin (Dem.—Wis.) said Sunday.

Aspin, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and former Pentagon analyst, urged Congress to reject recent advice to spend billions of dollars to make NATO forces more ready to fight.

Such a build-up, Aspin argued might impel Soviet planners to do likewise along the NATO front and thus put a "hair trigger" on the situation.

As it is now, Aspin continued, the Soviets have so many obstacles to launching a "no notice, bolt out of the blue, sudden attack" that it is "pretty unlikely" that such a thrust could be launched successfully.

Swine Flu Chief Under Attack

ATLANTA (UPI) — Dr. David Sencer, director of the Centre for Disease Control, says he has made no decision on how to respond to the new administration's request for his resignation.

Sencer, an architect of the suspended swine flu program, acknowledged Monday that Health, Education and Welfare undersecretary Hale Champion told him Friday that Secretary Joseph Califano "wants new decision makers."

In Washington Monday for an emergency meeting on whether to resume the swine flu vaccinations, Sencer said he had not decided whether to comply.

Meanwhile, a panel of scientists recommended Monday that the federal government immediately lift its moratorium on flu vaccinations and encourage state and local health officials to start limited and voluntary inoculation programs.

The panel, convened after an outbreak of 59 A-Victoria flu cases in a Miami nursing home, presented its recommendations to Health, Eduea-tion and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who will announce his decision on the moratorium today.

Commission to Probe 'All Aspects' of BCR

there has been any wrong-doing on the railway.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett said he welcomed the inquiry but asked for written assurance from Attorney-General Garde Gardom that the commission will investigate the controversial M.E.L. Paving case.

"If the commission does not have as a specific task a report on M.E.I. it could be labelled as a smoke screen," Barrett said.

Tory leader Scott Wallace said he couldn't think of any issue in B.C. that more justifies a royal commission than the BCR.

"This ad hoc approach to running a railroad is incredible and there is no question that a royal commission is long overdue," he said.

But deputy attorney-general David Vickers said in Victoria Monday that a review of evidence of a B.C. Supreme court case involving the BCR and M.E.L. Paving Ltd. of Red Deer, Alta., does not support charges of criminal fraud.

In a letter to Attorney-General Garde Gardom, Vickers said he has reviewed all of the evidence in the civil trial before Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson in addition to ministerial files.

"I am satisfied that there is no evidence to support any charge or any violation of any of the provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada," the letter said.

"As other evidence may be available relating to these matters," the letter said, "the investigation continues."

The investigation was ordered by the attorney-general after it was learned that the railway settled out of court with M.E.L. Paving for $2.5 million after all of the evidence in a suit against the railway brought by M.E.L. had been submitted.

The Alberta-based company had charged the railway with civil fraud and misrepresentation in a contract let in July, 1972, for removal of earth between Takla Lake and Dease Lake, a distance of 49 miles, in northwestern B.C.

In response to opposition demands during the current legislative session, the review of evidence was ordered.

Vickers' letter stating that the evidence has been reviewed does not state why the investigation is continuing.

"As other evidence may be available to these matters, the investigation continues," the letter said. "I will report to you again when any additional available evidence is obtained and has been considered by law officers of the Crown."

Vickers was not available Monday to comment on the possibility of uncovering "any additional available evidence."

Meanwhile, there were two more developments related to the railway and the question of overruns.

The president of a construction firm hired to work on railway extensions confirmed Monday he has negotiated a settlement with the line for cost overruns on projects.

Doug Ragan, president of Doug Ragan Construction Ltd., would not reveal the terms of the settlement put said "I understand the creditors are happy."

And in Vancouver, Peter Carson, spokesman for the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C., announced the organization has launched its own investigation into engineering work done on the Dease Lake extension.

A B.C. Rail spokesman, commenting on the Ragan settlement, said the railway agreed to pay the firm $1.2 million, including $600,000 to buy the firm's equipment with the remainder going to settle outstanding debts to creditors.

The company's financial problems began while the firm was involved on two railway contracts between 1972 and 1976.

The inquiry by the professional engineers is only in its first stage. It was launched after reports suggested the contracts put out by the railway underestimated work done on the Dease extension.

If the probe turns up evidence of a breach of the association's code of ethics, a formal inquiry will be held. any engineer found in violation of the code can be censured, suspended from the association or fired.

Engineers must belong to the association to practice in B.C.

Britain Doesn't Deny Torture

STRASBOURG (Reuter) — Britain today pleaded no contest to allegations by the Irish Republic that British forces tortured detainees in Northern Ireland from 1971 to 1974, a dispute which has brought the two governments before an international court.

Attorney-General Sam Silkin told the European Court of Human Rights his government would not contest the finding of the Human Rights Commission that detainees had been tortured and otherwise ill-treated.

He pledged Britain would never again use the so-called "five techniques" of sensory deprivation against a suspect — hooding, harassment by noise and reduction of food, and making him lean for long periods against a wall, off balance and with arms outstretched.

Silkin said Britain now gives "this unqualified undertaking that the five techniques will not in any circumstances be re-introduced as an aid to interrogation."

He said he hoped his statement would enable the Irish government to withdraw its case against Britain, the first inter-state dispute ever to reach the human rights tribunal in its 18-year history.

Silkin referred to the submission earlier today by Irish Attorney-General Declan Costello that Ireland's motives in pursuing the case to the court was to ensure that the five techniques would be banned forever.

Chemicals Bypass Pickets

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mill manager of Rayonier's Woodfibre pulp mill said Monday the mill received a shipment of chemicals from the United States without encountering difficulty from picket lines.

Striking workers at three Vancouver-area plants that normally supply Rayonier had threatened the picketing to cut off the mill from alternative supplies.

Mill manager Stan Smart said Monday's two truck loads will keep the mill in operation until a three-day supply of chlorine and caustic soda arrives by barge.

SHOW FROM MOSCOW GAMES TELEVISION'S BIGGEST EVER?

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co., calling the 1980 Moscow Olympics potentially "the biggest event in television history," disclosed plans Monday for 150 hours of coverage of the Games at a cost of about $100 million.

"This is probably the most ambitious television project ever undertaken," said NBC president Herb Schlosser. "It will involve the most massive array of people, technicians and equipment ever assembled for one event."

NBC paid $85 million for rights to the Games, a figure which includes $35 million for the rights themselves and $50 million for technical facilities. And it will probably spend at least another $15 million in assorted other expenses.

ABC paid $25 million for rights to the Montreal Olympics but NBC officials said ABC probably spent an additional $15 million or more in other costs.

The network refused to say how much of the $85 million will be paid in advance. Sources have said the network would pay $20 million in 1977 and $30 million in 1978, but NBC declined to confirm or deny those figures.

Asked how NBC would protect its investment if the Soviets made new demands after the network had already paid millions of dollars up front, Schlosser admitted there was a gamble involved.

"You take risks all the time in broadcasting," he said. "Bob Howard (president of NBC television and chief of the network's negotiating team) reported to us his feeling that the Russians want this event to come off well."

Schlosser said that, despite the high cost, NBC was projecting a profit.

"We expect it to work out as a venture where this company will make money," he said.

Of the proposed 150 hours of coverage — approximately nine hours a day from the July 19 opening ceremonies through the Aug. 3 closing ceremonies — about 65 hours will be prime time. ABC televised about 75 hours of coverage from Montreal last summer.

The network said it would have about 300 people in Moscow during the Games and would disclose the names of its broadcasters at a later date.

NBC also confirmed it will pay West German television producer Lothar Bock $1 million for his role in helping the network obtain the rights to the Games, and would also purchase three programs a year from Bock through 1981. These would be Soviet entertainment or sports programs.

Bock, who has worked with the Russians on many TV ventures in the past and has developed close ties with Moscow, joined the NBC negotiating team after CBS pulled out of the talks last month. He has been credited with a major role in securing the rights for NBC.

Kelly New Flyer Hero

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Kelly is one hockey player who realizes the advantages of remaining humble.

"I might go the next 30 games without a point," the Philadelphia left winger said Monday night after a one-goal, two-assist performance in the Flyers' 7-4 victory over Atlanta Flames in the lone National Hockey League contest.

"How would that look if I shot off my mouth now?" said Kelly, an Oakville, Ont., native now in his seventh season with the Flyers.

Kelly has scored five goals and assisted on six others in the club's last five games — something out of character for the free-wheeling 26-year-old.

He now has 13 goals and 15 assists for the season, one goal and three assists short of the personal single-season highs he set in the 1970-71 season — his first in the NHL.

"I don't think that the scoring is going to change my role," he said. "Whatever happens, happens. You can't dictate how much you play."

Flyers coach Fred Shero agrees with Kelly's theory.

"When we get our regular guys back, Kelly will be back to his old role," Shero said. "That's life. Some guys get a couple of points and think they deserve more ice time. Kelly knows better than that."

Meanwhile, Montreal Canadiens have a chance to become the first team in 33 years to have more than twice as many goals for as goals against.

In 55 games this season the Canadiens have scored 262 goals and allowed 128. In 1943-44, the Canadiens had 234 goals for and 109 against.

Heading into this week's play, Canadiens led Philadelphia Flyers by 13 points. The Flyers, who won Monday over Atlanta, now trail by 11 points in the over-all NHL race and have a game in hand.

Guy Lafleur of Montreal has moved back into the scoring lead with 39 goals and 44 assists for 83 points. Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles is second with 30 goals and 49 assists for 79 points. Ken Dryden and Michel Larocque of Montreal have a combined average of 2.33 to lead the league's goalkeeper race.

Thirteen Years Later Winners Join the Loser

The weekend in review:

Curlers make strange bedfellows, especially when it comes to playdown time. When Roy Vinthers, 45, won the Pacific Coast Curling Association championship at Langley on the weekend, two of the fellows on the front end were playing against him the last time he was in the PCCA playoff. That was in 1964 at the Victoria Curling Club and Vinthers almost had the title won in that game and still remembers the disappointment that was his when he lost.

All Vinthers needed to do in that playoff was to take out the late Lyall Dagg's rock with his last stone and the title was his. Alas, Vinthers' rock lost its turn just before coming into the house, and skidded by. "I lost it," he said Sunday, "it was my fault." Vinthers hasn't been back to the PCCA final since, until last weekend. And it was two members of that Dagg rink of 1964, Barry Naimark and Leo Hebert, who helped him this time. They were tough.

Bernie Sparkes, on the other hand, wasn't up to the test for the first time in many years although he was never far away. And it was a tough break when a rock was burned in the seventh end costing him a point and giving Sigurdson two for a three-point turnabout in the "A" final.

Sparkes made many friends with his quick decision to remove his rock from play even though it undoubtedly cost him the game. The burned rock was stationary and actually didn't figure in the play.

While Victoria's Tim Horrigan had a difficult time with the ice, Steve Skillings, the other city entry, didn't and was only a shot or two away from being where Vinthers is — getting ready for the B.C. playoff in Kelowna.

Ralph Boyd of Campbell River, president of the Pacific Coast Curling Association, said it best: "Those boys are a credit to Victoria and a credit to the game; they impressed everyone over here with their sportsmanship and fine play."

So as the man said "those kids have a lot of years left."

Vinthers, meanwhile, should give a good accounting of himself. He is currently leading the Super-League of curling in Vancouver and according to Hebert, who played third for him several years ago, "is curling as well as anyone in town; and he doesn't lose the handle anymore, like he did in Victoria. That used to be one of his failings."

Vinthers' shot in the ninth end against Skillings was the clutch shot of the game. "If I don't make the freeze, I'm dead," he said afterwards. He did, Skillings getting only one when it looked as if he might get a three.

It was a bitter loss for Sigurdson who won the "A" side competition. His rink has been together for eight years and was in its third straight PCCA final. The first year it finished third, last year it came second and this year Sigurdson had hopes of completing the cycle with a championship. But one missed draw when facing three counters cost him dearly against Vinthers who just wasn't making any errors. And Sigurdson didn't have a chance to recover.

Otherwise, and elsewhere, another kid who has caught New York in its fancy is the 16-year-old jockey sensation, Steve Cauthen.

Bettors who start out the day at Aqueduct complaining "damn kid" in the first race stay on to be yelling "come on kid" later in the day. And good reason. For one day two weeks ago, Cauthen had six winners, a second and two thirds in nine races; and that, at any track is some boy up.

A story out of New York says Cauthen "looks like 12, but his licence says he is 16 and that's why they let him ride." According to many experts "he is the best young rider since Bill Shoemaker (1949)."

Cauthen who is five feet, one inch tall and weighs 95 pounds, comes by his association with thoroughbreds honestly enough. His father, Steve, is a blacksmith and his mother, Myra, is a licensed owner-trainer. Two of his uncles are trainers.

Before he was old enough to ride, Cauthen did the next best thing. With his father they studied films of races together. His first race wasn't a winner. He was on a horse called the King of Swat at 136-1 and it ran like it. His first winner came on May 27, 1976, which means he will have his "bug" advantage until the same date this year. After that he loses that five-pound pull in weights an apprentice gets.

Ah, youth!

AEROS MAY ASK PLAYERS TO GIVE UP PAY CHEQUE

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Aeros have two World Hockey Association titles and a current five-point lead in the league's West Division to their credit, but they need more credit.

Despite their continued success on the ice, the Aeros are facing a financial crisis. It was revealed Monday that Aero management may ask the players to either defer or give up one or more pay cheques to help meet increasing costs.

"That's one of the things we are looking at," Aeros general counsel Harrison Vickers said Monday. "If we do the proper business planning that we are in the process of doing, then we will remain as solid a franchise as we have always been.

"This is not a desperation move. We're looking ahead for ways to cut over-all costs. When we decide on the plan, it will be an across-the-board measure for all our employees and expenditures."

The Aeros are averaging 1,500 fewer fans a game this season than last year's average of 8,028. The club's break-even point is 11,000 per game.

The Aeros' average salary is $75,000, compared with the WHA league average of $85,000 and the National Hockey League's $96,000.

Players have refused to discuss the situation. Aeros captain Ted Taylor, after a lengthy team meeting Monday, referred all questions to Aeros management.

"There's no question we have a problem," said Bill Dineen, Aeros coach and general manager, said. "We feel the whole thing right now is to get through the season. We're down to a short period of time now.

"It would be a shame with the young hockey players we have, not to be able to hold on here. We hope that it can be a deferment in salary that can be repaid if we get things back on an even keel."

Vickers says he does not expect any final decisions to be announced for at least two days.

WEICKER WINS SEATTLE RACE

SEATTLE — Victoria's Dave Weicker clocked a time of four minutes, 13.2 seconds Sunday to win the men's mile at an all-comers indoor track meet at the University of Washington.

Debbie Scott, Cheryl Matthews and Debbie O'Connor, other members of the Esquimalt Athletic Club contingent, ran second-third-fourth in the women's 880.

Athletics Labor To Nip Oak Bay

Victoria Athletics extended their lead atop the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League to six points Monday — but not without a struggle from second-place Oak Bay.

Pipers Keep Pace

UVic Vikettes remained six points ahead of second-place Sandpipers by blanking Rebels 6-0 in a first division match of the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association.

Diane Savoie led Lakehill with 20 points.

Second Place Stake Tonight

Victoria Cougars bid to regain second place in the Western Division of the Western Canada Hockey League when they host Kamloops Chiefs at Memorial Arena tonight.

Cougars trail the Chiefs by one point but have two games in hand.

Cougars play at home again on Saturday night against Portland Winter Hawks before embarking on a five-games-in-six-nights road trip.

Archie Henderson, the big winger who suffered a broken knee cap in Kamloops in December and has been having only limited duty since his recent return to the lineup is expected to see more action against the Chiefs tonight.

Coach Pat Ginnell said the Cougars would have to play more aggressively if they are to stop the Chiefs who defeated the Cougars in Kamloops, Sunday, 7-4.

Meanwhile, in the league scoring race there are two separate divisions, one for Brandon players, and the other for the rest of the league.

League statistics show Brandon players holding down the top four places. Bill Derlago continues to lead with 64 goals and 61 assists for 125 points. Ray Allison with 35 goals and 67 assists for 102 points is second, while rookie Brian Propp is only one point behind with 42 goals and 59 assists for 101 points. Fourth member of the Brandon crowd at the top is Dan Bonar with 57 goals and 34 assists for 91 points.

Kim Davis of Flin Flon tops the rest with 87 points.

Defenceman Devin McCarthy of Winnipeg Monarchs leads in assists with 72 and is sixth over-all with 85 points. Carey Walker of New Westminster Bruins leads the goalkeepers with a 2.36 goals-against average.

They Won't Skate

MEGEVE, France (Reuter) — The Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Poland have withdrawn from the world junior figure skating championships, organizers said Monday.

No reason was given for the withdrawals, and organizers said Monday there was some doubt about the participation of the Yugoslavian team which had not yet arrived for the competition, scheduled to begin here Wednesday.

Canada will be represented by a six-member delegation. Bob McCall and Marie MacNeil of Halifax are entered in the dance competition, Jose France and Paul Mills of Cambridge, Ont., in the pairs, and Caroline Skoczen of Windsor, Ont., and Daniel Beland of Montreal in the singles events.

Haywood Victor

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hurley Haywood of Florida, co-winner in 1973 and 1975, and two other drivers, who were victims of a controversial finish last year, combined for a steady performance that brought their Porsche Carerra, to an upset victory Sunday in the 24 Hours of Daytona endurance race.

Haywood, who co-drove with Peter Gregg in earlier triumphs, teamed with John Graves and Dr. Dave Helmick, also of Florida, to cover 2,615 miles at better than a 108 miles-an-hour average.

In second place, about 10 miles behind, were Italians Martino Finotto and Carlo Facetti in a Porsche 935 turbo. Another 935, which led most of the race until a long pit stop and gave the eventual winners the lead at the 21-hour mark, was third, co-driven by Reinhold Joest of Germany and Bob Wolek of France, 40 miles back.

Actor Paul Newman and Californians Milt Minter and Elliott Forbes-Robinson motored to an impressive fifth place in a Ferrari Daytona, behind another Carrera, piloted by Californians Brad Frisselle and George Dyer.

Rioting Fans Hound Ref

ASCOLI, Italy (AP) — Hundreds of fans staged an eight-hour seige of the stadium in this central Italian town Sunday and today in an attempt to prevent the departure of a referee and a visiting soccer team.

The siege started after the game between Ascoli and Cagliari of Sardinia ended 1-1. It was preceded by a rampage which left four persons injured and caused extensive damage to the stadium.

Trouble started after referee Ruggiero Mascia disallowed a goal that would have put Ascoli ahead 2-1 a few minutes before the end of the game.

Fans hurled bottles into the field. When the game was over, they tried to reach the dressing rooms of Cagliari and Mascia but were repelled by police.

Police had to use tear gas to disperse fans who tried to pursue the car used by the referee.

HURDLES MARK TIED

EDMONTON — Diane Jones of Saskatoon won the event in 7.1 seconds to equal the Canadian indoor record in the women's 50-metre hurdles Saturday at the University of Alberta Golden Bear track and field meet.

University of Victoria athletes scored three victories. Alan Sheridan won the men's 50-metre hurdles, Raul Estrada took the pole vault and the team of Debbie Campbell, Ulla Hansen, Wendy Davies and Kathy Sapsford won the women's sprint relay.

Brent Fougner of UVic was second in two events — the men's long jump and triple jump — while Hansen (800 metres) and Campbell (400 metres) each posted one second-place finish.

Chris Wins Some More . . . And Hurts Some More, Too

CHRIS EVERT
. . . "I'm there for a job"

SEATTLE (AP) — They can call her inhuman, even Ice Maiden, but it won't keep Chris Evert from winning tennis tournaments.

Twice the winner at Wimbledon. Twice the winner of the U.S. Open, and of the French Open, and of the Italian Open. Three times champion on the pro circuit. On clay court, 101 straight victories.

So they call her some more names. So she wins some more. But she hurts some more. too.

"It's always bothered me," Evert says. "It's bothered me when I've read about myself and felt that the whole world was reading it and is judging me by this particular article, and that's not the way I am at all.

"Because I'm cool on the court and unemotional on the surface, they think that carries over to my private life. I'm very emotional, and I'm very outgoing to my friends. It's like night and day."

She discussed her private side in an interview during a break in a $100,000 women's tennis tournament where she was, as usual, seeded No. 1, and where, as usual, she was a winner.

This time she collected $20,000 with a victory over Martina Navratilova in Sunday's final.

"There's a lot of things about my, quote, 'image,' that I don't think are me at all," Evert said. "When I get out on the tennis court, I'm there for a job. That's my career.

"Right now I'm not into it entertainmentwise — I'm in it to win. That's the way I've been brought up since I was six years old. When I walk out on the tennis court, I want to win," she said.

"I'm a perfectinist. Whatever I do, I don't want to be mediocre in it, I don't want to be average in it."

At the age of 16, her mother started taking her around the tennis world and she started beating all the established players.

Now Evert fears she might go the way of Margaret Court or Billie Jean King, succumbing to a new and younger sensation on the tennis court.

"If I let up just a little bit, these girls are just going to come right in and beat me," she says.

A year ago, Shaw gave her a journal in which Evert says she uses each day to set down her thoughts and feelings.

"You can't be super, super close with a lot of the girls," she said. "Even though they don't show envious feelings, I know they're there."

She misses relationships with men, too.

"Winning Wimbledon, winning Forest Hills, and not having anyone to share it with took away some of the glamor," she said. "Ever since Jimmy (Connors), I really haven't had anything deep at all.

"We were so young. It was very intense for about 2½ years.

"It was mutual, we both decided that it wouldn't work. I was No. 1 and he was No. 1, and we really realized how important our careers were to us.

"The press would ask me what I was going to do after we were married. And I would say, 'After we're married, I'll retire from tennis and travel with Jimmy.' When I look back, I'm so glad that we just parted ways."

Evert says she still wants to get married and raise a family, but not yet.

"People always ask me what I'm going to do after tennis," she said. "I don't know. I'm trying to find out what I want to do.

"I've put all my emotions into tennis and so I'm not as experienced in other aspects of life.

"When I think of myself at 25" — she's now 22 — "I shudder to think that I might still be on the circuit. I fear retiring. I really fear the way I'm going to handle it."

Hedberg Rewrites WHA Record Book

TORONTO (CP) — Anders Hedberg, the 25-year-old Swedish-born right winger of Winnipeg Jets, set three World Hockey Association records last week while becoming the fastest 50-goal scorer in hockey history.

Hedberg, who will be out of Winnipeg's lineup for 10 days because of strained ligaments suffered in a game Sunday night against Calgary Cowboys, now holds the WHA record for most goals scored in three games (11) and the most four-goal performances in a WHA career (4).

In addition, Hedberg is the first player to score 50 or more goals in his first three pro hockey seasons, scoring 53 in his first season, 50 in his second and 51 thus far this season.

Hedberg also shares the WHA record for most goals scored by two players in a single game (8). Hedberg and defenceman Perry Miller combined for four goals each in last week's win over Edmonton.

Hedberg scored three goals in Winnipeg's 6-4 win over Calgary, his 47th game of the season, breaking the pro hockey record of 50 in 50 games held by Maurice Rocket Richard in 1944-45 when he tallied 50 goals in a 50-game season for Montreal Canadiens.

Bobby Hull of Winnipeg matched Richard's record by scoring 50 goals in 50 games in the 1974-75 season, but Hedberg is the first player to score 50 or more in less than 50 games.

Hedberg's line-mate, Ulf Nilsson, scored one goal and had 12 assists last week for a 13-point week of his own.

Hedberg now has 92 points on 51 goals and 41 assists and leads second-place Real Cloutier of Quebec Nordiques by six points in the WHA scoring race.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

One of two lawyers for a Wilkinson Road escaper made a scathing attack on prison authorities Monday in Victoria provincial court and said his client's two attempts at escape were inspired by a "sense of frustration" because of the treatment received.

Derek Brindle, one of two lawyers representing 26-year-old Thomas Russell Totten, told Judge Harold Alder that Totten was continually subjected to segregation and not allowed exercise or communication with his family and friends while in Wilkinson Road.

That form of treatment, Brindle said, was usually reserved for prisoners who committed infractions. All Totten was told, Brindle continued, was that he was a security risk.

Totten and 23-year-old Dennis Matthew Wilson changed their pleas on a number of charges in connection with escapes Dec. 7 and Jan. 28.

On the Jan. 28 charge, Brindle said his client would plead guilty to the lesser-included offence of attempted escape, and Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said he would accept the plea.

Totten then changed his plea to guilty on the charge of escaping lawful custody Dec. 7 and to possession of a stolen car. A charge of auto theft was withdrawn by Mulligan and charges of dangerous driving, possession of housebreaking instruments and possession of stolen property were stayed.

Mulligan listed a criminal record for Totten dating to October, 1967, which included a conviction for escaping from the Alouette River camp in December, 1974.

Mulligan also told the court he dissociated himself from Brindle's intimation that prison authorities were to blame for Totten's conduct.

Before sentencing, Lawrence Myers, Totten's other lawyer, said his client would be returning to the B.C. Penitentiary to serve 28 months of a remaining term and said a lengthy sentence would not be beneficial for Totten or the public.

Alder sentenced Totten to 12 months consecutive for the Dec. 7 escape, six months consecutive for the Jan. 28 attempt and six months concurrent for the possession charge.

Wilson, represented by lawyer Scott Marshall, pleaded guilty to the Jan. 28 escape and changed his plea to guilty on the Dec. 7 escape and on a and possession of stolen propstolen car. A charge of auto theft was withdrawn and charges of possession of housebreaking instruments and possession of stolen property were stayed on application by Mulligan.

Both men were at large for 15 days before being captured after an early-morning, high-speed chase Dec. 22 by Saanich and Victoria police.

Wilson was remanded until Friday for sentence.

Three men jointly charged with armed robbery and possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace were remanded until Friday for election of trial method.

Brothers Dennis Richard Legault, 19, Peter Michael Joseph Legault, 18, both of 1235 Balmoral, and Robert George Walton, 30, of 3975 Cedar Hill Road, were charged after an incident Saturday night at 52 Crease, Saanich, during which a man was allegedly beaten by three men, one carrying a 12-gauge shotgun.

Walton was charged separately with assault causing bodily harm.

Bail was denied the Legault brothers after a lengthy and sometimes-heated hearing involving Crown counsel Richard Anthony and legal-aid lawyer Jasper Bomhof.

An 18-year-old woman who faced nine counts of passing worthless cheques totalling $541.22 last Tuesday had six more counts of false pretences read Monday totalling $399.65.

Lynn Cherly Munday, of 979 Thurber Road in Langford, was refused bail and remanded until next Tuesday for plea. Tht six latest charges stemmed from cheques allegedly written between Dec. 13 and 28 of last year.

David Gerald Parenteau, 33, of 4235 Rossiter Drive, changed his plea to guilty to a Dec. 1 charge of common assault and was fined $150.

Parenteau, who played professional hockey with Victoria and Seattle in the Western Hockey League, was charged after an altercation with a bicycle rider, court was told. Parenteau said the cyclist made a rude gesture which led to the incident.

Dale Dickson, 25, of 923 Pembroke, was fined $500 after pleading guilty to having a blood-alcohol content over .08 on Dec. 8. A charge of dangerous driving was withdrawn.

Mika Knocks Runaway Development

Lack of action by Saanich council contributes to runaway development, Ald. John Mika said Monday.

Mika made the accusation after council was told by municipal planner Gil Laurenson that plans for a duplex at 4227 Torquay are vastly different to those presented and approved at a public hearing July 26, 1976.

"The plans submitted differed quite a bit . . . they now look like hell," Mayor Ed Lum said.

The plans were originally submitted by president Jack Rhodes of the Foremost Equity Realty Ltd., which has since sold the property to Gordon B. Elworthy of the Princess Mary Restaurant, Laurenson told council.

Mika was irked when council was reminded that Rhodes, after being confronted with the fact there was a "For Sale" sign on the property when the public hearing was held, made a verbal offer to have the duplex built under a restrictive covenant.

Council did not act on Rhodes' offer.

Municipal solicitor Doug Patterson will be asked to advise on the feasibility of requiring a restrictive covenant to protect design.

Cartoonist Can Continue

The Public Service Commission decided Monday that civil servant Bob Bierman can continue drawing political cartoons in his spare time.

Deputy Environment Minister Ben Marr said in an interview that the commission accepted the recommendation he made last week that Bierman be allowed to continue freelance editorial cartooning.

Bierman, 55, an environment ministery draftsman, stopped cartooning last week after Environment Minister Jim Nielsen ordered an investigation of the propriety of Bierman's two jobs.

Bierman had not originally sought the required approval of the public service commission to accept outside remuneration. When he did apply, he was supported by Marr because he was freelancing and not working at a full-time job.

Last week, the government also declared its support for Marr's recommendation in favor of Bierman.

Marr said Monday he interprets the commission approval as meaning that Bierman can continue working on a freelance basis, but not on a full-time basis.

Bierman said he is pleased with the commission's decision and added he is now considering doubling his freelance rates. He said he gets about half the price per cartoon he would get if he were a salaried cartoonist.

"I certainly don't like working as a civil servant behind a drafting table," Bierman said in an interview.

He earns $15,456 annually as a government draftsman.

His cartoons have appeared regularly in the Victoria Times and B.C. Today, a political affairs bi-weekly.

Heroin Seizure

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — Danish police have detained three men in the seizure here of 11.7 pounds of heroin worth an estimated $850,000 on the illicit drug market, police said Monday. Narcotics officers found the heroin in a car Sunday. Police said they believed the drugs were in transit to the Netherlands.

Junior Status Retained

Lansdowne junior secondary is not likely to gain senior secondary status next year as has been previously planned.

At a committee meeting Monday, Greater Victoria school trustees agreed projected high school enrolment for the 1980's do not warrant adding senior grades to Lansdowne.

Planners told trustees that by September, 1981, there will be 700 fewer Grade 11 and 12 students — the equivalent of a fair sized high school.

Pupil enrolment in Greater Victoria has been declining for the past couple of years. Planners predict 1,020 fewer students will enroll in September.

Current enrolment is just under 29,000 students.

The committee also decided to recommend to the board that Gordon Head's Lambrick Park school change from Grades 8 to 11 to Grades 9 to 12. (In other words all students who are there this year will stay next year.)

Those going into Grade 8 next year will attend either Arbutus or Cedar Hill junior schools.

With department of education approval, more classrooms will be built at Lambrick. Gordon Head is one of the few areas where enrolment is expanding.

No decision was reached on whether to move Grade 7s from Rockheights to Harbor View or if Sundance should be relocated.

South Park will be retained in its present location.

Be a February smartie and not an April fool.

Now's the time to act. Look into Registered Retirement Savings Plans at the Bank of Montreal.

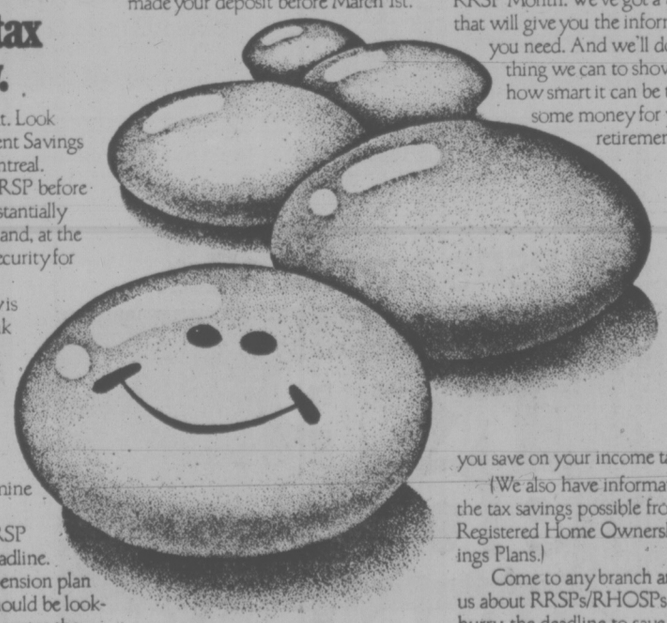
By investing in an RRSP before March, you can save substantially on your 1976 income tax and, at the same time, be building security for the future.

That's why February is RRSP Month at the Bank of Montreal. We want you to take advantage of the opportunities RRSPs offer. You can contribute up to 20% of your earned income. (we will help you determine the exact amount) if you put this money in an RRSP before that March 1st deadline.

Even if you have a pension plan where you work, you should be looking into an RRSP to guarantee the maximum savings now, and the maximum for yourself at retirement.

The advantages are so great that, even if you don't have the cash right now, it often makes sense to talk with us about a loan for your RRSP. The interest on that loan will be tax-deductible.

If you're already in a Bank of Montreal RRSP, look on this as a reminder to make certain you've made your deposit before March 1st.



But if you don't have an RRSP, be a February smartie.

Come in and see us during RRSP Month. We've got a booklet that will give you the information you need. And we'll do everything we can to show you how smart it can be to save some money for your retirement while you save on your income tax too.

(We also have information on the tax savings possible from Registered Home Ownership Savings Plans.)

Come to any branch and talk to us about RRSPs/RHOSPs. But hurry, the deadline to save on 1976 taxes is March 1st.

February is RRSP Month.

Should the little woman fill this empty passenger seat?

By AB KENT
Times Staff

The police cruiser glided out of the gloom toward a cluster of vans and street rods rumbling and glistening under the lights of a drive-in.

"How about a coffee, honey?" the driver said to the young woman sharing his front seat.

"Gladly. I thought you'd never ask, dear. Is every night like this? We've been to a pileup on Pat Bay, picked up a runaway, directed traffic at a fire and chased a speeder — and it's only 10:15."

"It could be worse. Or it could be boring. You never know.

"I'll just check out these kids before I take you home. You've seen enough for one night. But don't wait up for me. We'll talk about it in the morning."

Man and wife police patrols? Not quite.

The ride-along program for wives of policemen has not yet appeared in Canada.

An idea inaugurated on the U.S. west coast, it is designed to take some of the stress out of marriage by giving wives a better understanding of the problems their lawmen husbands have to deal with day after night after day.

B.C. Police Commission member Geoff Mortimer thinks it is worth considering here.

"I think it's a good idea. We'll probably discuss it at an executive meeting now that it's been raised. It's something we can look at."

Mortimer is aware of the program tried in Lockport, N.Y., where the 50-man police department hopes it will have an effect on a 20-per-cent divorce rate.

Chief Paul Leyden said, "I thought this program might give the wives some understanding.

"If they can understand why their husbands just can't come home at night and be the typical husband or father after dealing with the kind of people they do for eight hours, that they can't just turn it off, then it might help their marriages," Leyden said.

The only place in Canada where anything like this program has been tried is Calgary, Mortimer thought. The wife familiarization plan there consists mainly of talks and tours of the police station.

"The wife only knows what a policeman tells her about his job," Mortimer noted.

In some cases that could be little or nothing.

"My husband is one of those who never talks about his work, and this way I got to see why he is always so moody when he comes home," said one of the Lockport wives who rode twice with her husband.

Another was asked why she thought there was such a high rate of divorce among policemen.

"The hours and the shift work," she replied.

"They work three rotating shifts and they're never home on nights or holidays. You can never make plans to go somewhere and sometimes you're sitting all alone on New Year's Eve."

"My mother always told me never to marry a salesman or a policeman,' the wife added. "She said he'd never be home when I needed him."

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson said he did not know whether the separation rate in his 106-member department is typical, above or below average.

"The very fact of shift work makes it more than likely to cause additional marital stress," he said.

"That's why we're experimenting with the 12-hour shift. The men are longer at work, but they are also longer at home."

Now in its second year, the experiment is being studied by the attorney-general's department and so far "looks pretty good."

Unexpected duty is one of the most difficult things to cope with, Peterson said, especially for the younger men's wives. A court case in which a policeman must give evidence can occur without notice on a day off, spoiling plans for a trip or other arrangements the wife and family have looked forward to.

Peterson said he had heard of ride-along programs in California and at a Seattle area department, but none in Canada. He was not overly enthused about the idea.

If there is an appeal from the members of his department to try the scheme, he would pass it along to the Saanich police board for consideration: "I wouldn't oppose it."

But he doubted whether there was enough interest on the part of wives and suggested some policemen would not be anxious to involve their wives with their work to that extent.

Peterson pointed out that however passive a ride-along passenger might be — and there would be instructions not leave the patrol car or become involved in a situation — the passenger could still be called to court to give eyewitness evidence of an incident.

Saanich corporal Phil Jamieson, who is president of the Canadian Police Association, said he had never heard of the program and is not aware of any movement toward improving domestic relations of policemen.

The RCMP thus far has not considered a ride-along program for wives although it does make provision for special requests from reporters, law students, social workers and court staff.

A growing number of female police officers on regular patrol duty in company with male officers — in both the RCMP and local forces — may have some effect upon future attitudes toward more familiarization for members' wives.

Some larger departments where mixed patrols are common have had complaints from wives who don't like husbands spending eight hours in such proximity to another woman.

Chief John Green, of Oak Bay, reacted negatively, admitting a chauvinist bias. The ride-along program "sounds like more nonsense to me," inviting more problems for his all-male department.

TOWN TALK

A bunch of Lancashire lasses belting out a British Columbia song in Blackpool?

It sounds a bit incongruous, but the information comes from what we in the newspaper business call a reliable source — former Victoria Times columnist Norman Cribbens.

The song was composed by Jerry Gosley of Victoria's Smile Show. Cribbens took a fancy to it, jotted down the words and music, and took them with him when he returned to his native England after 16 years in Victoria.

Muriel Fox, conductor of the Ulverston Ladies Choir of Ulverston, Lancs., was equally impressed. Result — the choir has sung Gosley's song in various parts of northwest England including Ulverston, Dalton, Barrow, Blackpool and Harrogate.

The song goes:

"It's my desire, with art to inspire
This colorful land that I love:
I'll paint all the greens
In soft woodland scenes

Proposing a business licence fee of $200,000 to discourage massage parlors in Esquimalt gave aldermen a heady moment in committee Monday.

But treasurer Peter Cairns quickly damped their ardour. The rub is that provincial legislation limits fees to a maximum $2,000.

Council has had no formal application from a prospective body rub operator, but is in the process of reviewing business licences to control such things as pinball arcades and aldermen wanted to see if they could erect financial restraints on body shops.

Council will be asked to limit coin-operated games to three per establishment and to triple the six-month fee to $15.

Meanwhile Cairns, clerk George Merz and solicitor Terry O'Grady will be asked to suggest other legislative means of preventing massage parlors from opening in the municipality.

Workers Offer No-Pay Month To Fish Plant

More than half the employees of financially-troubled Oakland Industries Ltd. are willing to keep on working for a month without pay to keep the company going.

An emergency meeting of the fish processing plant employees on Monday was attended by close to 75 people.

"They all signed a pledge to work a month without pay," organizer Gladys Askey said today.

Meanwhile government officials, bankers and company officials met today in a bid to prevent closure of the plant.

The meeting was set up after about 150 employees and fishermen staged a placard-carrying, peaceful demonstration outside the legislature Monday to protest the provincial government's failure to prevent the shutdown.

Oakland is Victoria's only fish processing plant.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips announced today's meeting had been called when the question of Oakland's future was raised in the legislature by Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber.

Oakland president Bill Hilborn said the company, incorporated 17 years ago, will close because of financial problems.

Hilborn said the decision was made after the Bank of British Columbia and the Business Development Bank failed to reach agreement on which institution would come first for security for a temporary operating loan to keep the company afloat.

Phillips, said today's meeting will include representatives from the Bank of B.C., the Federal Development Bank. The B.C. Development Corp., Oakland, and Mitsubishi Canada Ltd.

He said the meeting will explore all possible avenues of what action could be taken to get the company operating again.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said that if those efforts fail, his ministry will work with the federal government to retrain the employees.

The company, locally owned, began operating in the 1960s and brings an annual $10 million into Greater Victoria.

Its difficulties began when the company's new plant on Montreal Street cost more than the money borrowed to finance it, due to high construction costs.

The problem was compounded during the 1976 salmon season when a price war between the larger fish companies forced Oakland to buy fish at higher prices than salmon could sell for.

Blanshard Bids Set For April 1

Th long-awaited Blanshard Street extension project will go to tender April 1, Highways Minister Alex Fraser told the legislature Monday.

The work is scheduled to be completed in a year but the minister warned municipal councils to stop squabbling over the project.

He advised Greater Victoria MLAs to "get hold of your respective councils and tell them not to start re-engineering the project because all that will do is delay this long-needed project."

Manor Sale Bid Postponed

A move by Oak Bay municipality to force sale of privately-owned Oak Bay Manor, 2251 Cadboro Bay, was postponed today for one week.

Ald. John Gould told a meeting of council's Committee A this morning that an order for sale is being sought in Supreme Court chambers in a back-tax dispute.

But, 15 minutes before court was to begin, he and municipal administrator Stewart Fleming contacted lawyer John Cowan and told him to have the issue adjourned one week while the manor raises a new mortgage.

Goult told the committee that part of new mortgage will come to Oak Bay for $137,500 in taxes owing for the last two years.

Parched Sidney's 'Only Hope' Water Sharing

Shallow wells on the Saanich Peninsula will run dry this summer and Sidney won't be able to meet water needs on its own, the chairman of the new Saanich Peninsula Water Commission said today.

But Jim Cumming said the water-starved peninsula will be able to make it through the summer — barely — by sharing.

Talks on a long-term solution, water piped from the Sooke hills, open later this month.

Sidney appears to be worst off, he said, with its municipal wells able to produce only 400,000 gallons a day against a summer demand of 660,000 gallons. For the first time the shortage has forced Sidney to buy water from Central Saanich during the winter.

But four wells drilled by Park Pacific for a housing development in North Saanich could be used for an interim supply to Sidney.

CUMMING
. . . real crisis

Cumming said he hopes B.C. Ferries can be persuaded to draw its 60,000 to 70,000-gallon-a-day summer needs from its Tsawwassen terminal rather than at Swartz Bay.

There is some surplus water available in parts of the peninsula and the commission's immediate job is going to be seeing it is transferred to places in need.

"It's going to have to be very carefully watched but I think it can be done," he said.

Peninsula communities and residents traditionally get their water from private or municipal wells and Elk Lake. Increasing demand had forced municipalities like Sidney to drill their wells deeper and deeper.

Cumming said the water table, the level of water underground, will drop this summer for lack of the usual rainfall this winter and shallow wells will go dry, casting an extra demand on the water supply system.

Water for the core municipalities is supplied by the Greater Victoria Water District from the Sooke watershed and that source is ample enough to meet district needs, including the Saanich Peninsula, for years.

The peninsula commission at its inaugural meeting last month decided to tackle its water problem on two fronts.

It has a tenative date with the Greater Victoria Water Board Feb. 25, to discuss future water supply and costs.

Mika Move Stalled

Ald. John Mika met strong opposition Monday when he tried to open up municipal meetings and make council more available to the public.

His action was stalled when a proposed six-point amendment to the municipality's procedure bylaw was referred to the finance, legislative and health committee.

Ald. Ian Cass said Mika's proposals were like "using a 14-pound sledge hammer to drive in a two'inch nail."

Mika wants all regular council meetings held in the evenings; agendas and minutes of all council and committee meetings publicized and residents allowed to address council if given permission by a majority vote.

Ald. David Paterson said Mika's bid to have agendas and minutes publicized would cost between $36,060 and $49,075 per year.

Mika, said, however, he checked with Victoria Press Ltd. and found the annual cost would be $8,220.

Ald Fred Severson said he objected to the proposals because they insinuated council's performance had been lacking in the past.

Mika disagreed.

"My motion doesn't in any way reflect on previous councils," he said. "Recently we were given a chain of office. This is a symbol we're growing up. We've become a big municipality. We should systemize things and try some new trails."

Well-to-Do Main Benefactors of Subsidized Dental Programs

WINNIPEG (CP) — The The president of the Canadian Dental Association (CDA) says well-to-do families continue to be the ones making the most use of dental care for children.

Dr. Michael Cripton said a number of provinces were aiming at middle class and lower-middle class families when they endorsed financing of dental care services.

But a preliminary survey by the CDA indicates the well-to-do families now simply are getting free of charge what they have been only too willing to pay for in the past.

The CDA is concerned about youngsters who aren't taking advantage of the program, said Dr. Cripton, here for the annual meeting of the Manitoba Dental Association.

"It's a matter of motivation. There are obviously always going to be a number of youngsters who don't wish to go and have their teeth looked at, or whose parents don't put any particular value on the service that is offered.

"Frankly, we have thought about this a lot and have not come up with any kind of an answer to the problem," said Moncton, N.B. orthodontist said in an interview.

"The onus will always be on the user to avail himself or herself of a service that is offered. I don't know what kind of pressure can be brought to bear on a family to force them to make use of the service that's there for them.

Dr. Cripton said he did not feel that recent increases in the fee schedules of various provincial dental associations are posing a barrier to good dental care.

"We were asked by the Consumers Association of Canada a little while ago to state to what extent dental care costs have increased in the last five years.

"But the real question is to what extent have all kinds of costs increased during that time, and where have the developments been when it comes to family incomes and purchasing power of the individual.

"I don't think you'll find that dental care is pricing itself out of the market," Dr. Cripton said.

He said in future, the dentist's drill may be replaced by a laser mechanism allowing the dentist to cut into the tooth material without even the slightest nerve-jarring vibration.

"But don't ask me for details about this, I haven't got any. The material about this is only now beginning to filter into the scientific literature."

Dr. Cripton said Quebec is a problem area for the 9,500-member CDA. Only 760 of the Quebec's 1,800 dentsits have chosen to affiliate with the national organization.

"In Ontario, on the other hand, we have 4,000 dentists, and in 1976 some 80 per cent of them chose to belong to the national body on a voluntary basis. Affiliation with the Ontario Dental Association was even higher — about 90 to 92 per cent."

Dr. Cripton said the fluoridation of water remains a key goal for the CDA.

"At a time when such major communities as Montreal continue to refuse fluoridation despite its proven general benefit, this has to be an obvious top priority."

We especially like to turn people on to new plant experiences, such as the wonders of nature that can be realized from our plant friends. Beauty aids, medication and food are provided in the plant kingdom. As we learn about herbs and all their uses, we open up to a world as old as time itself.

We have a kitchen cabinet filled with herbs stored in airtight jars and enjoy brewing up home remedies. We're not medical doctors and we don't want to go to jail for practicing medicine without a licence (who'd take care of the plants?), so suffice to say there is much you can learn about herbs that will help you from a health standpoint.

You can easily grow many herbs in your yard or in pots. Some are both medicine and food, such as parsley. Herbs can be used in teas, poultices, salves, encapsulated or as seasonings. They can be purchased in health foods stores or through the mail.

An excellent book, and one we wouldn't be without, is "Back to Eden" by Jethro Kloss. But, of course, there are literally dozens of books to help you learn about herbs. It feels good to drink a cup of peppermint tea to soothe an upset stomach or when we have a cold — especially when we've grown the peppermint ourselves.

All of a Sudden . . . Crafts Revive

TORONTO (CP) — All of a sudden, trades, skills, crafts — some of which were pushed into obscurity or rendered almost useless by mechanization and technology — are popular again.

"There's a huge interest, among young people especially, in repairing musical instruments," said George Heinl Jr. The firm he manages has been building instruments or restoring ailing ones for about 50 years. His 85-year-old father, founder of the firm, still works there.

"We get a lot of inquiries even from young girls who want to apprentice," said Heinl. "Unfortunately we're too busy to teach anyone."

James Moffattn a piano-tuner with Heintzman's for 22 years, says his trade — on the wane a few years ago — is climbing again. Its simplicity might make it appealing to young people.

"The technique is basically the same as it was 75 years ago," he said. "A glorified wrench and your ear. Hearing is 85 per cent of it and knack about 15 per cent."

Some analysts guess it may be a subconscious urge to turn back the clock to less complicated yesterdays.

Whatever it is, there is growing evidence to many people that the old ways of doing things are not only sensible but also therapeutic.

Some are appalled that they could reach retirement age without having done anything more substantial than pushing a button, flipping a switch, pulling a lever or consulting a data bank.

They want to use their won resources to do something — anything.

Angry at the docile acceptance of what they consider mass-produced junk, Elizabeth Abraham and her associates decided to operate a Toronto printing business using equipment that was ancient at the turn of the century.

In three years, meticulously setting each letter by hand, they have published nine books — mostly poetry by unknown authors. Even print connoisseurs acknowledge the superiority of their product.

"There's a great personal satisfaction in our work," said Miss Abraham, "We don't want a reputation for producing precious books for collectors and we don't want to turn out best-sellers."

The firm uses an old letter press, discarded as obsolete by a commercial house, to do its printing and hand-stitches the books with linen thread.

Because of this laborious procedure it limits production to about 100 books. It is also expensive — $10 to $25 a book.

John Barlow abandoned a job with the Children's Aid Society of Toronto because he had an urge to build custom cabinets. He apprenticed with an older craftsman and then went into business himself.

That was about three years ago. Now he is often booked six months ahead.

"I think people are tired of mass-produced stuff and they want the pioneer type of handcrafting," he said. "Not just what I'm doing, but everything. They want originality and class.

"I like to think of myself as an artist. I build to order — one of a kind. People come to me and that's important, knowing they have that trust in me."

Jean Gardner of the Ontario Hooking Craft Guild ("They call us hookers.") says rug hooking is generating "incredible enthusiasm" throughout Toronto with even a few men interested.

"We conduct eight classes a week and there are 20 to 25 at each class," she said. "Most are young married women. With some I think there's a longing to get back to the kind of life their parents had.

Publicity Curbing The 'Pill'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Diverse publicity may be the reason some women are giving up oral contraceptives, according to a report published today in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A study of 100 women at the San Francisco Medical Centre showed 53 per cent changed contraception methods in the last two years, and most switched away from oral contraceptives, the report said.

Dr. Nancy Kaltreider found eight women relied on sterilization, 16 used no contraception, one used the rhythm method, and 24 used a mechanical barrier device such as a diaphragm, foam or condom for birth control. Only 28 took oral contraceptives, and 16 had intrauterine devices.

The possibility of hazardous side effects was the reason given by 14 women who were dissatisfied with their current method.

The study also reported a decrease of formal marriages in the younger population, a reduction in the wish for children, and an increase in acceptance of homosexual relationships.

Chinese Braised Lamb

- 1 lb. stewing lamb, cut in equal size pieces
- 2 tbsp. peanut oil
- 3 cups stock or chicken broth
- 1 large turnip, peeled
- 1 clove garlic smashed
- ⅛ cup soya sauce (preferably cooking soya sauce)
- ¼ cup sherry
- 1 tsp. brown sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- ⅓ cup finely sliced green onions
- 2 cups fresh green beans
- 1 cup fresh mushrooms
- 2 tbsp. cornstarch mixed with
- ½ cup water

Braise lamb pieces in hot peanut oil, add stock or broth, one half of turnip cut into two pieces and garlic. Cover and simmer over medium heat for one hour, skimming if necessary. Remove turnip and discard. Add soya sauce, sherry, sugar and salt; cover and simmer another hour until the meat is tender. Add remaining half of turnip which has been cut in eight sections, then thinly sliced into wedge-shaped slices, onions, fresh green beans and whole mushrooms. Simmer uncovered to reduce liquid for a richer flavor and when vegetables are tender-crisp, thicken with cornstarch mixture — bring to bubble and serve immediately with bowls of hot rice.

ORANGE JUICE: NO REAL SQUEEZE

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Florida citrus industry officials said Monday there is no need for housewives to hoard orange juice as a result of last month's freeze, but there may be a moderate price increase.

"There will be juice in the stores all year, although there could be occasional shortages," said Doug Hoffer of the Florida department of citrus.

"It's all a matter of supply and demand. The price will go up just enough to hold sales down somewhat. If prices had remained at what they were before the freeze, we would run out of juice in the fall."

Hoffer said prices probably will go up slightly for the next few weeks, but it still is too early to say where the price will level out because no one yet knows the full extent of the freeze loss.

"Pricing right now is really speculative," he said.

"But we're never going to have a big shortage," he said, "because we have such a large production that you could cut out one-thirtl of the crop and still supply normal needs."

You Can't Scare the Smoke Out of Them

MONTREAL (CP) — Scare tactics used by health agencies in an attempt to persuade smokers to quit have not been successful, saud Gar Mahood, executive director of the Non-Smokers' Rights Association.

"Health agencies have insisted on pushing health information when it has been described by important critics as being futile," he said.

"Evidence is coming forward indicating the only thing that will work is a campaign saying that smoking is not socially acceptable."

Social pressure is 'the only way to cut down smoking, he said. "We have to make smokers realize that their habit is a privilege, not a right."

Mahood said he hopes people soon will be able to visit restaurants, pubs and taverns without leaving with headaches, sore throats and nausea.

"A study published by the faculty of law at University of California in Los Angeles shows that more than 60 per cent of American citizens support legislation to control smoking."

In the United States, 33 states have laws and regulations preventing smoking in areas where there is no well-ventilated corner for smokers, he said.

In Chicago, a special court to deal with smoking offenders has been in operation for a year.

A bylaw was enacted last month in Ottawa prohibiting smoking in public areas where no facilities for smokers are provided.

"As a civil libertarian, I feel that a smoker has the right to abuse his body whatever way he chooses until that interferes with the rights of others," Mahood said.

He is against increased taxes on cigarettes as a way of reducing smoking.

"When you are dealing with drug addiction or habituation, people will not decrease their consumption with a tax increase. They will simply take money out of household funds or money needed for the kids. Another tthing that happens is that the government becomes dependent on that tax."

The Toronto-based rights association, which was formed two years ago, has 2,500 members. The association's funds come from contributions by corporations and individuals.

"Much of the work involves research and the compiling of statstics and information. This is done with the help of doctors, lawyers, businessmen and writers who give their time.

Mahood was instrumental in leaking a position paper on smoking and health prepared for the Ontario ministry of health in January, 1975.

The report recommended laws prohibiting cigarette advertising and smoking in hospitals, doctors' offices, classrooms, elevators, theatres and in all public transit vehicles.

"There was a definite decision made to suppress the report," Mahood said.

"Why was it suppressed? It could have been because Ontario is the biggest tobacco producing province in Canada."

Mahood, former executive director of the Canadian Environment Law Association, said he has never smoked much.

"Like any kid, I smoked a cigarette behind the garage but I was heavily involved in university athletics so there was strong pressure on me not to smoke. I was lucky."

Is there any aspect of life insurance which you do not fully understand? Do you want to make sure you are getting proper coverage? Do you feel you have reason to complain about any particular insurance company?

You can, of course, talk your problem over with your insurance agent or the local branch manager of your company. Or, you can make a toll-free call from anywhere in Canada to the Life Insurance Information Centre.

This Centre is supported by 130 Life Insurance Companies in Canada. It only gives information and advice but has nothing to sell. Telephone inquirers are not asked their identity, unless a written reply is necessary to answer their question or some printed material contains the information they seek.

According to a recent survey, some 85 per cent of the enquiries received by the Centre were of a non-technical nature and relatively easy to answer.

The number you can call free of charge from anywhere in Canada is: 1-800-261-8663. Or, you can write to the Insurance Information Centre at 44 King Street West, 15th Floor, Toronto, Ont. M5H 1E9.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS ...it tells you how

Winter Squash Deluxe

1 small (1½ lb.) winter squash
½ cup raisins
½ cup mixed dried fruit pieces (dates, apricots, apples, figs, etc.)
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ cup water
1 cup rolled oats
¼ cup sesame seeds
¼ cup whole wheat flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup oil
2 onions, chopped
½ cup sunflower or pumpkin seeds

Bake squash at 350° F till soft (about 40 minutes). Cool, peel, and mash. Leave the oven turned on. Mix raisins, dried fruit, spices, and water together in a saucepan and boil over medium heat for several minutes. Remove from heat and let stand.

Then combine oats, sesame seeds, flour, salt, and oil (and a half cup of chopped nuts, if you like). Spread on a lightly greased cookie sheet, and bake at 350° F (stirring occasionally) for 30 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Next, saute onions in a little oil until golden, and add them to the squash, along with the dried fruit mixture. Toast the sunflower or pumpkin seeds in a dry skillet over medium heat, stirring frequently, until they've browned.

Finally, oil a baking dish or pie plate, and line the bottom with the oat mixture. Top it with the squash and dried fruit, sprinkle with the toasted seeds, and bake at 350° F for 20 minutes. Makes a complete stick-to-your-ribs meal for six people!

dear abby

Just Say: Good-Bye

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for all those inconsiderate gus out there who may not know how to handle this situation or don't have the guts to: drop a girl you've been seeing regularly, please be kind and let her know it's all over. Don't lie about it and say, ""let's cool it for a while," when you really mean, "Let's end it."

You don't even have to give her a reason, just say, "Goodbye, it's been nice knowing you."

There's nothing worse for a girl than not knowing where she stands with a guy. Of course it hurts to be told it's over, but it's a lot less painful than being left hanging and wondering and hoping. So level with her, will you? — HANGING AND WONDERING

DEAR HANGING: All right, here's a message to all you guys out there who lack the consideration and courage) to level with the ladies. But girls, the same kind of frankness on your parts would be a kindness, too. Men also appreciate knowing where they stand. Even if it's out in the cold.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was married for seven years. She has two children, five and three. She recently was divorced and has told me that she is going to live with another woman because they have decided that they are lesbians and belong together. This other woman has an eight-year-old daughter and is a successful artist. My daughter teaches children with learning disabilities.)

I am glad that my daughter told me the truth. She said she has been fighting her lesbian tendencies since adolescence and that during her marriage she has psychotherapy and was advised to accept herself as she is.

My daughter has asked me to welcome her ladyfriend into my home and to consider this woman's child as my "grandchild." I want to do the right thing by my daughter, but I just can't see myself doing it graciously.

I'm very unhappy about all this, but I'm trying to act cheerful. Please help me. — SAD MOTHER.

DEAR SAD: Unless you want to lose your daughter and your daughter are fortu- accept your daughter's ladyfriend and her child. Both you can your daughter are fortunate to have such an open and honest relationship. Even in these enlightened times, it's all too rare.

DEAR ABBY: A male coworker of mine has a habit of calling all his women clients "dear."

I told him that I thought he was being presumptuous, and I was sure that some women found it offensive.

He insists that ALL women feel complimented to be called "dear" — even by a stranger. Do they? — WOMEN REALTOR

DEAR REALTOR: No one can speak for ALL women, but in my opinion, "dear" has no place in a business conversation, and that goes for "honey," too.

Pacemakers Rarely Fail

CHICAGO (UPI) — Heart attack deaths are rarely related to the failure of heart pacemakers implanted in the chest, according to a report published in the American Medical Association Journal.

Only one of 109 deaths in a 12-year study at the University of Virginia Medical School was attributed directly to a failure of the pacemaker. The others died from a variety of unrelated causes.

The study also showed that 65 per cent of the those who received pacemakers survived at least five years. Most of the 313 patients were in their late 60s when the device was implanted.

Pseudo-Gout Not Real Thing

By—LESTER L. COLEMAN

Can you explain what is meant by pseudo gout? It seems to me that either you have gout or you don't have it. — Mrs. R.E.E.

Dear Mrs. E.:

Not all medical problems are clear and distinct. Sometimes symptoms and signs of different conditions overlap each other. This explains why a diagnosis is sometimes called "pseudo," which means "false."

Pseudo gout is known as chondro-calcinosis. This condition sometimes suggests gout, but later can be found to be different from it.

Blood studies and X-rays can reveal the presence of calcium as a cause, rather than uric acid the offender in gout).

I'm in the theatre and need a lot of energy for each performance. Someone suggested that I should get an injection of vitamin B-12 before each performance. Is this sound, from a medical point of view? — Miss A.D.

My immediate suggestion is that you change from your "Dr. Someone" to a more authoritative doctor before you embark on such a costly bit of nonsense.

Far too many people have the confused idea that vitamin B-12 or B complex inected into the buttocks, the arms, and even into the veins, is the answer to robust energy.

The sudden jolt of such an injection seem to give some people the illusion that they have been "energized," For them, the psychological advantage of an inection may be helpful.

Are you sure you're getting enough rest? Have you recently had a medical checkup?

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH ... Even in the wintertime, unrefrigerated custards are breeding grounds for germs that can produce severe illness.

Honey Wheat Bread

2 cups milk
one-third cup honey
1 tbsp. salt
¼ cup shortening (or oil)
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
5 to 7 cups unsifted whole-wheat flour melted butter

Warm milk; add honey, salt, and shortening. Blend yeast with water, add to milk mixture; stir until smooth. Add flour in three parts, beating well after each addition until mixture is of stiff dough consistency. Turn onto lightly floured board or cloth. Grease fingers; knead until smooth and elastic (8 to 10 minutes). Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place (80 to 85 F) until doubled (approx. 50 minutes). Without punching down, turn out on lightly floured surface. Divide into two equal parts. Shape into loaves. Place in two greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Cover. Allow to rise in warm place until doubled in bulk (about 50 minutes). Bake bread in 350 F oven for 40 minutes or until done. Remove from pans; brush tops with melted butter; cool on wire rack. Makes 2 loaves.

Note — This is a heavy-textured, hearty health-style bread.

The new pitcher-pak

Canada's fastest growing family-size milk package.

Here's the best way yet to get family-size economy with pitcher-pouring convenience. The new "PITCHER-PAK" consists of 3 individual 1 1/3 litre pouches (approx. 47 fluid ounces each) . . . so you open and use only one at a time.

Easy to pour. One pouch fits into the custom designed pitcher (available at a special introductory price) so all you do is insert the pouch, snip off a small corner and pour.

Easy to store. The unopened pouches store easily on their side, using a minimum of refrigerator space.

Milk stays fresher. Because you open only one pouch at a time, you have a minimum amount of milk open for a minimum amount of time. The other pouches stay sealed until needed, with the flavour and freshness locked in.

Just follow these simple procedures. When you insert the pouch into the pitcher, tap the pitcher firmly on the bottom, 2 or 3 times. This will settle the pouch down into the pitcher and create a vacuum which will hold the pouch firmly in place. Then just snip off a small corner of the pouch and pour. When not in use, fold the corner down and tuck in beside the pouch.

'PITCHER-PAK' 4 litres = 3½ quarts (approx.)

SIMPLE A-BOMB PLAN POPULAR

PRINCETON, N.J. — Two foreign governments were turned down when they asked a Princeton University student to supply them with information from his blueprint for making an atomic bomb.

John Phillips, 21, of New Haven, Conn., said Monday that he was approached by the Pakistani and French embassies in Washington, D.C., in the last month. He said he refused both requests.

Phillips, who wrote a 34-page term paper last spring describing construction of an atomic weapon, said he informed the CIA of the Pakistani request for a copy of the paper.

The French request was for part of his research, he said.

Second Billing Tempting

Wilson . . . rebukes former press aide

'HATCHET JOB'

LONDON — Former prime minister Harold Wilson fiercely rebuked his one-time press secretary Monday for saying high political decisions were influenced by Marcia Williams, the blonde typist who rose to become a powerful back-room political force.

Wilson accused Joe Haines of delivering "a farrago of twisted facts and alleged events that did not happen except in fevered imagination — obviously a dedicated hatchet job."

In his new book appearing this month, Haines alleged that Mrs. Williams, now Lady Falkender, chose the personages to be honored with titles after Wilson's retirement as Labor prime minister last March.

The list, supposed to be the personal choice of the prime minister, handed out knighthoods, peerages and other honors to capitalist and show business figures whose selection enraged left-wingers.

Haines wrote of Mrs. Williams: "By her unpredictable tempers she demoralized not only those who had to work with her, but Harold Wilson also. Yet she wielded power with the prime minister to a degree unequalled by any person in my experience."

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan hinted Monday that he might have accepted the Republican vice presidential nomination if President Gerald Ford had offered it to him at the GOP convention in Kansas City last summer. "It would have put me in a tough spot," Reagan said. "I don't know what I would have done."

NEW YORK — Conductor Leonard Bernstein has cancelled a concert in Prague because of the Czechoslovak government's treatment of human-rights dissidents, his agent said Monday. Bernstein, former conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, was due to conduct the Prague Philharmonic in May, 1978, in a performance of Beethoven's Missa Solemnis. His agent said the conductor was taking the action because of Czechoslovakia's conduct toward a group of dissidents circulating the Charter 77 declaration, which calls for more civil and political freedoms.

NEW YORK — Roy Cohn, former committee counsel to Senator Joseph McCarthy, said NBC's filmed version of his late boss' career was "a biased smear job which didn't even make a pretense at telling both sides of the story." "If McCarthyism is the dirty word they say it is, then this was McCarthyism at its worst," the New York lawyer said of the network's Tail Gunner Joe, which was telecast last Sunday. Cohn told The Daily News that the show, which examined the Wisconsin Republican's anti-Communist crusade of the 1950s, was "typical Hollywood, revisionism at its worst."

AUCKLAND, N.Z.— Briton Colin Quincey set out Sunday to become the first man to row solo across the Tasman Sea between New Zealand and Australia. Quincy, a 31-year-old former Royal Navy officer from Hull, in Yorkshire, expects the 1,250-mile trip to take between 60 and 100 days.

BONN — Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, one of the most gifted musical composers of all time, died a pauper because he lost his fortune playing billiards and cards — badly. Or so says a music historian who researched the composer's financial records. Mozart's love of gambling — and not indifference to his genius — was responsible for the poverty that plagued the last years of his life, according to historian Uwe Kramer. Kraemer explored the record of the Mozart household from 1783, one year after his marriage to Constanze Weber, to 1791, the year he died of typhoid fever at the age of 35.

ASPEN, Colo. — Lack of snow has made this one of the worst skiing seasons in years throughout the Rocky Mountains. That also makes it a bad year for bone doctors. During a normal skiing season, about 50 skiers a day find themselves in the Aspen Valley Hospital emergency room, said hospital administrator Robert Camp. He said only 10 to 15 persons were treated each day this season. Camp said 75 per cent of this year's inuries are caused by skiers hitting rocks or dirt spots.

7,500-Mile Cure Succeeds at Sea

SUVA, Fiji — Two Canadian doctors sailing in the South Pacific have sucessfully treated a critically-ill 16-year-old U.S. boy aboard a yacht 7,500 miles away in the Indian Ocean.

Vancouver gynecologist Claude Cronhelm, who is sailing the 40-foot cutter Mamateek, and Dr. Myron MacDonald, a West Vancouver general practitioner aboard the 36-foot-sloop Wings, are both in Fiji to ride out the hurricane season.

Four nights ago, Cronhelm was listening on his ship-board radio when he heard a medical emergency declared on the yachtsmen's radio hook-up, the mobile maritime net.

The 36-foot sloop Nomad, sailing in the Indian Ocean with its New York state owners and their three children aboard, reported a 16-year-old youth suffering with a 104-degree temperature, chills and muscle pains.

The Nomad was 16 days from the nearest port.

Cronhelm radioed the net's base operator in the New Hebrides offering help.

MacDonald, whose yacht was moored near the Mamateek, was asked to assist.

For four days, the two Canadians gave advice passed through a radio relay in Apia, Western Samoa and then direct to the Nomad.

On Sunday, the call came in faintly from the Indian Ocean "temperature is normal. He is eating. Everything is under control."

Patti's Floor Fall No Act

Opening the show for Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band at Tampa's Curtis Hixon Hall, Patti Smith started her set by announcing, "Hello, Florida, Your citrus is dying. Your agriculture is dying. You have ice in your veins."

Seven songs later, during "Ain't It Strange," she launched herself into a spin, tripped over a monitor, and plunged eight feet onto a concrete floor. Two security guards tried to break her fall but she hit hard nonetheless, causing severe head lacerations (which required 22 stitches), a badly bruised shoulder, and two hairline fractures in a vertebra. Trailing blood, she was rushed to Tampa General Hospital which later released her to return to New York.

"I look terrible," she said over the telephone. "I got a big plaster cast on my neck and a Sex Pistols haircut (a butch-type look a la the punk rock group) 'cause of the stitches. I want my kids to know I wasn't spaced on drugs or anything. We didn't have time for a sound check and I had a pulled hamstring beforehand, so I was unfamiliar with the terrain."

The gig was Smith's second in a large hall outside of New York. Boyfriend Allen Lanier of Blue Oyster Cult is taking time off to nurse her back to health, which could take two months.

Rick Wakeman, who recently rejoined Yes, was luckier than Patti when his Range Rover lost traction on an icy mountain road in Montreux, Switzerland, and plunged into a crevasse.

"We were about to stop the car and fix the snow chains, when we skidded," explained Wakeman. "There were some children tobogganing on the road ahead, a bloody long drop on one side and deep crevasse on the other. I opted for the crevasse."

Wakeman and his road manager sustained bruises but were otherwise unhurt. Wakeman's new solo album, "White Rock," which is the soundtrack to a film about the 1976 Winter Olympics, is set for release this month.

Among those sitting in on sessions for the new Roger Daltrey album at the Who's Ramport studio in London were Wings guitarist Jimmy McCullough and Rolling Thunder-Mott the Hoople guitarist Mick Ronson. Ronson's contribution to the album was curtailed after he was busted on a drunk-driving charge following a party at the studio on the second day of recording. Ronson hasn't reported for work since. The new album includes a song specially written for Daltrey by Paul McCartney.

Andrew Lloyd Webber, explaining the almost complete lack of riffs in his latest rock opera "Evita": "It was a reaction against the day I realized that 'Jesus Christ Superstar' was all two-bar phrases."

Lloyd Webber and his lyricist Tim Rice are currently in California to talk with director Ronald Neame ("The Posedon Adventure") about the possibility of a movie version of "Evita," which is already an enormous hit in Britain. "Further deals depend on whether or not it flops here," explains Rice. "Nothing could be as big as 'Superstar'."

Status Quo was fined the equivalent of $6,000 for a fight with customs officials in Vienna last May when the band was asked to strip for a drug search. "I knew it was an open and shut case," said lead guitarist Francis Rossi, "when I saw the judge working out the fine on a pocket calculator before our defence counsel had finished summing up."

Kim Carnes, winner of the "professional easy-listening" category at the American Song Festival, complains that women singer-songwriters usually lack a sense of humor, so she created "Connie Con Carne," a housewife from Des Moines who dances with meat from her refrigerator.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There is a type of play in bridge that was known, until recently, as "the coup without a name." This play has now been given a name: the "scissors coup." What the play does is to cut the opponents' line of communication. An example can be observed in today's deal.

NORTH

◇ J 2

WEST
♠ 8 7 5 2

SOUTH
♠ K 9 6
♡ K Q 10 4 2
♣ A J 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ◇	1 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ◇.

Upon winning the opening lead with his king of diamonds, East led the three of clubs — and everybody at the table knew that East was leading a singleton. South won the trick with his ace.

Had declarer now made the "normal" play of drawing trumps, he would have been defeated. East would have captured the trick with the ace, and at trick three he assuredly would have underled his ace of diamonds, hoping that his partner possessed the queen. West would have captured this lead with the queen. The automatic club return by West would then have been ruffed by East, for the setting trick.

Declarer foresaw what was going to happen if he started to play trumps. So his play had to be geared towards keeping West out of the lead, to prevent East from ruffing a club.

After his ace of clubs had won the second trick, declarer led a spade to dummy's ace. Next came the ten of spades, East's jack being taken by South's king. South's nine of spades was then led, and when West followed suit with a low spade, South heaved a sigh of relief. On this spade lead South discarded dummy's jack of diamonds. The scissors coup had worked.

East took the trick with the queen and, as is evident, there was no way he could put West into the lead. He returned a diamond, which dummy ruffed. Now trumps were led, and from here in the only trick the defenders could make was East's ace of trumps.

Thus the exchange of a trick for a trick — the concession of a spade trick instead of a diamond trick — cut the East-to-West line of communication.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast
Wednesday, Feb. 9

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Involvements are intensified. You reach beyond present position. Aggressive persons may attempt to intimidate you. Key is to stand tall for principles. You're due for better distribution, display of product. Concern with hidden clauses, the occult becomes evident.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Following "old path" could be an error. Wait, listen, observe, detect subtle signals and signs. Accent on partner, mate, condition of contract. Obviously, some revisions are in order. Someone is pulling strings behind the scene. You should play waiting game. Picture needs clarification.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message for valid hints. Emphasis on basic issues, security, employment and health. Long-distance communication could nail down decision regarding travel, vacation or special educational project. Aquarian figures prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may have cause for celebration. Some views are vindicted. Social life accelerates. Popularity increases — someone "attractive" may wine and dine you. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play roles in your personal scenario.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Steer clear of legal or partnership disputes. If married, make concession to mate. Stay out of automobile operated by one still "celebrating" the new year. Build on solid base. Emphasize security. Older individual is on your side — but doesn't make a show of it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtain hint from Leo message, especially where automobile traffic is concerned. Challenge is issued. Know that clash of ideas can be revealing and healthy. Analyze data. Strengthen position by getting ideas on paper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Count your "change." Someone seems to want something for nothing — at your expense. Home decoration, remodeling could be subject of family discussion. Be a comparison shopper. Key now is diplomacy. You get what you need through subtle inquiries.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your extrasensory perception could be working overtime — you know what is to occur and you're capable of acting on foreknowledge. Take initiative. Co-worker who talks loud is merely envious and frustrated. Adhere to your own style, program.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Path is smoother than might be apparent on surface. Know it and organize — persons "in charge" are due to pave way for you. Flurry of activity occurs behind the scenes. You're likely to be subject of closed-door conference.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Finish rather than initiate project. Wish is fulfilled if you leave no loose ends. Long-distance message aids in cementing pact. Aries, Libra figure prominently. What seemed financially beyond reach is now obtainable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Impulsive action could be costly. Know it and act accordingly. Do not argue with those "in charge." Professional superior may feel that you should serve as an example of what happens to one who is insubordinate. Take it easy. Display ability through creative efforts, not by shouting, breaking rules or being pugnacious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar aspects point to communications problem, tendency to jump to conclusions. Know it and take proper precautions. Express yourself in direct, meaningful manner. One who "adores" you will let you become aware of it.

IF FEBRUARY 9th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are concerned with justice, theatre, medicine — you feel public pulse. You write, communicate — you draw to you people with their problems. Members of opposite sex confide in you. September will be the most significant month of 1977 for you, a year which features promotion, power, better financial conditions. If single, you could marry. If married, there could be an addition to family. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life.

Pruning Demonstrations Planned

The Victoria Horticultural Society is again sponsoring three fruit tree pruning demonstrations during February, scheduled to take place before the home gardener's pruning period which is the last week of the month.

The first is on Saturday, Feb. 12, at 3688 Crestview Drive, off Cedar Hill Cross Road; the second on Wednesday, Feb. 16, at 3928 Hobbs Road, off Arbutus Drive; the third at the Cedar Hill Garden Centre, 1551 Cedar Hill Cross Road, just west of Shelbourne Street, on Saturday, Feb. 19. All demonstrations start at 2 p.m.

The home gardener obtains the most benefits by attending the three demonstrations, since each is selected to show how different kinds of fruits are handled under different conditions.

Some trees will have been in bearing for many years while others will be young trees as bought for planting in the garden.

The pruning of trees already in production is the art of balancing crop with a certain amount of new growth.

The amount of new growth to be encouraged depends on whether the tree bears fruit on new wood or on fruiting spurs which continue to bear for several years.

The pruning of young newly planted trees is more important than many home gardeners realize, because it determines the kind of tree that will result.

Basically, it is the building of the kind of tree the home gardener desires, a tree that will have every opportunity of carrying large crops without becoming too large for the garden area, and require the minimum of pruning once it reaches the age of fruiting.

One thing the gardener must realize when attending these demonstrations is that no two fruit trees of the same variety will appear exactly alike.

The appearance of any tree is the result of the treatment it has received since the day it was planted.

The amount of new growth a tree makes each year, and the type of new growth it makes, will depend on how it has been pruned in the past, the condition of the soil in which it is growing, the drainage conditions, and exposure to the elements.

It is not likely any tree you see being worked on will be exactly the same as the tree in your garden, nor that your tree will require handling in precisely the same manner.

More important than a mental picture of the work that was done is the understanding of why it was done, as explained by the demonstrator as the work proceeds.

Once the gardener grasps the reason it is not difficult to apply it to any tree of the same kind of fruit regardless of its shape or size.

That is why it pays to attend all the demonstrations. The more trees one sees pruned by the same demonstrator the easier it becomes to apply the principles when pruning trees in the home garden.

For your own comfort wear plenty of warm clothing and waterproof flat heeled boots. The owners of the gardens do not appreciate having damp lawns ruined by high heels.

Treat the garden as if it was your own. Keep to the walks and be careful not to walk on dormant crowns and roots. Admire beautiful and unusual plants but resist the temptation to snitch a piece; this is not the time to take cuttings. Many excellent gardens have been closed to visitors because rare plants have been torn to shreds.

ARDMORE GOLF COURSE IS ideal for retired men and women, other courses in the region have either too many hills or are too blessed long. Most were designed for the likes of Julius Boros or billy goats. It is sad that most golf course designers think only about the low handicappers. Ardmore is designed for retired folks and average golfers. As Telroy Aylor says it's a nice tricky course but you don't have to kill yourself to play it. Ardmore announces openings in 5-day memberships for people under 65 years and 5 day memberships for seniors. No openings for 7-day memberships. Phone 656-9087.

COMPOSERS PLAY

A series of contemporary music concerts is planned over the next few weeks by the University of Victoria New Music Club which is made up principally of graduates and undergraduates majoring in composition.

First of these concerts takes is Thursday at the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific at 8:30 p.m. The second, Saturday at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1040 Moss is at 8 p.m. Others in the series will be in March.

Works to be presented have all been written by members of the group which has as a practical concept the idea of being both composer and performer. This is an effort to cope with the problem of lack of performance opportunity which faces the majority of young composers.

Gallery doors open at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and the concert is free but donations will be accepted.

Like a Scene from M.A.S.H., Patient Claims in MD Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — As he lay in the radiology department of the Royal Inland Hospital in Kamloops, Robert McLean likened his experience to a scene from M.A.S.H., the televison series about an army medical unit in Korea.

"This sounds worse than M.A.S.H.," He told the medical staff attending him. "It sounds like someone around here don't know what they're doing."

The result of his experience in the hospital's x-ray room, it was alleged Monday in the British Columbia Supreme Court, was that McLean was rendered paralyzed and now is substantially a quadriplegic.

McLean recalled the remarks he made at the hospital when he testified Monday before Mr. Justice J. G. Gould in his action for damages against Dr. Ormond A. Weir and Dr. George Malcolm Goff of Kamloops.

The court was told that McLean seeks damages for trespass and negligence by the two doctors arising out of the "severe permanent injuries" he sustained as a result of diagnostic arteriography performed at the hospital on Oct. 23, 1973.

Allan McEachern, a Vancouver lawyer representing McLean, told the court that he and lawyer Harvey Grey, for the doctors, have reached an agreement on quantum damages if the court finds either doctor liable.

"If your lordship finds liability on the part of either or both defendants, then judgment will be entered against the party or the parties found at fault in the sum of $250,000," he said.

McEachern said McLean, now 55, was living near Chase in October, 1973, and was "enjoying his life looking after some property he owned and looking for investment opportunities."

While trying to fix a well in the winter of 1972-73, the lawyer continued, McLean noticed that his hands became numb and his fingers turned white.

When the condition recurred while he was swimming in the summer of 1973, he consulted his family physician, McEachern added.

He said the family physician referred McLean to Dr. Weir, a Kamloops vascular specialist, who on Oct. 10, 1973 diagnosed Progressive Raynaud's Phenomena, a condition that causes impaired circulation in the forearms, hands and fingers.

McEachern said Dr. Weir arranged for McLean to go to the Royal Inland Hospital for an angiogram, or arteriogram, which was performed by Dr. Goff.

"When Dr. Weir next saw (McLean), in the hospital on Nov. 6, 1973, he was substantially a quadriplegic and he has remained in that state until the present time," he told the court.

McLean who is confined to a wheelchair and was brought into the courtroom by his wife, demonstrated during his testimony that he is unable to raise his arms above his head.

Questioned by McEachern, McLean said he thought he was going to the hospital for a "simple little test" and added that Dr. Goff did not tell him what the procedure was.

He said he was conscious during the x-ray procedure and was not aware that a tube had been inserted in his groin, although he did recall having his groin shaved before the x-raying began.

After recalling his reference to M.A.S.H., McLean told the court: "Right after that, my arm flew in and hit my chest. I heard him (Dr. Goff) yell as my knees came up. I heard him say something about a wire and I passed out."

The hearing continues.

Royal Oak Park Explanation Set

Saanich council will meet the Royal Oak and District Ratepayers Association to answer questions on the proposed Royal Oak industrial park.

Council decided to call the meeting on Monday after considering a letter from Ben Pires, of 804 Mann, which posed 45 questions on the 120-acre development.

The get-together will be at a lands, planning and housing committee meeting.

Pires also proposed a joint transit committee of the four core municipalities be set up as a means of improving public transit services.

Earlier in the meeting council passed three readings of a bylaw which will make the proposed industrial park site a development area.

The first three readings were given to two other bylaws.

The first is for a 70-acre site on Prevost Hill in Ten-Mile Point on which Broadmead Farms Ltd. proposes to build 82 single-family homes, townhouses, one eight-storey and one five-storey apartments.

Ald. David Paterson noted that declaring the site a development area does not necessarily mean council endorses Broadmead's present proposal.

The second bylaw will make 46 acres owned by the Isherwood family behind their Royal Oak Inn a development area. The Isherwoods propose building 480 rental units on the property.

Ald. Sandy Noel noted sewering of the area would eliminate sanitary problems encountered in the past and said he had been told by environmentalists they were in favor of the project.

BOMB BACKS BID FOR JAIL VISIT

MONTREAL (CP) — An unsigned letter addressed to a local radio reporter has threatened a bomb attack on the Montreal subway system unless prisoners at Laval maximum-security penitentiary here are allowed visitors.

Police said the letter was accompanied by a stick of dynamite and they are taking the threat seriously. But Laval warden Andre Lemarrier thinks the writer of the letter has the wrong prison in mind.

"All our regular prisoners are getting their visits," Lemarrier said today. "I don't understand."

Pierre Goulem, warden at the nearby Correctional Development Centre, said the letter-writer may have been talking about his institution.

About 66 former Laval prisoners are still temporarily confined at the centre. They are part of a group of 110 convicts transferred there last September following a riot and fire which destroyed a celiblock at Laval.

Prisoners at the correctional centre have had to make do with inadequate facilities, and Goulem said they have had only one visit — at Christmas — since last fall.

Gandhi Braces For Defections

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — Indira Gandhi and her advisers are expecting serious and perhaps large scale defections from the Congress party after the nomination of candidates in a week's time, according to well-informed sources.

Their bleak assessment is that the many disappointed seekers after parliamentary "tickets" (nominations), who in the past have had no alternative but to grit their teeth and hope for better luck at the next elections, may now consider going over to the newly formed Congress for Democracy. The guest houses maintained in Delhi by the various Indian states, known as "bavans," are crammed to bursting with these contenders for office.

There are said to be a thousand men and women after the 85 seats in Uttar Pradesh alone. "Most people in the party are calculating types," one journalist observed, "and they will not defect unless they think they have a good chance with the other side. But if they do, they will go, perhaps in large numbers."

Congress strategists are aware that, however much the party bends over backwards to accommodate local and state leaders, some will have to be disappointed. The ordinary process of selection may now have political consequences that it has not had in previous elections.

Today Prime Minister Gandhi and the Congress party issued a campaign manifesto promising India's 610 million people a comprehensive attack on poverty and economic disparity.

Stepping up their campaign for the election of a new lower house of Parliament next month, Mrs. Gandhi's forces also pledged a strong stand for law and order, a new drive to house the poor, continuance of the campaign to control population growth without resorting to compulsory measures and continuation of a foreign policy of non-alignment.

Mrs. Gandhi said the curbs on democratic freedoms which she instituted during a state of emergency were a necessary antidote to the irresponsible leadership of a few of her opponents.

The manifesto said the emergency "saved the republic from catastrophe and restored political stability." It said the Congress party's commitment to democracy is "absolute, irrevocable and unshakable."

U.S. 'Watching' Ginzburg Plight

MOSCOW (AP) — More than 200 Soviet dissidents have appealed for the release because of ill health of Alexander Ginzburg, who disburses the funds supplied by novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn to aid political prisoners and their families.

In Washington, the U.S. state department said it was watching with concern the treatment of the 40-year-old human-rights activist and has made the Soviet government aware of its views.

It was the third time since President Carter took office Jan. 20 that the United States has warned a Soviet bloc government about human rights.

Ginzburg's Soviet supporters made their plea in a statement addressed to the 35 governments that signed the 1975 Helsinki Accords. It said he was released from a hospital shortly before his arrest Thursday although "still suffering from pneumonia with a tuberc.ular infection and should be treated at a tuberculosis dispensary."

Jail is "certain death for a man in his condition," Valentin Turchin, head of the Soviet branch of Amnesty International, told Western correspondents.

Ginzburg is reported being held in prison in Kaluga, about 100 miles southwest of Moscow. The charges against him have not been announced, but an official publication accused him last week of illegal currency dealings.

MURDER CHARGE LAID IN IRISH KILLINGS

BELFAST (Reuter) — A 22-year-old unemployed Londonderry man was charged Monday night with the murder last Wednesday of Jeffrey Agate, the head of the U.S.-owned du Pont synthetic fibres plant in Londonderry.

Police announced that the man, whose name they did not disclose, was also accused of murdering policeman Patrick McNulty on Jan. 27 as he left his car in a Londonderry garage.

Meanwhile, a former leading Protestant politician said on Monday that a secret 500-man army has been set up in Northern Ireland to destroy the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

John McQuade, an ex-unionist member of the now disbanded Northern Irish parliament, said the force was made up of former servicemen.

"They will seek out and destroy any Provisional IRA man or anyone else working against peace in Ulster — we know who they are," he told reporters.

Sadat 'To Finish' Egypt's Communists

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat said today Egypt is going to "finish off" the Communists he blames for instigating last month's food riots.

Sadat also said he should have retaliated against the Soviet Union for its support of the rioters but did not because he wishes to improve strained relations with Moscow.

He made the remarks in an interview with the Saudi Arabian newspaper Okaz, which was published simultaneously today by the Cairo newspaper Al Gomhouria.

The riots of Jan. 18-19 were triggered by government-decreed increases of food and fuel prices, which were later revoked. Nearly 80 persons were killed, several hundred injured and at least 1,000 were arrested.

Sadat described the disturbances as the Communists' "mistake of a lifetime. They began their move in the morning and thought they would seize power by evening, but failed.

Gov't Inquiry Tackles BCR

VANCOUVER — (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett today announced the appointment of a wide-ranging, three-man royal commission to inquire into "all aspects of the management and development of the B.C. railway.

The premier told a news conference that recent construction problems and labor disputes on the BCR have led to a serious morale problem among the staff.

He said the Social Credit government is determined to free the Crown-owned railway from political controversy and allow it to play a full role in provincial development.

Bennett said an order-in-council dated Monday named Mr. Justice Lloyd George McKenzie of the B.C. Supreme Court, David Hilton Chapman, regional director of the federal Anti-Inflation Board, and Sydney Wallis Welsh, president of Premier Cablevision, as commissioners in the inquiry.

The premier said the commission's mandate included:

—The relationship of the railway to the economic and social well-being of the province;

—The foreseeable financial requirements of the railway for all purposes;

—The railway's over-all operation and accounting procedures;

—The procedures utilized by the railway for the planning and construction of any part of its undertaking.

Bennett rejected the suggestion that the appointment of the commission is a political move designed to cover recent controversy over cost over-runs on the railway's northern extensions.

He said the commission is "a broadening opportunity for informed debate."

The premier said commission evidence could lead to possible criminal charges if

SEAGRAM'S ACCORD

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —A tentative settlement has been reached in the two-year labor dispute at the Seagram's distillery in this Vancouver-area municipality, it was announced Monday.

Union spokesman Al Peterson said union members would meet to vote on the new contract as soon as possible.

Seagram products have not been on liquor store shelves in British Columbia since shortly after the distillery was closed in late February, 1975.

889,000 LOOKING FOR WORK

Canada's Unemployed Highest on Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Actual unemployment in January across Canada was 889,000, the highest recorded since monthly labor force statistics began to be collected in 1953, Statistics Canada reported today.

The federal agency said the jobless rate last month, adjusted for seasonal variations, stood at 7.5 per cent. That rate was the same as December, but the highest for a January since 1961.

The actual unemployment seasonally-adjusted rate, howrate was 8.8 per cent. The seasonally-adjusted rate, however, is usually used by economists to predict trends.

British Columbia's unemployment rate remained steady at 8.8 per cent but its actual jobless total rose by 20,000 to 112,000.

Unemployment rates declined last month from December in four provinces and were higher in five.

In January, 1976, the national unemployment rate was 6.6 per cent and there were 800,300 persons without work. In December, there were 754,000 persons unemployed.

The high seasonally-adjusted rate for January reflects a worsening unemployment trend. For the last five months, the jobless rate has been worse than in the same months a year earlier.

The January figures are also a reversal of form from the U.S., where in the early part of the month unemployment showed a dramatic decline to 7.3 per cent from 7.8 per cent. Since then, however, the U.S. has been hit by severe winter weather and fuel shortages which have forced layoffs.

A private U.S. research firm says, however, that unemployment actually rose one per cent from December.

The government did not account for those who lost jobs due to the severe cold weather because it used data taken before the harsh weather began, Sindlinger and Co. said in a newsletter Monday.

Sindlinger also faulted the government's practice of not counting unemployed persons not actively seeking work. It said the limited spending ability of an unemployed person not seeking work affects the economy as much as the limited spending of his or her work-seeking counterpart.

The Statistics Canada figures also come as New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent has been challenging the data collected by the Canadian government agency, saying the agency drastically underestimates true unemployment.

Among Broadbent's charges was that Statistics Canada fails to take into account workers who have given up looking for work because of job shortages.

The total labor force in January was 10,144,000 compared with 10,230,000 in December. Some of that decline would be due to persons working temporarily during the Christmas season.

One bright spot in the figures showed that for the first time in three months the unemployment rate for persons aged 15 to 24 dropped to 13.3 per cent from 13.7 per cent in December.

A Saanich man is to appear in court today on a mischief charge after a tire slashing incident early today which Esquimalt police said triggered a "near riot."

An Esquimalt police spokesman said reinforcements had to be called in from Victoria after a group of youths caught a man slashing tires on vehicles parked in the 800-block Esquimalt and the 600-block Head.

A total of 10 officers were involved before the melee was broken up and the 21-year-old man taken into custody.

Police said he faces a mischief charge.

BOY ARRESTED

Robberies and attempted robberies continue to plague Greater Victoria police with two incidents overnight bringing the total so far this year to 16.

In one case, a 15-year-old Victoria boy was arrested.

Victoria police said the boy has been charged in connection with a holdup at Burchell's Confectionery, 1137 Esquimalt Road, Monday night.

Police said a youth entered the store at about 7:30 p.m., pointed a rifle at the clerk and escaped with $45.

A witness saw the boy get on a bus and about half an hour later police boarded the bus east of the Johnson Street bridge and took the suspect into custody.

Victoria police Insp. Angus Stewart said officers discovered a loaded .22 calibre rifle in a burlap sack the boy was carrying.

Meanwhile Colwood RCMP are treating an incident early today at the Gulf Self Serve station at Colwood Corners as an attempted robbery.

A police spokesman said the attendant was taking a bundle of money to a safe in the station when she looked up and saw a man wearing a ski mask and holding a piece of paper in his hand approach the pay window.

She darted into a back room and hid. A few minutes later, when she poked her head out the door, the man had disappeared.

Man Struck By Levesque Known Faker

MONTREAL (CP) — The director of a street mission who knew Edgar Trottier, the victom of an accident involving Premier Rene Levesque, says Trottier frequently used to lie on the road to get drivers to stop and give him a handout.

The 62-year-old man was struck early Sunday morning by a car driven by Levesque and dragged 140 feet.

"It's a well-konwn fact that he used to lie on Craig Street in front of the tavern," Rev. Bill McCarthy, executive director of the Old Brewery Mission, said today.

"He used to yell 'My leg, my leg,' and then hit the driver for a few bucks."

McCarthy said Trottier was an alcoholic and medical records at the mission showed he also suffered from epilepsy.

George Wilson, a witness, has been quoted as telling police Trottier was waving an arm and a leg in the air and appeared to be trying to get up just before the car driven by Levesque hit him.

Lieut. Larry Lovis on Montreal police said at least one other person witnessed the accident, a taxi driver.

The Star says the taxi driver, Sylvio Gauthier, told police the premier's car was travelling between 40 and 50 miles per hour when it made impact with the body'

The decision on whether to hold a public inquest into the accident is up to coroner Maurice Laniel, who said Monday he has not come to a decision.

Port Angeles Oil Port Best for B.C.—Studies

Two confidential provincial government studies have concluded that British Columbia should push for the development of a major oil tanker port at Port Angeles, Wash., rather than at Kitimat.

The reports, prepared by the environment and land use secretariat, said a preliminary analysis "would appear to indicate that Port Angeles is a preferable alternative to Kitimat from B.C.'s point of view."

The environmental risks of the Kitimat project "do not appear to outweigh other benefits," says one report, and the Port Angeles proposal, "apart from initial high cost, appears to be the best proposal for B.C. and Washington state."

Both ports have been proposed as the West Coast terminal of new pipeline projects to carry Alaskan and Middle East oil to U.S. midwestern markets.

Detailed environmental information on the Kitimat area is almost non-existent, said one reort, and no final decision should be made until the federal government makes a complete analysis of "energy, economic and environmental implications of the project."

The reports compare the two sites on the basis of the risk of an oil spill, difficulties in controling a spill, environmental risks and economic costs and benefits.

The factor most favoring Kitimat is the $500-million to

SURREY SHOOTS DOWN PLANNED RACE TRACK

SURREY (CP)—Surrey council voted Monday to reject a proposal for a quarter-horse racetrack in the municipality's Hazelmere Valley.

The vote was a tie, which automatically defeated the proposal.

The British Columbia Land Commission last week approved an application by Captain Harry Terry, president of Meadow Creek Farms, to operate the track.

Local residents have opposed the development as an unnecessary encroachment on agricultural land.

Alderman Gary Watkins said Surrey taxpayers would have to pay out $500,000 in road improvements if the track is approved.

Mayor Ed McKitka said he was disappointed by the vote. He said the track would be a good, clean recreational development which would employ many people and provide tax revenue.

Aid for Developers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Legislation is planned to remove some of the roadblocks which B.C. developers face, Hugh Curtis, minister of housing and of municipal affairs, said Monday.

Speaking at the opening session of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada convention, Curtis promised the legislation within "a couple of weeks."

Curtis said the legislation would mean builders will not have to wait between six and 18 months for approval from municipal and provincial governments.

"We don't like it either, and we're going to put an end to it very, very quickly," he said.

Curtis received lengthy applause from the audience when he said his government would work with the private sector and not alone in the field of housing.

$58M Allocated For Hospitals

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the provincial government has allocated $58 million for hospital development in the Capital district over the next five years.

He said this is relatively more than other regional districts will get because the government apreciates the need "to catch up."

Under traditional government financing of such capital projects, the province contributes 60 per cent and regional ratepayers finance borrowing to cover the remaining 40 per cent.

Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, asked if he thought this would be enough said: "it will have to be."

The hospital district can certainly use more in its plans for construction, renovation and expansion of hospitals, he said.

"But if we're getting our share or more, that's all we can ask for."

A 300-bed hospital will cost an estimated $30 million to $35 million, he said. The 75-bed addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital will take about $5 and a 150-bed addition to Glengarry Hospital about $2 million.

Besides these, a substantial amount will be needed to undertake the major renovations needed at Royal Jubilee Hospital and some money will have to go to keep Victoria General Hospital going for the next 10 years or so, he said.

The board of Jubilee last week expressed fear over too much of available funds being siphoned off by a single project, the new hospital on Helmcken.

Pensioners Get Trip After All

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A group of 52 Victoria senior citizens stranded by a bankrupt tour company will go to Hawaii after all, thanks to the generosity of another firm.

Peter Lowe, of Traveleyden Tours Ltd. of Victoria, said his company will pick up the $19,000 tab so that the group gets full value for their money which is already spent.

The Victorians are among about 700 people who lost their trip when H. B. Haina and Associates Ltd., of Honolulu, announced it was going out of business.

The local group booked with Haina through Traveleyden.

"We are just heartsick about this development," Lowe said today.

"These people have been saving all their lives for a trip like this. They gave us the $19,000 and we turned it over to Haina in good faith. Now we are told there will be no trip because Haina is going out of business."

Traveleyden has no connection with the Haina company. Local travel firms act as agents for a number of Hawaii companies.

Lowe said his company will try to get full value for the Victorians by reserving space on Northwest Airlines and locating similar hotel space in Honolulu as was originally planned.

The original schedule was to go by bus to Seattle Feb. 28 and fly to Hawaii the following day.

"We will follow that schedule if we can but we are still working on the arrangements," Lowe said.

"We may have to leave a day earlier or later, depending upon what we can do. What we are saying is that these people will get their trip or if that is not possible, they will get their money back in full."

Either way, Traveleyden would be out $19,000.

However, there is hope the cash can be recovered, William Tindall of the Greater Victoria Better Business

Commission to Probe 'All Aspects' of BCR

there has been any wrong-doing on the railway.

But deputy attorney-general David Vickers said in Victoria Monday that a review of evidence of a B.C. Supreme court case involving the BCR and M.E.L. Paving Ltd. of Red Deer, Alta., does not support charges of criminal fraud.

In a letter to Attorney-General Garde Gardom, Vickers said he has reviewed all of the evidence in the civil trial before Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson in addition to ministerial files.

"I am satisfied that there is no evidence to support any charge or any violation of any of the provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada," the letter said.

"As other evidence may be available relating to these matters," the letter said, "the investigation continues."

The investigation was ordered by the attorney-general after it was learned that the railway settled out of court with M.E.L. Paving for $2.5 million after all of the evidence in a suit against the railway brought by M.E.L. had been submitted.

The Alberta-based company had charged the railway with civil fraud and misrepresentation in a contract let in July, 1972, for removal of earth between Takla Lake and Dease Lake, a distance of 49 miles, in northwestern B.C.

Vickers' letter stating that the evidence has been reviewed does not state why the investigation is continuing.

"As other evidence may be available to these matters, the investigation continues," the letter said. "I will report to you again when any additional available evidence is obtained and has been considered by law officers of the Crown."

Vickers was not available Monday to comment on the possibility of uncovering "any additional available evidence."

Meanwhile, there were two more developments related to the railway and the question of overruns.

The president of a construction firm hired to work on railway extensions confirmed Monday he has negotiated a settlement with the line for cost overruns on projects.

Doug Ragan, president of Doug Ragan Construction Ltd., would not reveal the terms of the settlement put said "I understand the creditors are happy."

And in Vancouver, Peter Carson, spokesman for the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C., announced the organization has launched its own investigation into engineering work done on the Dease Lake extension.

A B.C. Rail spokesman, commenting on the Ragan settlement, said the railway agreed to pay the firm $1.2 million, including $600,000 to buy the firm's equipment with the remainder going to settle outstanding debts to creditors.

The company's financial problems began while the firm was involved on two railway contracts between 1972 and 1976.

The inquiry by the professional engineers is only in its first stage. It was launched after reportrs suggested the contracts put out by the railway underestimated work done on the Dease extension.

If the probe turns up evidence of a breach of the association's code of ethics, a formal inquiry will be held. any engineer found in violation of the code can be censured, suspended from the association or fired.

Engineers must belong to the association to practice in B.C.

Britain Doesn't Deny Torture

STRASBOURG (Reuter) — Britain today pleaded no contest to allegations by the Irish Republic that British forces tortured detainees in Northern Ireland from 1971 to 1974, a dispute which has brought the two governments before an international court.

Attorney-General Sam Silkin told the European Court of Human Rights his government would not contest the finding of the Human Rights Commission that detainees had been tortured and otherwise ill-treated.

He pledged Britain would never again use the so-called "five techniques" of sensory deprivation against a suspect — hooding, harassment by noise and reduction of food, and making him lean for long periods against a wall, off balance and with arms outstretched.

Silkin said Britain now gives "this unqualified undertaking that the five techniques will not in any circumstances be re-introduced as an aid to interrogation."

He said he hoped his statement would enable the Irish government to withdraw its case against Britain, the first inter-state dispute ever to reach the human rights tribunal in its 18-year history.

Silkin referred to the submission earlier today by Irish Attorney-General Declan Costello that Ireland's motives in pursuing the case to the court was to ensure that the five techniques would be banned forever.

Chemicals Bypass Pickets

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mill manager of Rayonier's Woodfibre pulp mill said Monday the mill received a shipment of chemicals from the United States without encountering difficulty from picket lines.

Striking workers at three Vancouver-area plants that normally supply Rayonier had threatened the picketing to cut off the mill from alternative supplies.

Mill manager Stan Smart said Monday's two truck loads will keep the mill in operation until a three-day supply of chlorine and caustic soda arrives by barge.

Employees of FMC of Canada Ltd. in Squamish and Erco Industries Ltd. in North Vancouver, represented by the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, and workers at Hooker Chemicals of North Vancouver, represented by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, have been on strike for one week.

U.S. Mail Hike

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Postmaster-General Benjamin Bailar said Monday he will ask for a rate increase in 1978, even though the postal service earned $85 million more than it spent during the last six months of 1976.

Togetherness On the Prowl

Should the little woman fill this empty passenger seat?

By AB KENT
Times Staff

The police cruiser glided out of the gloom toward a cluster of vans and street rods rumbling and glistening under the lights of a drive-in.

"How about a coffee, honey?" the driver said to the young woman sharing his front seat.

"Gladly. I thought you'd never ask, dear. Is every night like this? We've been to a pileup on Pat Bay, picked up a runaway, directed traffic at a fire and chased a speeder — and it's only 10:15."

"It could be worse. Or it could be boring. You never know.

"I'll just check out these kids before I take you home. You've seen enough for one night. But don't wait up for me. We'll talk about it in the morning."

Man and wife police patrols? Not quite.

The ride-along program for wives of policemen has not yet appeared in Canada.

An idea inaugurated on the U.S. west coast, it is designed to take some of the stress out of marriage by giving wives a better understanding of the problems their lawmen husbands have to deal with day after night after day.

B.C. Police Commission member Geoff Mortimer thinks it is worth considering here.

"I think it's a good idea. We'll probably discuss it at an executive meeting now that it's been raised. It's something we can look at."

Mortimer is aware of the program tried in Lockport, N.Y., where the 50-man police department hopes it will have an effect on a 20 per cent divorce rate.

Chief Paul Leyden said, "I thought this program might give the wives some understanding.

"If they can understand why their husbands just can't come home at night and be the typical husband or father after dealing with the kind of people they do for eight hours, that they can't just turn it off, then it might help their marriages," Leyden said.

The only place in Canada where anything like this program has been tried is Calgary, Mortimer thought. The wife familiarization plan there consists mainly of talks and tours of the police station.

"The wife only knows what a policeman tells her about his job," Mortimer noted.

In some cases that could be little or nothing.

"My husband is one of those who never talks about his work, and this way I got to see why he is always so moody when he comes home," said one of the Lockport wives who rode twice with her husband.

Another was asked why she thought there was such a high rate of divorce among policemen.

"The hours and the shift work," she replied.

"They work three rotating shifts and they're never home on nights or holidays. You can never make plans to go somewhere and sometimes you're sitting all alone on New Year's Eve."

"My mother always told me never to marry a salesman or a policeman,' the wife added. "She said he'd never be home when I needed him."

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson said he did not know whether the separation rate in his 106-member department is typical, above or below average.

"The very fact of shift work makes it more than likely to cause additional marital stress," he said.

"That's why we're experimenting with the 12-hour shift. The men are longer at work, but they are also longer at home."

Now in its second year, the experiment is being studied by the attorney-general's department and so far "looks pretty good."

Unexpected duty is one of the most difficult things to cope with, Peterson said, especially for the younger men's wives. A court case in which a policeman must give evidence can occur without notice on a day off, spoiling plans for a trip or other arrangements the wife and family have looked forward to.

Peterson said he had heard of ride-along programs in California and at a Seattle area department, but none in Canada. He was not overly enthused about the idea.

If there is an appeal from the members of his department to try the scheme, he would pass it along to the Saanich police board for consideration: "I wouldn't oppose it."

But he doubted whether there was enough interest on the part of wives and suggested some policemen would not be anxious to involve their wives with their work to that extent.

Peterson pointed out that however passive a ride-along passenger might be — and there would be instructions not leave the patrol car or become involved in a situation — the passenger could still be called to court to give eyewitness evidence of an incident.

Saanich corporal Phil Jamieson, who is president of the Canadian Police Association, said he had never heard of the program and is not aware of any movement toward improving domestic relations of policemen.

The RCMP thus far has not considered a ride-along program for wives although it does make provision for special requests from reporters, law students, social workers and court staff.

A growing number of female police officers on regular patrol duty in company with male officers — in both the RCMP and local forces — may have some effect upon future attitudes toward more familiarization for members' wives.

Some larger departments where mixed patrols are common have had complaints from wives who don't like husbands spending eight hours in such proximity to another woman.

Chief John Green, of Oak Bay, reacted negatively, admitting a chauvinist bias. The ride-along program "sounds like more nonsense to me," inviting more problems for his all-male department.

TOWN TALK

A bunch of Lancashire lasses belting out a British Columbia song in Blackpool?

It sounds a bit incongruous, but the information comes from what we in the newspaper business call a reliable source — former Victoria Times columnist Norman Cribbens.

The song was composed by Jerry Gosley of Victoria's Smile Show. Cribbens took a fancy to it, jotted down the words and music, and took them with him when he returned to his native England after 15 years in Victoria.

Muriel Fox, conductor of the Ulverston Ladies Choir of Ulverston, Lancs., was equally impressed. Result — the choir has sung Gosley's song in various parts of northwest England including Ulverston, Dalton, Barrow, Blackpool and Harrogate.

The song goes:

"It's my desire, with art to inspire
This colorful land that I love;
I'll paint all the greens
In soft woodland scenes
And capture the blue skies above . . ."

Smith, in asking one of the MLAs to tone down his biting remarks, asked the member to stop hurling innuendoes and "epitaphs."

Still on the legislative front, a quiet invitation was extended to Liberal leader Gordon Gibson last week to join the NDP.

NDP MLA Alex Macdonald told Gibson in the legislature that they seemed to agree on many things and asked if Gibson wouldn't "join this little group."

Gibson was probably on the verge of acceptance, but if he had been thinking about it, he would have been stopped short by Macdonald's off-the-cuff definition of a Liberal as "only a socialist with his brains knocked out."

Proposing a business licence fee of $200,000 to discourage massage parlors in Esquimalt gave aldermen a heady moment in committee Monday.

But treasurer Peter Cairns quickly damped their ardour. The rub is that provincial legislation limits fees to a maximum $2,000.

Council has had no formal application from a prospective body rub operator, but is in the process of reviewing business licences to control such things as pinball arcades and aldermen wanted to see if they could erect financial restraints on body shops.

Council will be asked to limit coin-operated games to three per establishment and to triple thesix-month fee to $15.

Meanwhile Cairns, clerk George Merz and solicitor Terry O'Grady will be asked to suggest other legislative means of preventing massage parlors from opening in the municipality.

Workers Offer No-Pay Month To Fish Plant

More than half the employees of financially-troubled Oakland Industries Ltd. are willing to keep on working for a month without pay to keep the company going.

An emergency meeting of the fish processing plant employees on Monday was attended by close to 75 people.

"They all signed a pledge to work a month without pay," organizer Gladys Askey said today.

Meanwhile government officials, bankers and company officials met today in a bid to prevent closure of the plant.

The meeting was set up after about 150 employees and fishermen staged a placard-carrying, peaceful demonstration outside the legislature Monday to protest the provincial government's failure to prevent the shutdown.

Oakland is Victoria's only fish processing plant.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips announced today's meeting had been called when the question of Oakland's future was raised in the legislature by Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber.

Oakland president Bill Hilborn said the company, incorporated 17 years ago, will close because of financial problems.

Hilborn said the decision was made after the Bank of British Columbia and the Business Development Bank failed to reach agreement on which institution would come first for security for a temporary operating loan to keep the company afloat.

Phillips, said today's meeting will include representative from the Bank of B.C., the Federal Development Bank, The B.C. Development Corp., Oakland, and Mitsubishi Canada Ltd.

He said the meeting will explore all possible avenues of what action could be taken to get the company operating again.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said that if those efforts fail, his ministry will work with the federal government to retrain the employees.

The company, locally owned, began operating in the 1960s and brings an annual $10 million into Greater Victoria.

Its difficulties began when the campany's new plant on Montreal Street cost more than the money borrowed to finance it, due to high construction costs.

The problem was compounded during the 1976 salmon season when a price war between the larger fish companies forced Oakland to buy fish at higher prices than salmon could sell for.

Blanshard Bids Set For April 1

Th long-awaited Blanshard Street extension project will go to tender April 1, Highways Minister Alex Fraser told the legislature Monday.

The work is scheduled to be completed in a year but the minister warned municipal councils to stop squabbling over the project.

He advised Greater Victoria MLAs to "get hold of your respective councils and tell them not to start re-engineering the project because all that will do is delay this long-needed project."

Manor Sale Bid Postponed

A move by Oak Bay municipality to force sale of privately-owned Oak Bay Manor, 2251 Cadboro Bay, was postponed today for one week.

Ald. John Gould told a meeting of council's Committee A this morning that an order for sale is being sought in Supreme Court chambers in a back-tax dispute.

But, 15 minutes before court was to begin, he and municipal administrator Stewart Fleming contacted lawyer John Cowan and told him to have the issue adjourned one week while the manor raises a new mortgage.

Goult told the committee that part of new mortgage will come to Oak Bay for $137,500 in taxes owing for the last two years.

Parched Sidney's 'Only Hope' Water Sharing

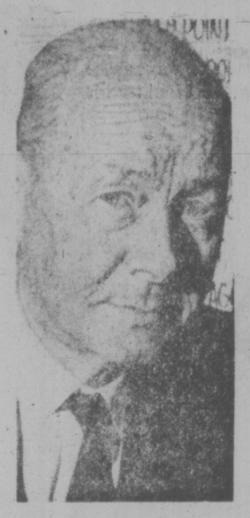
Shallow wells on the Saanich Peninsula will run dry this summer and Sidney won't be able to meet water needs on its own, the chairman of the new Saanich Peninsula Water Commission said today.

But Jim Cumming said the water-starved peninsula will be able to make it through the summer — barely — by sharing.

Talks on a long-term solution, water piped from the Sooke hills, open later this month.

Sidney appears to be worst off, he said, with its municipal wells able to produce only 400,000 gallons a day against a summer demand of 600,000 gallons. For the first time the shortage has forced Sidney to buy water from Central Saanich during the winter.

But four wells drilled by Park Pacific for a housing development in North Saanich could be used for an interim supply to Sidney.



CUMMING

Cumming said he hopes B.C. Ferries can be persuaded to draw its 60,000 to 70,000-gallon-a-day summer needs from its Tsawwassen terminal rather than at Swartz Bay.

There is some surplus water available in parts of the peninsula and the commission's immediate job is going to be seeing it is transferred to places in need.

"It's going to have to be very carefully watched but I think it can be done," he said.

Peninsula communities and residents traditionally get their water from private or municipal wells and Elk Lake. Increasing demand had forced municipalities like Sidney to drill their wells deeper and deeper.

Cumming said the water table, the level of water underground, will drop this summer for lack of the usual rainfall this winter and shallow wells will go dry, casting an extra demand on the water supply system.

Water for the core municipalities is supplied by the Greater Victoria Water District from the Sooke watershed and that source is ample enough to meet district needs, including the Saanich Peninsula, for years.

The peninsula commission at its inaugural meeting last month decided to tackle its water problem on two fronts.

It has a tenative date with the Greater Victoria Water Board Feb. 25, to discuss future water supply and costs.

Mika Move Sidelined

Ald. John Mika met strong opposition Monday when he tried to open up municipal meetings and make council more available to the public.

His action was stalled when a proposed six-point amendment to the municipality's procedure bylaw was referred to the finance, legislative and health committee.

Ald. Ian Cass said Mika's proposals were like "using a 14-pound sledge hammer to drive in a two inch nail."

Mika wants all regular council meetings held in the evenings; agendas and minutes of all council and committee meetings publicized and residents allowed to address council if given permission by a majority vote.

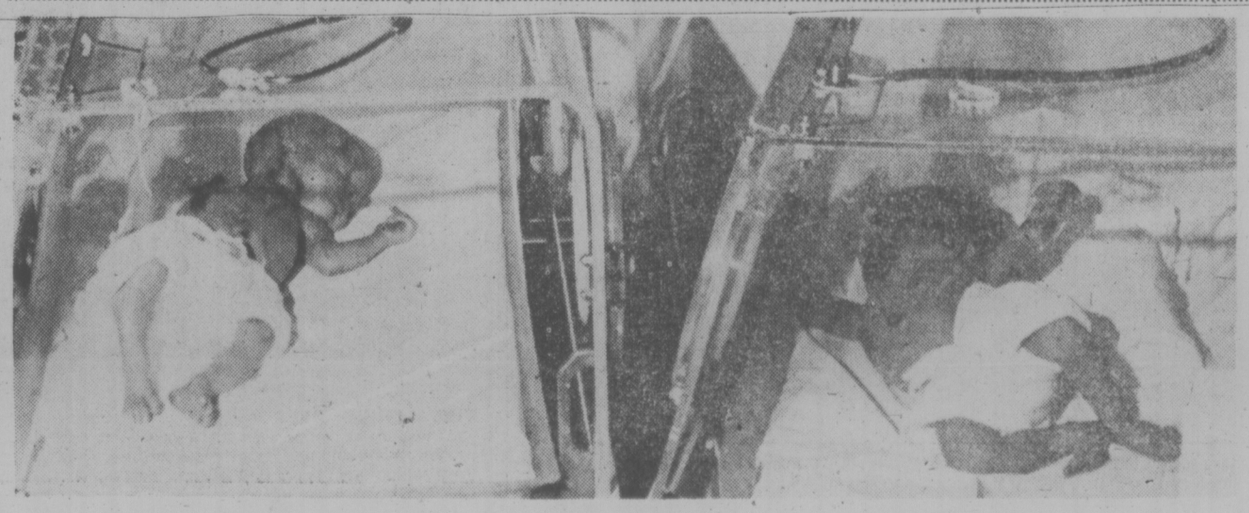
Ald. David Paterson said Mika's bid to have agendas and minutes publicized would cost between $36,060 and $49,075 per year.

Mika, said, however, he checked with Victoria Press Ltd. and found the annual cost would be $8,220.

Ald Fred Severson said he objected to the proposals because they insinuated council's performance had been lacking in the past.

Mika disagreed.

"My motion doesn't in any way reflect on previous councils," he said. "Recently we were given a chain of office. This is a symbol we're growing up. We've become a big municipality. We should systemize things and try some new trails."



Doing Well
